About this time last year, some oilmen were predicting fuel prices would skyrocket and never come down again.

But, Thompson says that Standard Oil has dropped its price four cents in the last two months.

Heating oil sold for 22 cents a gallon about a year ago. Now it averages 32 cents a gallon.

Jack Rayder of Petoskey Oil Company, which handles Gulf products, says his company has about the same picture.

But, he's says it's too early to predict prices.

Most trade journals indicate there is a move to stabilize the base price of oil, Rayder says, but he doubts it will ever take place.

Heating Oil

A year ago at this time, he said heating oil sold for 22.8 cents a gallon, but this year market price is 34.3 cents.

He said the biggest jump came around May, when the price soared upwards to 33 cents and has stayed around that level since then.

Theodore Eck, chief economist for Standard Oil Co. of Indiana, headquartered in Chicago says there is going to be enough heating oil for the winter.

"We must be alert for an extra cold winter," he said.

"We're in good shape to handle the 1 to 10 or 1 in 20 winter. We can ride out a coal strike," he said.

Oil Embargo

"What we can't handle is another oil embargo imposed by the Arabs. If we don't get crude oil, we can't manufacture petroleum products."

The U.S. still gets about 16 percent of its crude oil from the Middle East.

Herbert Hugo, senior editor of Platt's Oilgram, one of the nation's leading petroleum publications, says that unless people panic, the situation should be and will be better this winter than last.

He says that there is even some hope that prices will come down.

Under federal price controls, oil companies were allowed to raise their prices and pass on to their customers the higher cost of foreign crude oil. Crude oil prices are expected to tumble in the next few months, he said.

Higher Prices

"Now they (oil companies) find they can't justify the higher prices and the federal government is hot on their necks," Hugo said.

"It's possible fuel oil prices will go down in the middle of winter. If overall crude oil prices go down, that must be passed on to the consumer."

But natural gas is the key to keeping warm in the winter in Charlevoix. Natural gas accounts for some 1,000 household space heating in Charlevoix, and the major supplier says we can expcet to have enough this winter.

No Problems

"We're not looking for any problems," says Kenneth Thiel of Michigan Consolidated Gas Company.

"We're still adding customers."

Liquified Petroleum (LP) gas users can expect a similar outlook.

"As far as I know we have an adequate supply," said a representative from Citgo Gas.

Charlevoix County's largest LP supplier, Chipman Plumbing and Heating, says they should have enough also.

Right now, they say LP gas is selling for 28 cents a gallon in 500-gallon quantities. This is only a three-cent hike from a year ago.

The price in August was 30-cents a gallon.

Kate Holzshu says she hasn't heard from their Indian River-based supplier whether or not customers can expect to see an increase.

Merger Meeting Set

A mass meeting to sound out the community on the proposed merger between Charlevoix and Charlevoix Township is set for tonight (Wednesday) at 7:30 p.m. at Charlevoix High School.

Called by Mayor Ed Hansen, the meeting is expected to draw several hundred residents.

The Charlevoix mayor said earlier that the city had decided to hold an area public meeting to discuss the proposed merger and evaluate local sentiment about the move.

Both the city council and township board are expected to be present.

Under a proposed timetable drawn up by the Mayor and City Attorney Don Berlage, residents could see the two units of government merged as early as next October.

The question would have to be approved by Charlevoix City Council and by a vote of township residents.

"In the past, there has been considerable talk that the township should be joined with the city," the Mayor said recently.

However, he said before making a move it would be best to discuss the situation in a public meeting.

Before any decisions are made, both the mayor and city attorney Don Berlage insist a thorough cost study in all areas of government responsibility, to be carried out by committees made up of city and township residents.

The merger question was raised a month ago after the council voted 5-1 to put the question of charter revision on the ballot.

Berlage believes that the time is ripe for the city and township to join forces and work together on charter revision.

He has even drawn up a proposed resolution which would set in motion the machinery for merger of the two units before charter revision is undertaken.

Several city officials have indicated that if merger is put off much longer it will no longer be a feasible alternative for township residents.

To eliminate earlier fears that the resolution was an attempt to sidestep or delay the question of charter revision indefinitely, language was added to insure that the revision process would continue if the township votes

Senior Citizen Housing Investigated

Senior Citizens looking for low cost housing in Charlevoix may eventually end up with two options.

In addition to a push for municipally-owned units, Charlevoix City Council learned Monday about a private project that could be occupied in four months.

Joe Arvilla and Glen Harris, both of Charlevoix, asked city council for a building permit that would allow them to construct a 40-unit complex on May street behind the Holiday Service Station.

If a permit was granted, the developers say they could start renting units in four months.

However, a public hearing will first have to be held to allow rezoning of the property from Commercial-2 to Residential-4, as well as amend the present ordinance to allow for a set-back variance and reduce several restrictions now in R-4 classification that are

What is Worse than Monday Night Football?

By SHERRY MARTIN

What is worse than Monday night football?

If your husband happens to be a deer hunter, you know full well that it surpasses Howard Cosell in terms of agony.

In my past experience, I have found that the best solution to this problem is to go visit your mother for a pre-Christmas vacation during deer hunting season.

If your mother lives in the same town you do, this might be a little hard to explain.

Some very cooperative mothers I have known have conveniently discovered dire illnesses to contract each year. These select illnesses, of course, can only be treated at home, which requires private nursing, which your mother cannot afford. This leaves only you:

To back up a little, we still have the countdown to contend with. This is the week before hunting season, which can often be worse than the actual season.

But don't visit your mother during this time, your husband needs you now more than ever; to mend his hunting pants, shine his gun, buy his shells, and run countless other errands, while he is out checking for deer sign.

Now, just suppose, you couldn't go visit your mother and you've survived all the way to OPENING DAY.

Late in the afternoon in the driveway comes THE HUNTER, with a scraggly deer draped on the hood of the family car. (You had to walk a mile to the drug store for junior's prescription for whooping cough, after all hubby needs the car to put meat on the table).

Try not to show your true emotions, they could be grounds for divorce later.

Quietly agree to have the deer processed and put in the freezer and the rack mounted and hung in the living room. By about the middle of January you can give the venison to your cousin who'd eat anything that walks, crawls, or flies.

Then you can retire the "trophy" to the attic, because the great white hunter will already be dreaming about next year's 88 point rack. (Gotta do better every year?)

One last suggestion. Knit and do spring cleaning that never gets done in May anyhow and be a loving wife.

Then hit the man up for that dishwasher you want for Christmas while he's still high about the deer he got.

Doug Crozier

Ask the Croziers'

4-H--A Way of Life

By SARA GAY DAMMANN

BOYNE CITY–"Eating the dirt" is Doug Crozier's description of his family's, particularly his own, beginnings in the pursuit of horses and 4-H excellence.

As Doug explains, his grandfather arrived from Arkansas with a pony in the back of an U-Haul trailer, in 1963. Doug was four. The Croziers staked the pony on the lawn in front of their Deer Lake home to graze. Soon they were taking turns getting bucked off Blue Girl–"eating the dirt."

Breaking Blue Girl became the first family horse project. What followed, has been a succession of 4-H and personal horse projects.

Blue Girl led to a horse and now the Croziers have seven registered Quarter Horses, in a pasture behind the stables they built themselves.

Horses and 4-H are a consuming interest for the Croziers, all of whom ride and care for their horses: Harvey (Jr) and Shirley, parents; and Eddie, 16, Cinda, 11, and Keisha, 7; as well as Doug, now 13.

Mrs. Crozier, an enthusiast, speaks of 4-H activities as her family's answer to the problems of adolescence, a positive answer, involving everyone. While horses are the major 4-H interest for the Croziers, rabbits, chickens, ducks, geese and a pair of "Aracana" chickens from Chile also get their share of attention.

Mrs. Crozier founded the Boyne City 4-H Horse Club "The Range Riders". As a parent-leader her main concern is the responsibility children learn in the program.

"Doug does all the work on his mare–from grooming to mocking manure out of the stalls," she explains. He is constantly busy and that, too, is good, she adds.

And it has paid off with material rewards. Doug won all three divisions of the Charlevoix County Fall Achievement Day Show, the Western Pleasure Class at the Emmet County Fair, and the Youth Pleasure and Horsemanship Classes at the Northwesten Michigan Horsemens' Association Show in Traverse City. He won the Charlevoix County 4-H Horse Award for 1974 and Reserve Championship for Pleasure Horses at the Northwestern Michigan Horsemen's Association Banquet, November 10th, 1974.

In 4-H Horse Program, unlike many other horse show situations, the young riders must be more than just the best riders on the most expensive or fancy horses–they must show to the judges that they can completely care for their horses. Hard work is more important that fancy animals or equipment, 4-H project leaders emphasize.

Patience and love have paid off for Doug, too.

When Blue Girl was retired, Mrs. Crozier gave Doug a palomino yearling filly. A registered Quarter Horse, Mount's Gold Beauty, or "Sox" as the Croziers named her for her four white stockings.

Sox was not only untrained but very headshy. No one could get near her head, a result of mistreatment by her first owners. Doug spent hours "just loving her, earning her trust," he says, so that by the time she was ready to be broken, she was no longer the least bit headshy.

The first time a rider lowers himself gently onto the saddle on the back of an unbroken horse a volcano can well erupt.

One day last May, Doug was ready and very cautious. His father had a rope to "Sox," just in case.

"I rode with Dad leading, 'til I was sure it was okay. Then he gave me the rope. She went beautifully. but I got scared when it started raining, then thundering and lightening. But Sox just went along quietly. A couple days later I cantered her for the first time. She tried to buck, and I gave her a quick jerk. From then on she behaved," Doug described an obviously exhilerating experience, with a broadening smile on his face.

It's gone like that ever since. Doug and his mare, gaining each others confidence and dazzling show judges.

Doug doesn't have dreams of greater show glory. He prefers the smaller local shows–"the friendliness and being with my family"–as opposed to the big downstate shows.

Asked what he gets out of 4-H, Doug talks about how much he has learned about caring for horses, and how it has given him "something to do."

"In the summer, I swim with Sox, holding on to her tail, letting her pull me. This winter I might train her to pull our cutter."

Mrs. Cozier laoghs with Doug about his dedication:

"The night before our last show, he bathed Sox, but it was raining and she wouldn't dry. At 11 p.m. I looked for Doug and found him with his sister's hair dryer in our garage, drying that filly."

Northern Michigan's Winter Predicted Better Than Average

By TOM DAMMANN

BOYNE FALLS–Slope and motel operators in this heartland of midwestern skiing are predicting an above average season, not withstanding the current spate of dolorous economic news.

A survey conducted last week, from Traverse City to Harbor Springs, indicates that cash deposits for reservations in major motels are running from the level of last year up to more than 10 percent better.

"At this point it appears that no matter how tough the economy gets, the skier is going to ski," Peter Fitzsimons, front desk manager of the Traverse City Holiday Inn says, adding that his hotel has already been forced to turn away several group reservations.

Craig Richeter, spokesman at the Weathervane Inn Terrace in Charlevoix, says that, "we have reservations for twice the number of clubs we had last year, some for four and five days, from Indiana, Illinois, Ohio, Kentucky and downstate. And we have their deposits."

He attributes this to a strong promotion campaign waged by the Weathervane in Detroit and Chicago.

The Lodge, in Charlevoix, says its reservations are about the same as last year.

The Petoskey Area Chamber of Commerce reports inquiries for accommodations are running neck and neck with last year. The Traverse City Chamber of Commerce reports advance interest in that region is higher than last year.

Mrs. Doris Sarns proprietor of Nubs Nob Ski Resort in Harbor Springs, reports that reservations are running even with last year, but that with this week's snowfall, she expects reservations to increase.

The snow has added to the cautious optimism.

Zig Bulandu, spokesman for Boyne Country, the world's largest singly owned ski complex, says Boyne Mountain is planning to open next weekend, November 23 and 24, a week earlier than usual.

"We already have more than six inches on the ground are are beginning to make artificial snow," he said Friday.

Most other area slopes plan to open Friday after Thanksgiving, November 29. Mrs. Sarns says she doesn't trust these early snows and will probably wait until December 14. A spokesman for Schuss Mountain in Mancelona says the resort management was waiting to see what happens last weekend before deciding whether to begin making snow in order to open this weekend.

At Harbor Spring's Colonial Inn, an earlier interest than usual has been spotted with several large Chicago groups booking rooms in mid-December, rather than after the first of the year, as they had heretofore.

James Johnson, Petoskey Holiday Inn Manager says group reservations are 10 percent ahead of last year with weekends well filled until March.

The same increase is reported by Schuss Mountain, Shanty Creek, in Bellaire and Boyne Country.

"Our group business is great," says the Schuss Mountain spokesman. "The unknown factor is the family and single person interest."

Bulanda says that Boyne Country anticipates a banner year if the weather holds.

"We think people will be skiing closer to home rather than going out west or to Europe, because of the increase in air fares," he said, adding that people no longer seem worried by the energy crisis as they were last year.

Nobody reports that the large lay-offs in the automotive industry downstate have affected reservations.

All were encouraged that the crowds attending the Detroit and Chicago ski shows were much greater this year than in many years and that advance interest was greater.

State Will Ask For Funds

State Railroad Fight Not Over with Yet

Michigan's fight to save its vanishing railroads hasn't died yet.

Both the state and a new formed Northern Michigan groups say they're going to step up battle plans to fight proposed federal abandonment.

Attempts to save the rails through a state bond proposal failed only weeks ago, when Michigan voters said they were against a transportation proposal that included monies for rail construction. The statewide vote was 1,312,243 to 967,215.

Charlevoix voters turned down the proposal almost four to one, 4,4,330 to 1,645.

But, the State Highways and Transportation Department claims the railrood portion of the mass transportation plan was popular.

Kevin McKinney of the state department says the Bureau of Urban and Public Transportation is going to ask for $46 million as its budget request for fiscal 1976, which begins July 1.

Out of this request, $30 million will be for rail retention.

"If we can get this money to pull things together for the next few years, we'll be back in '76 for another bond issue."

McKinney said the $30 million is about what they would have received from the mass transportation bond issue.

He said his department's primary concern to keep up with the necessary planning and engineering work needed before any construction or improvement could take place.

The state transportation experts says he's afraid that if the department can't get the necessary funding, two years for another bond issue may be too late.

A new railroad action group, calling itself the Northern Michigan Rail Users Association, is also working actively to muster a following.

The group organized in early October and vowed they would promote rentention of railroad service in Northern Michigan.

Composed primarily of rail users and area businessmen, the group has drafted by-laws and is seeking members.

They plan to hold their first official meeting in Kalkaska on Tuesday, December 10, at 7:30 p.m. in the Kalkaska branch of the Cadillac State Bank.

In the meantime, all interested parties are urged to contact David B. Barnum, Brooks & Perkins, Inc., 201 Haynes St., Cadillac, Michigan.

Formation of the organization comes in the wake of a threat by the U.S. Department of Transportation to cut off almost all of Michigan's rail service because it doesn't meet minimum standards set-up in a federal reorganization rail plan.

State Sign Program

Beautify or Uglify Roads

America's Beautification Act is doing more than eliminating ugly billboards and junk yards.

It's fattening the wallets of some pseudoecology-minded people.

For at least one Charlevoix County resident, the program has meant an extra $2,000 profit he would have otherwise never seen.

And there are indications, others in the county are reaping questionable monies.

The get rich quick scheme started nation-wide in 1965 when Lady Bird Johnson encouraged Congress to pass "Highway Beautification Act" that allowed the nation to clean-up its highways of unsightly signs and dumps.

Enforcement

In essence, the program required each state to pass enabling legislation to administer its own programs.

Michigan began enforcing its program in 1972 on the heels of a threat they would lose more than $20 million in federal highway funds if they didn't make a move.

Jay Bastian, assistant supervisor of Roadside Development for the Michigan Department of Highways and Transportation, says the state then began working with the more than 29,000 signs standing alongside Michigan roads. roads.

Right now, the state is in the process of compensating more than 8,000 sign owners anywhere from $25 to $4,000 for signs located in nonconforming areas.

9,100 Violators

Another 9,100 sign owners were told to take down their signs because they were in violation and another 4,300 have been removed by the state because the owner couldn't be found.

Under state law, outdoor display signs can only be erected in commercial or industrial zoned areas and have to be located within 800 feet of an active business.

"Basically what this law does in Michigan is provides controls of signs in the rural area where we don't think it should be," Bastian says.

"Up to this time we have acquired many signs across the state."

Two-Fold Problem

He said Michigan presently has a two-fold problem.

First, the highway official said the state must acquire those signs that are nonconforming and compensate those who had them up before 1972.

The second problem is to enforce law and make sure signs don't go up where they're not allowed.

"We are actively engaged in buying out signs," Bastian says.

"And we hope to be in the next few years cleaning up the entire state."

In 1973, Michigan received $6 million in federal funds ond another $1.5 million in 1974 to buy up signs.

The Highway Department says each sign is appraised and the owner is compensated on the basis of square footage and material it is constructed of.

However, one Charlevoix County resident says the state doesn't review their cases too carefully.

The resident said his sign only cost him $400 to erect and he now can expect a windfall of $3,000.

The state claims it's impossible under the system.

Rabbits Cost More Than Chickens

Domestic rabbits are worth more than chickens in Charlevoix County.

At last week's meeting of the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners, members voted to pay Charles Arnott of East Jordan $12.00 for four domestic rabbits killed by stray dogs.

The board also voted to pay Robert Rogers of Boyne City $38.00 for 19 chickens killed by stray dogs.

Make Sure You're Not Wasting Energy

Local fuel distributors are indicating that we won't be experiencing the shortages we suffered through last year.

However even though there is optimism being expressed we shouldn't forget what it was like when there was a severe problem.

According to local suppliers, we are ahead about 10 per cent over last year in fuel supplies.

However, they stress that this reserve is partially due to the lifting of the Arab Oil Embargo that conditions could change very rapidly if the Arab oil producing nations were to change their policies.

At the same time, fuel experts say that Americans are using less fuel than they did last year.

This may be partially because of the increased price or that we are becoming more conservation-minded.

In either case, it is important for us to continue conserving fuel and not let the present supply fool us.

We urge you to continue not making unnecessary trips to the store, as well as maintaining a 55 mile per hour maximum speed on the highways.

Like last year, we also ask you to turn down the thermostat and not waste precious fuel oil and gas.

After living in the land of the plentiful for so many years, it is going to be difficult for many to conserve energy, however, we feel it is a must.

We also encourage Michigan to look at its neighbor, the State of Illinois, and see what tax breaks they may be giving to those who drive cars that at least get 26 miles per gallon.

Perhaps the same type of move could be made in Michigan.

We would also hope that the fuel-related industries continue their search for alternative energy sources and energy saving devices.

Charlevoix Students Demonstrate Ability

Charlevoix High School students demonstrated last week that they should be given a more active role in assisting school adminstrators with curriculum development.

Last week, the government classes at Charlevoix watched a step-by-step demonstration of how our law enforcement and judicial processes work.

The activity involved the cooperation of the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department, the 90th District Court and several local attorneys who showed how a drunk driving case was handled.

The participants created an atmosphere of learning that educators in the local area should examine and incorporate as a part of their teaching methods.

For many students, it was the first time they had probably ever seen anyone charged and convicted in a Court of Law.

Yet, many of the seniors who either participated or watched the classroom demonstration will be required next year to sit on juries.

We challenge the Charlevoix Public School District to live up to its responsibility of educating our young citizens with continued relevant educational programs such as the one that was used last week upon the suggestion of several students.

Last week's program not only involved the student, but the community.

Charlevoix has many untapped resources that should be taken advantage of by more educators.

Where's Veteran's Day?

Michigan celebrated Veteran's Day Monday. We were one of 42 states which refused to change the date for honoring military veterans from November 11 to the fourth-Monday-in-October date set by Congress in 1971.

This year marked the 56th observances of the November 11, 1918 surrender of the Central powers to the Allies in France. President Wilson called the day "Armistice Day" in 1918, and that date became a federal holiday in 1938. In 1954 the day was named Veteran's Day by Congress in honor of all veterans.

It was because veterans in Michigan fought changing the date for honoring their buddies that we paid no attention to the fourth Monday in October, October 28, and instead observed Veteran's Day on its original date.

All major veteran's groups in the state are pushing Congress to amend the Monday Holiday Law and return to the November 11 celebration throughout the country.

Now that, for the first time in many years, the United States is not at war, it could be easy to forget the men and women who have fought for us through many wars.

There should be a day set aside for them, and if they want that day to be November 11, we're all for it.

We don't need a three-day weekend to utter a little prayer of thanks for all our military people have done for us during the last 200 years.

Resident Thanks Hospital

November 13, 1974

Editor
Charlevoix Courier
Charlevoix, Michigan 49720

Dear Sir:

I would like to take up a bit of your editorial space to commend our fine Charlevoix Area Hospital, all the doctors, and the entire nursing staff.

After our son had a snowblower mishap last winter and was treated so wonderful my husband naturally went to our local hospital with no hesitation when he had a severe ulcer attack recently. He was accepted quickly and immediately the doctors took over and began tests and as soon as his condition was diagnosed he was treated efficiently and, miraculously, without surgery. Nowhere can I imagine that he would have been treated better by all the doctors and nurses. My husband has been just as satisfied with all follow-up examinations.

We are impressed more each time our family has to have the services of a hospital and, certainly, would never consider driving to another town to a large hospital unless this was recommended by our local physician.

Mrs. H.D. Speer

Big Brothers Plan Outing

What a better way to spend a beautiful autumn evening than riding along under the stars on top of a hay wagon. This was the scene on Saturday, Oct. 26, when the Charlevoix County Big Brothers met with their young companions for their annual hayride.

With clear, mild weather ordered special for the occasion, the wagon rambled on for approximately 10 miles through the Twin Lake area pulled by over 150 horses (under the hood of Jim Buller's jeep!). The hearty appetites brought on by all the good, fresh outdoor activity, were curbed by refreshments provided by Terry Boss.

The evening came to a reluctant close around 10:00 p.m., with enthusiasm running high in anticipation of the next Big Brother outing.

Sunday afternoon, Nov. 24th, the Big Brothers of Charlevoix County will gather at the Boyne City Lanes. For many this will be a first experience. Contact Don Luedke, Executive Director, 547-6314, for more details.

Clockwise

By Bob Clock

Carol Smolinski of Bay Shore, a compositor at the Courier and New-Review printing plant in Petoskey, has a lot in common with Clockwise. We're both so old-fashioned it hurts.

And we compare notes on the "good old days" every lunch hour in the basement of the PNR plant in Petoskey.

We both have to travel U.S. 31 every day to get to work and we agree the drive is not so bad in fine weather, since the road passes through some of the most glorious scenery in northern Michigan.

But when the weather turns nasty, as it did last week, we would both feel better—and safer—traveling in a cutter with old Dobbin doing the leg-work up front.

I guess we're both sort of nostalgic about the fun of going places in horse-drawn vehicles.

Back at her home in Rogers City, Mrs. Smolinski has several old horse-drawn rigs in storage, waiting the day she can acquire a horse to pull them.

So Mrs. Smolinski is deeper into the nostalgia bit than I am, but when U.S. 31 turns into a skating rink, I'm in her corner, 100 percent.

In fact, the folks who drive that particular stretch of highway between Charlevoix and Petoskey have sort of a game going during the winter. We keep a running score of which county—Charlevoix or Emmet—does the best job of keeping the road open.

Some days Charlevoix gets the bouquets Other days the honors go to Emmet. And still other days, both road commissions rate zero.

Of couse, if we returned to cutters, the winners would be the losers and vice-versa, because automobiles and sleighs don't appreciate the same kind of roadway.

I don't know who calls the shots, but there usually is a marked difference in the way the two highway commissions handle their snow removal duties.

If Charlevoix plows, chances are good that Emmet will rely on salt and sand, leaving the snow in place. If Charlevoix salts and sands, Emmet will have brought out its plows.

If the highway is rotten in Charlevoix County, you can depend on it being better in Emmet. But if the roads are clear in Charlevoix, watch out! You are apt to run into two feet of slush at Bay Shore.

It turns into quite a guessing game.

And well it might, because there appears to be an invisible line bisecting the area in the vicinity of Bay Shore.

Maybe some day, if the energy crisis worsens, we'll all go back to cutters and sleighs. Then it won't make much difference who plows the roads—or when.

Missionary Visits Area

Dear Editor:

The Charlevoix Church of the Nazarene will feature Mr. Ralph McClintock, cereer missionary to South Africa, in a special service on Wednesday, November 20, at 7:30.

Mr. McClintock will employ the "sights and sounds of South Africa." He will present the issues related to ministering in the fast-changing society, with its complexities and challenges.

Mr. McClintock attended Michigan State College and received a B.A. degree in Industrial Arts. He also attended Olivet Nazarene College, Kankakee, Illinois, with a major emphasis in Education. Prior to his assignment to Africa, he served as a Senior Project Engineer of Automotive design and testing for the Oldsmobile Division of G.M.C. in Lansing.

Mr. McClintock's career reflects the professional skills which are demanded of a modern missionary. His ten years of service includes maintenance, engineering expansion, and construction engineer.

He is closely associated with the ministry of preaching and teaching and hospital service, but he will include background and information from an approach different than that of a minister or medical worker. On week ends he might conduct religious services for groups of people under the trees, until they can build a church, as all lay-workers are expected to be religious and capable of ministering.

The pastor, Rev. Alan Mettler, invites the entire community to hear this versatile lay missionary. He will have several artifacts from South Africa on display. There will be opportunity for interested persons to talk personally with Mr. McClintock.

Rev. Alan Mettler, pastor.

Don't Forget

Tonight (Wednesday) is the old town hall meeting between township and city residents at 7:30 p.m. at Charlevoix High School.

We hope you haven't forgotten and plan on attending something we feel could drastically improve local government.

The meeting is to air feeling about the possibility of the township and city merging.

The meeting between the local governmental units is a giant step towards needed cooperation.

Both the township and city have some similiar problems and perhaps they can be best discussed in a meeting of this nature.

There is no commitment being asked by either group for merger at this time.

It's just a chance for everyone to hash out ideas on whether or not it is feasible, so we encourage you to attend.

If it Fitz — It's all in the family

By Jim Fitzgerald

In honor of the birthday of Terrible Jean, the Fitz clan gathered at my house and voted unanimously that I should quit picking on President Ford and instead write nice things about my relatives.

The only hesitant vote came from sister Linda, the family expert on national affairs. She hadn't heard about Nixon resigning.

I don't know how we got on the subject of Stupid Jim writing a newspaper column. I'm always humble about my fame which has now spread to the very edges of my backyard. Perhaps the family was set off by the birthday cake which featored the regular heading of this column, in blue frosting, with my picture firmly implanted under Plexiglas.

"I thought it was my birthday," Terrible Jean said.

"Shut up" I said humbly. "You're always picking on me. Read the fine type."

It said "50 years of Terrible Jean is plenty."

There is nothing remarkable about Terrible Jean becoming 50 and I mention it only by way of pointing out that she does have a remarkable birthday coming. A computerized projection, just like on TV election night, indicates that in a few years Terrible Jean will become the first daughter older than her mother.

Mother was there, of couse, performing her usual party task. Which is to tell me to be quiet while everyone else is singing.

Most of the real singing is done by Terrible Jean, brother-in-law Jack, and my wife. They sound like the Andrews Sisters except Jack is bald. They always sing Irish songs which is nice for brother-in-law Tony, the Arab, who said if they didn't change their tune he would call his camel into the house.

Brother-in-law Bill, husband of Terrible Jean, is generally conceded to be the only family member who sings worse than I do. Despite several requests, we sang a duet. Tony's camel got up and went home.

Sister Mary Lou, wife of singer Jack, doesn't sing, although her lips are usually moving. She is counting his drinks. On her 50th birthday, the family plans to chip in and buy her a pocket computer.

So that no feelings will be hurt, it should be mentioned that the 4th sister, Nancy the Itch, couldn't be present. She lives in Cincinnati and couldn't make the trip because her husband, the family klutz, had a Little League tournament that weekend. He plays right field naturally.

Aunt Florence and Aunt Madeline were there. Florence and her late husband got me into the newspaper business. She parked the cross she bears outside, next to Tony's camel.

Madeline cried at all the singing. I thought it was a natural reaction, similar to being tear gassed. But Madeline insisted she was crying because she was happy to be part of such a wonderful family.

So am I

Meet Charlevoix

Meet Jan Raecke

Perhaps one of the most exciting developments in special education exists right here in Charlevoix.

It's called the Bergmann Center, and today the Charlevoix Courier asks Mrs. Jan Raecke, director of the center, to explain the program.

She became director in February, 1973, and is also working on a special education degree at Central Michigan University.

She and her husband, Mike, have two daughters. She is a life-long resident of Charlevoix.

COURIER: What is the Bergmann Center?

RAECKE: Bergmann Center is a work activity center for mentally and/or physically handicapped adults. Primarily what our program is all about is to teach good work habits and good work attitudes to our clients. We have 17 people who come to work five days a week from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. These handicapped people are referred to as clients. We have a staff of four full-time employees and one part-time driver.

COURIER: What is your program at Bergmann Center?

RAECKE: This is best explained by relating what a typical day at the Bergmann Center is like. The first responsibility of a client when coming to work in the morning is to sign in on a regular time card. The clients then go into the work area and start to work on various contract jobs. Our main contract is silk-screening for Paul-Reed Industries. We start silk screening hot seats in mid-March and work straight through to the end of November. While approximately eight clients could be involved with silk-screening, the rest of the clients could very well be working on inserting gold rings into luggage handles for Paul-Reed. There could also be some clients recycling plastic spools for Hoskins Wire Manufacturing, while others could be working on net flower buds for Frank's Flowers.

At 10:30 a.m. there is a 15 minute break every day, which is used as a free time in any way they want. Then everyone goes back to work until lunch time.

The clients have an hour lunch period and bring their own lunch. And by 12:30 you can usually witness a very exciting caroms game. At 1 p.m. everyone goes back to work very much the same way everybody does in a work situation.

We have another 15 minute break at 2:30 p.m. and the clients sign out at 4 p.m. to go home.

COURIER: Do you do work other than contract work?

RAECKE: Actually, there are several times of the year when we are low on contract work. During those times, we have two projects that we work on. The women in our community will be most familiar with a stained glass candle center piece. We call it a love-lite. Our other project is called, "ARC Spinner". These spinners are designed primarily to catch the large lake trout in our area. Many of Charlevoix's finest fishermen will attest to this fact. Both of these products can be purchased locally.

COURIER: How is your program financed?

RAECKE: The Charlevoix Community Chest has supported our program for many years. We also receive donations from East Jordan Community, Emmet County United Way, Charlevoix Board of Commissioners, Emmet County Board of Commissioners and Antrim County Board of Commissioners. With these local monies, we are able to enter into a written contract with Northern Michigan Community Mental Health Services Board (an agency of the Michigan Department of Mental Health). We need local dollars in order to qualify for matching funds from the Department of Mental Health. Those funds are used to pay for building upkeep, transportation and staff salaries. All the money earned from contracts from local industries in turn is paid to our clients in the form of a paycheck every two weeks.

COURIER: What is your role with Bergmann Center?

RAECKE: Under the direction of the Bergmann Center Board of Directors, my main responsibility is to see that the complete operation runs smoothly, and to insure that the clients have meaningful contract work. Our supervisor, Mrs. Jessie Cunningham, has direct supervision of the grants and oversees the actual contract work. Julie Odmar is a supervisor's aid. Mike Lannen is our driver-aid. Mike's job is to pick up clients in the morning, addition to picking up and delivering contract work. We also have a part-time driver, Leo Knapp, who takes our clients home at night.

We have a contractual arrangement with the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District whereby we provide services to their handicapped students under 25 years of age that is required by state law.

COURIER: How was the Bergmann Center Started?

RAECKE: The Charlevoix Association for Retarded Children was formed in 1954 to provide a school program for their retarded children. After the school had been operating for a short time, Lillian Bergmann was asked to be their teacher. She stayed with the day care center until 1965. In 1965, the education and training of our handicapped children became the responsibility of the State Department of Education. This was as a result of the passage of the Phillips Amendment in 1964. This bill created special education as we know it today. Because Mrs. Bergmann was not a qualified teacher, she left the program. However, the schools were not responsible for handicapped people over the age of 21 and unfortunately we had three people in the program that were over 21. The parents of these people again turned to Mrs. Bergmann and asked for her help. Mr. and Mrs. Bergmann built an addition on to their farm home and started the first work activities center. When the program outgrew this addition, it was moved to our present location at 201 East Garfield in Charlevoix. The Charlevoix Association for Retarded Children previously had built this building and had rented it to the Intermediate School District. The program has grown to 17 clients and now operates in a building twice its original size. The building was dedicated this summer and officially named the Lillian Bergmann Center.

Six New Commissioners

Charlevoix County Democrats Tell How They Won

By Fran Martin

Democratic gains in one-time Republican strong holds came as little surprise to many Charlevoix County Democrats this week.

They claim Charlevoix County residents were just discontented and wanted a change in local level government.

In total, six Republicans lost their prestigious county commission spots last week.

Voters in 12 of the 15 commission districts actually had two parties to decide from–the first time in years.

Martin Paul, Charlevoix County Democratic chairman, attributes the Democratic success to the discontentment with present government officials at all levels.

He said newly elected commissioners will tend to stabilize the commission and keep one party from controlling the county as the Republicans have in the past.

"We feel that we will represent all people in the county, not just Democrats," he said.

Paul unseated Charles Kessler who was seeking election to the board for the first time after being appointed to fill an unexpired term.

Oscar Ward, who upset veteran incumbent Kenneth A. Staley in Charlevoix's District 14, said the timing was right.

"People feel that present government officials on all levels are out of touch with reality...they are out of touch with the voters," he said.

There isn't the communication between elected officials and the electorate. People don't like this and the only way of getting their message across is at the polls."

He said a personal contact with the people in District 14 told them that he was interested in his neighbor and so would represent them.

Ward also added that everyone knows the junior members (those elected last week) will not be taking over the board. "We will play it by ear," he said. "Anyone who knows me, knows I'm a conservative."

"I don't think there is any way one can justify an 18 percent increase in the county budget in the midst of a recession."

Melvin Niswander, who will represent District 8 in the city of East Jordan after winning over veteran incumbent Thora Kotowich, said he felt he won because people want a change. He said people are willing to take a chance with a newcomer because they (the people) want someone else to represent them.

"They are being taxed to death and the people, as a result, want someone whom they feel will try to stop the spending that demands more taxes," he said.

Niswander is a contractor and has operated his own business for several years.

Michael A. Fulkerson will represent District 12 in Boyne City after defeating John D. Kujawski, veteran incumbent, by only five votes, 137-132.

He said he felt he won because the people in his district were given a choice. People in the district did not like the attitude of commissioners regarding the expenditure of money, he said.

"The board just didn't seem to have any concern about saving money," he said.

They seemed to feel that if we don't take it and spend it, someone else will".

Fulkerson is an abstractor, has been employed in Emmet and Grand Traverse Counties and has been a resident of Charlevoix county for 2½ years.

Ralph E. Harmon, who will represent District 7, defeated William H. Carson, a Republican by a vote of 278 to 170 for the seat presently occupied by Anthony Kullik who was not seeking re-election. He will represent the people of Boyne Valley and Hudson townships.

He said he won because the whole country was asking for a change (in last week's general election).

He said he would do his best to represent the people in his district.

He went on to explain that he hoped to keep in touch with township boards and attend township meetings to let them know what is going on in the county.

"There has been little communication between the two in the past," he explained.

He added that he proposed to stand up for what he believes to be right; to work for the best interest of the people and make the money go as far as it will.

Harmon, a native of Boyne Falls, is a partner in a contracting firm which has been in business for nine years.

City Police Are Cheap

The City of Charlevoix spent a smaller percentage of its 1973 expenditures for its police department than either Boyne City or East Jordan.

Figures compiled by the Northwest Regional Planning and Development Commission reveal that expenditures for Charlevoix were $78,135, or 5.9 percent of total budget. Boyne City spent $88,700, or 16.8 percent, and East Jordan spent $57,532, or 9.4 percent on police protection.

These figures amount to per capita cost for police protection of $21.15 for Charlevoix, $28.57 for Boyne City, and $26.97 for East Jordan.

This year the budget for police departments in all three cities increased.

In Charlevoix it was up 6.2 percent, in Boyne City it was up 27.1 percent, and in East Jordan it was up 1.1 percent. All of the increases were part of increased total municipal budgets.

ROUTINE CHECK

THE ARREST

Drunk Driving-- Guilty or Not

By PEG OHLE

A Boyne City man was stopped by the Sheriff's Department Friday morning in the south parking lot of Charlevoix High School after running a stop sign at Garfield and May Streets.

After failing to pass coordination tests, and after Under Sheriff James McCallum noticed the odor of alcohol on the man's breath, he was placed under arrest and taken to the county jail.

Failing to pass breatholizer tests, the man was booked for driving while under the influence of alcohol and immediately placed on trial before 90th District Court Judge Arthur Reibel.

A jury of seven women and five men was impanelled to hear the case, argued by Michael Gibbons and David Fershee, as prosecuting and defense attorneys.

The jury was out for only twelve minutes when it returned with a 10 to 2 "not guilty" verdict. Time limitations prevented enough consideration of the case to reach a unanimous decision.

Speedy justice? It was indeed an example of speed, but it was a contrived case.

The arrest and trial were staged so that the high school senior class could learn how law enforcement agencies and courts operate.

It was all arranged by seniors Cheryl Coppens and Nancy McPhillips after discussing the possibility of such an endeavor with Attorney Fershee.

Brock Dagner played the part of the drunken driver. He was given a quantity of alcohol at the high school about an hour before his nine o'clock "arrest". It was enough to make his replies to McCallum "smart alecky", and to fumble for his driver's license, proof of registration, and proof of insurance.

All through his questioning of Dagner, the frisking, and preparing him for delivery to the "jail", McCallum explained to the watching students what he was doing.

The high school cafetria served as jail. After being taken there, Dagner was advised of his rights and asked if he would consent to a breatholizer test. Again, McCallum took special pains to be sure both the defendent and the students knew what was going on.

He explained how the breatholizer works and what alcoholic content of the breath determines drunkenness. (Dagner's breath did not meet the level of drunkenness, but for purposes of the case, test figures were changed.)

The cafeteria then became the courtroom. Everyone stood as Judge Reibel appeared in his black robes and seated himself behind a small table. Gibbons and Fershee were asked if they were satisfied with the jury (the jury of students had been selected the previous day to save time), and McCallum was sworn in as the only witness.

Both attorneys examined and cross-examined the witness with vigor, using all the techniques they would have used in a regular courtroom. The students loved it.

When Dagner took the stand, he, too, was examined carefully by Gibbons and Fershee, answering questions about how many drinks he had had at his "Brother Joe's" house the night before, what kind of drinks, over how long a period of time, who else was there, etc. The young defendent's answers also delighted the students. "The guy (sheriff) asked me to blow in his face."

Judge Reibel charged the jury in the same manner he does in his regular court, telling them they could find Dagner guilty of driving while under the influence of alcohol, impaired driving, or not guilty.

The jury left the courtroom for deliberation just a few minutes before lunch was to be served in the cafeteria, so they had to hurry. It was a 12-man jury instead of the usual six used in misdemeanor trials in order to involve as many students as possible.

"Hey, this is just like Perry Mason," one student was heard to remark as the trial ended. It was a realistic enactment and an educational experience that Charlevoix High School's seniors will remember.

We should do more of this kind of thing," remarked Nelson Green, teacher of Government at the school.

Cheryl Coppens said it had gone better than she had expected. "Some of the kids were asking this morning if they could serve on the jury," she added.

Students who served on the jury were Ron Winchester, Mark Rybicke, George Kruskie, Debbie Wood, Sue Donaldson, Kathy Meadows, Kathy Kerner, Kim Carter, Frank Muma, Jan Graf, Judy Gould and Tim Borowiak. The latter served as foreman.

Mrs. Pat Lass, District Court Recorder, recorded the proceedings so that they could be played back in classrooms later.

Little Traverse and Lockwood Hold Clinic

Lockwood-MacDonald Hospital and Burns Clinic-Little Traverse Hospital will be co-hosting a free blood-screening clinic in conjunction with the Michigan Diabetes Association during its annual observance of National Diabetes Week, November 17-23.

This clinic is not intended for the known diabetic, but rather for all other persons in the area who wish to receive a free test to find out whether or not they have a diabetic condition.

The clinic will be held from 1-4 p.m. on Wednesday and Thursday, November 20 and 21. Blood samples will be drawn at Lockwood-MacDonald and sent to Burns Clinic--Little Traverse Hospital for testing.

Patients whose test indicates a "positive" result will be notified by the Michigan Diabetes association to report to their family physician for further testing. The patient's physician will also receive notification of the "positive" test results.

Diabetes is most accurately detected by testing the patient after he/she has eaten a meal. Therefore, the following pre-test meals for breakfast and lunch are suggested:

Breakfast: Fruit (banana, canned fruit or large glass of fruit juice)

1 cup cereal (cooked or flakes)

½ cup milk

2 tsp. sugar

2 pieces toast or bread

1 Tbsp. jelly or jam

Coffee or tea (cream and sugar if desired)

Lunch: Vegetable or cream soup

5 crackers

Meat or cheese sandwich (with two slices of bread)

Dessert (cake, pie, pudding, etc.)

1 cup milk

or

Hamburger and bun

French fries or potato chips

Dessert

Large glass of pop (not diet)

Finish any of these meals two (2) hours before you wish to take the test and report to Lockwood-MacDonald 1 hour and 30 minutes later. Meals should be eaten within a 15-minute time period. It is important to include all of the suggested foods in the meal you choose, and in the amounts indicated. Do not drink (other than water), eat candy, cough drops, smoke, chew gum, etc., after you have eaten the suggested meal until the blood sample is taken.

You could have diabetes without any of the symptoms. In fact, anyone, at any age, can become diabetic.

Those most likely to develop diabetes, however, are relatives of diabetics or people who are overweight.

The earlier the disease is discovered and proper control is established, the better the diabetic's chances are of living an active life.

It is therefore in your best interests to be tested periodically for diabetes.

It is also important to be able to recognize the most common symptoms of diabetes; excessive thirst, frequent urination, constant hunger, loss of weight, changes in vision, and slow healing of cuts and scratches.

The American Diabetes Association indicates that at least 4,400,000 Americans have diabetes, of whom 1,600,000 are undetected.

The incidence of diabetes is markedly increasing; approximately 1,000,000 additional diabetics are diagnosed every three years. The need for early detection and prevention is clear.

Many diabetics are discovered annually by the American Diabetes Association's Diabetes Detection Drive held each year during National Diabetes Week. Last year, 32,366 persons were tested in Michigan. Of these 673, or 2 percent of the total tested, were detected as new diabetics.

Diabetes must be controlled. If your blood test is positive, you will be guided in learning proper control of the disease. For many diabetics, only careful diet and regulated exercise is needed. Some, in addition, must use Insulin (which is deficient in most diabetics) or oral drugs.

Control is not a cure; nor does it, in itself, necessarily prevent the complications of diabetes, including blindness, heart attack, and kidney failure. But there are promising research developments that could make possible significant breakthroughs in the next five to ten years. To hasten the advent of a cure, greatly accelerated progress in diabetics research is urgently needed.

Solid Waste That Is

You're Worth Five Pounds A Day

Five pounds of solid waste–garbage, glass, metal, paper, plastic, wood and other–are generated by the average person per day.

The problem of how to dispose of this waste in a feasible, economic way that will meet state regulations has been studied by the Charlevoix County Planning Commission.

A report on the study was presented to the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners last week. The report includes many interesting figures.

The City of Charlevoix and Charlevoix Township now generate over 6,000 tons of waste per year. This includes domestic waste, municipal waste, waste from manufacturing, construction, wholesale and retail trade, and government enterprises.

The largest part of this tonnage, 2,989 tons, comes from households. The second largest part, 1,044 tons, is municipal waste--street sweepings, tree trimmings, litter, sewage sludge, and general city refuse.

Projected increases in population, the continuation of the rise in standard of living, more stringent laws governing the disposal and

Grandvue Medical Care Plan 26-Room Addition Program

Plans for an addition of 26 rooms to Grandvue Medical Facility were presented to the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners last week by architect S.T. Gerganoff of Ypsilanti.

The addition would include four four-bed and five two-bed units, to bring the total capacity of the facility up to 99 patients.

Estimated basic building costs for the addition are estimated at slightly over $400,000. However, the architect said that because of constantly rising costs this figure could not be guaranteed for more than three months.

Whether or not the addition is built in the near future depends upon decisions of the County Board of Social Services and the County Board of Commissioners, and the availability of funds.

There is no question about the need for extended care facilities for senior citizens in the county. Grandvue always has a waiting list of patients being released from local hospitals because they no longer need acute hospital care, but do need nursing supervision.

Medicare does not cover care of patients in hospitals after physicians have determined they no longer need regular hospital attention. However, Medicare will pay for care in nursing homes for an extended period of time after hospital release.

If there is not room in extended care facilities such as Grandvue, patients must return to their homes, and if there is no one there to take care of them, the problem becomes serious.

The Resolution was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Plumm, Selph, Timms, Alderwoman Wallace, Aldermen Wood and McRae. Nays: None. Absent: None.

After considerable discussion regarding the hiring of a building inspector on a fee basis, Alderman McRae made a motion that the City of Charlevoix hire Alvin Ranger as Building Inspector for six months subject to renewal, on a fee basis, less 10 percent for administrative expenses.

Alderman Plumm offered the following Resolution and moved its adoption, supported by Alderman Wood.

PROPOSED AMENDMENT TO ZONING ORDINANCE NO. 203 BE IT RESOLVED that consideration be given to amending city of Charlevoix Zoning Ordinance No. 203, by deleting the language contained in Article X, Section 1001, Subsection 2 in its entirety and substituting therefore the following provision: "2. Garages, gas stations on highway, the underground storage of gasoline and petroleum products, 'providing such storage is not utilized for bulk plant purposes', machine and blacksmith shops, warehouses and storage buildings and uses, shops and cabin camps, trailer camps, and roadside eating places."

Mayor Hansen announced that effective January 1, 1975, all political subdivisions will become subject to the Michigan Employment Security Compensation Act, or establish as of that date, a local unemployment compensation system equivalent to the system provided by the Act. He was advised that Mr. Wexstaff and the Clerk have made reservations to attend a workshop in Traverse City, November 7, 1974 sponsored by the Municipal League to assist Municipal officials in complying with the Act.

Alderman McRae gave a brief accounting of the City Charter approved in 1905 and the findings of the Charter Committee's study. He expressed a wish to acquire pictures of past mayors to be framed and hung in the Council Chamber and to compile their accomplishments. Alderwoman Wallace suggested that the Historical Society might be willing to assist for the Bicentennial Project and offered to assist him in getting the project started.

Alderman McRae asked Mr. Wexstaff to have a list prepared of City employees for each Council member; listing them by department and their addresses, designating summer help. He also suggested that the Council as a group take a trip around town to see all the unused property in the City, as evidence that Charlevoix has not yet run out of land; there are several acres which have not yet been developed.

Alderman Plumm read a letter from the Chamber of Commerce dated October 28, 1974 requesting the City to lower their present rent ($100 monthly) to a token payment of $1.00 for one year of rent. It was discussed and referred to Public Relations Committee meeting November 6, 1974.

Alderman Plumm offered the following Resolution and moved its adoption, supported by Alderman McRae. Alderwoman Wallace asked if the problem of snow removal from streets had been solved and was advised the street committee would meet November 11, 1974, with the department head present. She announced that the recreation committee will meet Wednesday, November 6, 1974 at 7:30 p.m. Mrs. Wallace said she wished to go on record as taking exception to the manner in which Mr. Pease was hired.

Mayor Hansen informed Alderwoman Wallace that Council accepts the dissent.

Alderman McRae said a program is available through the County whereby Mr. Pease could be paid without any expense to the City, and thinks we should have taken advantage of it.

Mr. Wexstaff claimed he was trying to get it set up in the program.

The Finance Committee having examined bills totaling $94,867.67 find them correct and recommend the bills be allowed. Moved by Alderman Plumm, supported by Alderman Timms that the bills be allowed and orders drawn for their amounts. Vince Olach Looks Back

Chamber Handles Telegrams

Vince Olach, who once delivered Western Union telegrams in Charlevoix, now has a Western Union machine in his offices in the Chamber of Commerce Building.

The machine, which has reposed in several stores and offices in the city since the Western Union office was closed several years ago, was moved to the Chamber's offices recently in order to assure continued Western Union service to Charlevoix.

Olach recalls that in his early Western Union days the company was located where the Courier now has offices. He traveled around the city on his bicycle hand-delivering the familiar yellow envelopes. In those days most Western Union message bore bad news. There were even distinguishing marks indicating the kind of news it was--one star for serious illness, two stars for death.

Today, according to Olach, most Western Union messages contain good news. They are messages of congratulations, holiday wishes, birthday greetings.

In making room for the Western Union machine in Chamber offices Olach hopes it will be more convenient for local people to use the facility. He also hopes to add about $400 a year to Chamber coffers from commissions on messages.

Telegrams, night letters and money orders can be sent through the Western Union machine. Other messages such as mailgrams and personal opinion statements must be sent by phone. So also must orders for flowers, candy and gifts.

The telephone number for this service is 1-800-325-5300.

Chamber of Commerce offices are open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday. At other times the above number may be used for sending all messages.

Consumer Power Asks

Don't Shoot At Power Lines

Marksmanship practice should be confined to certified targets and not electric line insulators, warns R. B. Dahlquist, Consumers Power Company's district manager.

Two separate incidents in Western Michigan resulted in 6,800 electric customers being out of service for periods ranging up to several hours.

Both incidents were caused by an insulator being shot off the crossarm of a utility pole. The porcelain or glass insulators keep the electricity from flowing into the crossarms of the poles.

When the insulators are shot off, they shortcircuit the electricity and cause the interruption of service. In some cases, the pole burns causing possible fire damage to the surrounding area.

In the past year, the company has investigated 60 incidents of service interruptions due to gunshots damaging insulators, transmission lines or substations. It has cost the utility over $18,000 to repair this damage.

"The statistic we are most concerned about is that nearly 52,870 customers have experienced service interruptions because of errant gunshots during the past year," Dahlquist said.

Dahlquist pointed out that heating systems are knocked out of service when the electricity is interrupted and that an energized line that falls to the ground could cause a brush fire or seriously injure anyone who comes into contact with it.

He also cautioned that public health and safety agencies could be unable to react to an emergency if their electric power is lost.

Dahlquist said that most incidents of gunshot damage occur in rural areas, but lately several cases have occurred near larger communities.

Consumers Power is continuing to patrol electric transmission and distribution lines to discourage marksmen from using the insulators and lines for target practice.

He said the company has standing reward offers for information resulting in conviction of persons who damage Consumers Power equipment.

Thorsen Elected Again

Walter Thorsen of East Jordan was elected chairman of the Charlevoix County Planning Commission for his 13th year at last week's meeting of the commission.

Michigan Shores Conference

Girls Take Second League Championship

By CHUCK WRIGHT

Twenty-nine straight wins in league play. Fifteen-0 for 1974. Two consecutive Michigan-Huron Shores Conference championships. Impressive? You bet it is.

The Charlevoix girls varsity basketball team achieved all those goals last week by whipping Boyne City 69-36 and Petoskey 50-37.

The incredible string of victories began in the last two games of 1972 and continued throughout the regular season of 1973 and 1974.

The squad rose to the occasion against Petoskey, a team they barely beat by two points earlier in the season.

The second meeting of the two fine teams was almost a replay-- except that the Rayders caught fire in the middle of the fourth quarter and pulled away.

With the score tied at 36 all, Lee Steelman intercepted a Petoskey pass and drove in to score. This ignited the entire Rayder team.

Employing the same full court man-to-man press which has won so many games for them, Charlevoix repeatedly came up with the big steals resulting in easy buckets for Cheryl Pence and Steelman.

Charlevoix outscored Petoskey 14-1 the rest of the game to turn the close contest into a rout.

"It was probably the best game we've played this year," declared coach Toni Felter.

"Our defense was excellent. The press and our tight coverage on Jeanne Foltz were the keys to this one."

Foltz, Petoskey's sharpshooter who had burned the Rayders for 21 points in their first meeting, managed only 13.

Unlike their other close contests this year, Charlevoix managed to lead at the end of the first quarter. Von Priest's long outside shots and Pence and Steelman's steady play underneath kept Petoskey's defense guessing. But Petoskey did not quit.

With Charlevoix ahead 33-29 at the end of the third quarter and threatening to pull away, Petoskey fought back. Taking advantage of a Rayder cold streak, the larger Petoskey team began to dominate the boards until they tied the game. Then Charlevoix came on strong. Pence led all scorers with 16. Steelman followed with 14, Priest 8, Tammy Penney 8, Heidi Dove 2, and Denise Boss 2.

The Boyne City game earlier in the week was a rout in which Felter used the substitutes freely. Still, Pence scored 27 and Steelman had 24.

The Rayders can close out a perfect season with a victory against Gaylord tonight in front of a Parent's Night crowd. They are heavily favored.

Then its on to the state district tournament in Elk Rapids this weekend. The team has been eagerly awaiting a chance to redeem their poor showing last year and go on to win a state title.

The J.V.'s climaxed a fine 13-2 season with two wins last week also.

Independent Basketball Now In Full Swing

By CHUCK WRIGHT

Freedman Artcraft outlasted Bob's Sunoco 66-57 last week in Independent Basketball A League action. The game was tied at 45 apiece with six minutes to play before Freedman's began pulling away.

Using the fast break, Freedman's ran Bob's into the ground. The tie ballgame was broken by Mike Bade on a beautiful pass from Rich Kelly. Kelly then scored on a rebound of his own missed shot.

After Denney Crain blocked a shot, Roger Crain raced down the court with the ball and fed off to Denny for two. Following a 20 foot basket by Roger and a foul shot by Denny, Freedman's suddenly found themselves in front 54-45.

The nine point lead was the biggest of the night for either team. The first three quarters was a tense struggle in which neither team could gain any real momentum.

As usual, Roger Crain paced the Freedman offense with 22 points while Denny Crain and Bade chipped in 11 and 10 points respectively. Ike Boss led the way for the solid Bob's squad with 14. Hud Drenth and DeYoung each added 13.

The big B league game of the week was Kenney's Excavating upset of Village Milkhouse. Kenney's led all the way in the 60-56 victory as they are now tied for first in the Lake Charlevoix division with John Deere.

Jumping out to a quick 17-7 first quarter lead, Kenney's managed to hold on to the ten point lead until late in the game thanks largely to the offensive efforts of Devries and VadStebum who scored 19 and 16 points. Village Milkhouse was paced by Gary Novotny with 18 and Way with 15.

In other A league games, Medusa sunk the Coast Guard 85-22. Five men scored in double figures for Medusa. Randy DeYoung led the way with 20. Kevin Swanson added 18, Bruce Meggison 14, Doug Winnel and Dave Swanson each had 12.

Town House remained in a tie with Freedman's by clobbering Haggard's 78-27. Dave Strawbridge paced the winners with 20, Danny McKenzie had 15, Speck Coleman 13, and Stan Martin 11. Andy Peters and Gowther had 10 for Haggard's.

In the Lake Michigan division of the B league, Russell's Shell took sole possession of first place with a convincing 63-45 win over Alray Cottages.

Holding a narrow 23-22 lead at the half, Russell's pulled away in the second half primarily on Larry Brock's 14 points.

Brock led all scorers with 22. Ed Holm chipped in 14 while Mike Crain had 11 for Russell's.

Alray stayed close due to the offensive efforts of Stu Blanchard and Carl Swanson who had 20 and 15 points respectively.

Charlevoix County State Bank won its first game defeating Andy's Tire World 55-50. Dennis LaCroix had 16 and Larry Skippergosh 15 for the Bank. The Jennechek brothers had combined for 33 points for Andy's.

Medusa B nipped Jim's Clark 42-39. Medusa led early but had to hang on as a strong rally by Jim's fell just short. Charley Borths had 15 and Stan Johston 10 for Medusa. McCleanon had 18 for Jim's.

In the B league's Lake Charlevoix division, John Deere fell behind in the early going but came back to defeat Wojan Aluminum 52-45. Dave Moyer paced the winners with 19 while Donward had 17 for the losers.

First State Bank ousted Muma's 41-32. Incredibly, no player for the Bank had double figures as balance was their key. Putman had 14 for Muma's.

High scorers for the week: Hot shooting Roger Crain had 22 in the A league while Larry Broek had 22 in the B.

Boys Start Practice

With the Charlevoix Rayders' first game scheduled for Nov. 26, Coach Barry Anderson is conducting regular practice sessions as he readies his team for the opener with Harbor Springs.

The game will be played in Charlevoix prior to the Thanksgiving holiday.

A check on the candidates for the 1974-75 squad shows three regulars returning from last season including Mike Streeter, a guard and Dave Martineheck, a 6-1 center, both seniors and Bob Alger, junior guard or forward.

Also returning are six seniors who lettered including Dan Greene, Kevin Stokes, the tallest man on the team at 6-2, Chuck Faust and Jim Donaldson, all candidates for forward positions; Frank Muma and Kevin Martin, senior guards.

Juniors up from J-V ranks who will be contenders for starting assignment are Mark Hosmer, Mike Skippergosh, Jon Greene, Casey Culbertson, Eric Slone and Ed Russell.

Coach Anderson said of this year's team "We lack height but we will have speed. I am hopeful that this will compensate, in part, for the lack of any tall players."

He said that the team has a fine attitude, a carry-over from the football season, has been practicing regularly and certainly can be counted on to give its best.

Girls Beat Boyne City

The Charlevoix girls' basketball team posted its twelfth Michigan-Huron Shores Conference win of the season by downing Boyne City 69-36 in a recent game played at Charlevoix.

The Rayderettes will close out their season Tuesday when they host Gaylord.

The Charlevoix J-V team won by a score of 30-8.

The Charlevoix team got off to a slow start and trailed 14 to 6 at the quarter but came back strong in the second period to pour in 26 points to go ahead 32-24 at halftime.

A strong Rayder defense held the Boyne City quintet to three points as the second half got underway for a 54-27 advantage going into the final period.

Cheryl Pence and Lee Steelman continued to carry the scoring load as the former dumped in 27 points and Steelman added 24 for the game. Diane Johnechek had 10 for the visitors.

Teacher Feature

Meet Glen Taylor

Upon entering this week's featured teacher's room, I noticed two things. One, a pretty blonde standing beside his desk, receiving help on her homework, and two, an electric calculator atop his desk.

I am unsure how often a young lady is found beside him, but the calculator can be found there daily.

Who is this math wizard? He is Mr. Glen Taylor, presently teaching tenth grade geometry, eleventh grade advanced algebra, and twelfth grade trigonometry at Charlevoix High School. He is also the sophomore class advisor.

Glen, originally from Ellsworth, attended Central Michigan University where he received both his Bachelor's and Master's Degrees. Glen began teaching at Croswell-Lexington High School, stayed there six years, and then came to C.H.S. and has taught here nine years.

Besides teaching, Glen is involved in many outside activitites. In the first place, he and his family (wife Marcia, daughter Karen and son Jim) are active members of the Methodist Church. Glen has held many positions in the church such as Adult Leader for Bible study, Treasurer of the Sunday School, and member of the Board of Trustees.

Other extracurricular activities include sports. Glen is a member of an independent softball team and won the "Larry McBride's Sportsman's Trophy" three years ago. He is presently the manager of an independent basketball team. He also enjoys hunting, fishing and playing golf.

Another extracurricular activity, and this one takes up much of his summer vacation, is doing odd jobs around the house, such as carpentry work and painting.

With the variety of activities Glen is involved in, I wonder how he calculates enough time to do them?

She's Engaged

MRS. GEORGE D. Currie has announced the engagement of her daughter, Elizabeth Ann, to Ronald Dean Elliott of West Mansfield, Ohio.

Explains Republican Woes

Bob Davis Doesn't Expect Many Changes

Not since the re-organization of county government six years ago when the 25-member Board of Supervisors was dissolved after the county was divided into 15 districts and the Board of Commissioners came into being will there be as many new members when the board meets to organize early in January.

When the smoke cleared away in November 1968 following the "one man, one vote" re-districting of the state and the county, nine of the original 25 supervisors were returned as commissioners. The six new commissioners were candidates to succeed supervisors who were not candidates to the new board. All were elected under the Republican banner.

Last week, five incumbents, four of them seasoned members, were unseated by newcomers to the political arena. A sixth Democrat won over his opponent for a seat being vacated by a Republican incumbent who was not a candidate for re-election.

The major difference between January 1968 and January 1975 is the fact that all six newcomers won on Democratic ballot in a county that, until now, has been a Republican stronghold.

Whot difference will this make when the board meets to re-organize in January? "I foresee no drastic changes" Ira L. 'Bob' Davis, present chairman of the board, said in onswer to the question. "As far as I'm concerned, there will be six new members who will be joining the team, so to speak. All are new to county government...in fact...in most instances, ony form of government. As it is with new members, regardless of party affiliation, the first year or two is a learning period" Davis odded.

In answer to a second question Can you account for the success of Democratic candidates in a traditionally Republican stronghold? Davis said that he felt it reflected the trend seen across the country. "People were disillusioned and they wanted a change. They voted the party rather than the man" Davis said by way of explanation.

Rev. Hewitt Johnson
Sunday Services
7:30 a.m. and 11 p.m.

Services for Episcopalians in Charlevoix began in the summer of 1883 and Christ Church was organized formally as a Mission in 1887. The cornerstone of the present building was laid July 30, 1894 and by 1903 the Church was equipped to hold services both winter and summer. For the greater part of Christ Church's history it has been served by clergy from Petoskey or Traverse City. The first full-time Priest arrived in the summer of 1953, although much work has been accomplished by the devotion of the part-time Vicars. Since 1953 the Mission has been served by resident clergy, although the present Vicar, The Rev'd Hewitt V. Johnston, is also in charge of St. Paul's Episcopal Church in Elk Rapids.

Sunday services are at 7:30 and 11:00 A.M. and are usually Holy Communion. The Prayer Book is always used at the early service and the New Liturgies are used at the later service. A mid-week service of Holy Communion is held on Wednesday at 12 noon, and services are held on Saint's Days and Holy Days as announced. There is an active Episcopal Church Woman chapter and a full range of Church activities: Church School, study groups and other functions.

Visitors are welcomed at all of the services of Christ Episcopal Church and are urged to stay for the fellowship of the coffee hour which is held every Sunday right after the late service. Fr. Johnston can usually be reached mornings in his office at the Vicarage where the phone number is 547-9406.

No Beds At Grandvue

Hospital Having Money Problem

By PEG OHLE

The lack of space in Grandvue Medical Care Facility for older patients no longer needing acute care at Charlevoix Area Hospital is causing financial problems for the hospital.

Medicare will not pay for hospitalization of patients after it has been determined they could get along with the type of care provided in an extended care facility such as Grandvue.

When there is no vacant bed at Grandvue or another convalescent facility, and when the patient cannot be cared for at home, the hospital has no choice but to keep the patient.

Records show that 80 percent of senior citizens released from the hospital who need further care are placed on a waiting list for Grandvue rather than receiving immediate admittance.

Medicare did pay for 182 days of hospital care for patients not qualifying under its tenure rules because of a "waiver of liability" agreement. However, Medicare did not pay for 108 days of such care, leaving the hospital with unpaid bills of $7,427.

The hospital has now lost its "waiver of liability" rights because of the large number of waivers in the past.

The hospital also has another case involving 24 days of care amounting to $1,650 which may not be paid by Medicare, and two other cases pending.

All of the above losses are in addition to losses in previous years.

In the past 12 months, 24 released senior citizens were sent to Grandvue from the Charlevoix Area Hospital and five were sent to Beverly Manor in Petoskey because of lack of room at Grandvue.

Mrs. Jack Cross of the hospital board and Richard Krueger, hospital administrator, appeared before the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners last week to cite the critical need for more extended care facilities in the county, and to urge the expansion of Grandvue.

Waste

burning of waste on private property, and increased commercial and industrial productivity will raise the waste tonnage in years to come, the report says.

If the projections are correct, the area will produce over 8,000 tons of waste in 1980 and almost 11,000 tons of waste in 1990. Suggestions on how to dispose of this waste in the years to come, not only Charlevoix waste but waste from the whole county, are made in the report.

Burying the waste in landfills is still the best method of getting rid of it, according to the report. However, such landfills will have to meet strict state regulations as to location and upkeep.

The Planning Commission study and report was made at the request of the Board of Commissioners, who were complying with an act that requires such studies be made by every county in the state.

Merger

down merger efforts.

Charlevoix Township residents turned down the annexation question five years ago.

However, many say it was defeated because there was no guarantee of township representation on the council.

They say this proposed merger would involve the township directly in forming a new government.

Hansen says if the township residents were properly informed the merger question will stand a better chance.

"The main thing we are concerned about is if these people want to work together," Hansen said.

However at a Charlevoix Township meeting held last week, residents indicated they were not interested in merging with the city.

None of the township board members have gone on record as either approving or opposing the move.

Township Supervisor Oscar Stroud said he would not personally back the move after supporting it five years ago.

He said it would have to be left up to the people.

Don't Forget Warehouse Outlet

If you have been near the Oleson Shopping Center recently, you may have noticed a new store behind Bogg's Pastry on Antrim Street.

The store is Warehouse Outlet and that is exactly what it is. Specializing in complete furniture and carpet lines, the store is designed to sell quality products at warehouse prices.

Warehouse Outlet is owned and managed by Jack and Tina LaFay. The young couple has moved to Charlevoix from Pontiac where they are also part owners of Warehouse Outlet of Pontiac.

Warehouse Outlet is open Monday thru Saturday from 10 a.m. until 6 p.m.. Merchandise including herculon sofas and chairs, tables, lamps, mattresses, dinette sets, and a complete line of carpets are now on display on the main floor and in the basement.

Housing

designed for condominiums.

The two Charlevoix developers with the assistance of the Economic Development Group of Saginaw hope to finance the project through a Farmers Home Administration loan that will clear the way for a low rental rate.

The hearing will be held on December 16.

Discussion of the private development came only minutes after Robert Cook of the Senior Citizen Housing Study Committee presented his report on the investigation for a municipally-owned project.

The committee reported that they had studied both the East Jordan and Boyne City projects as well as surveyed housing needs through the local newspapers and group meetings.

"We have found that Charlevoix is one of the last cities in this area to do anything about Senior Citizens' housing," Cook said.

"Most cities our size, and even smaller, have projects completed or underway."

Rent in Boyne City and East Jordan vary from $23 to $42 a month, Cook said, adding that both projects have comfortable living conditions with social and recreational opportunities.

"At this point, this committee feels that the City should consider the possibility of a project financed by a grant from HUD (U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development), if and when their funds are available," he said.

"The committee will attempt to complete its interest survey in the very near future and bring its final report to the City Council."

Cook said there are at least 86 Charlevoix residents interested in low rent housing.

It is estimated there are 550 Charlevoix County residents who have low enough income that qualify or need the housing.

In other action, council:

--Referred Mrs. Frank Risley to the Special Assessment Committee on her question about being included in the May Street Sewer Assessment District.

–Agreed to sell the Char-Em Intermediate School District 1.8 acres of land adjacent to the services center on Mercer Blvd. for $750 an acre as provided in a resolution of 1971.

--Referred Christmas greeting advertisement and gifts for city employees to committee.

–Signed a Garbage Removal Contract with Charlevoix Garbage Service for $360 a month for one year.

–Agreed to join the Northern Michigan Rail Users Association. (See related story on Page 3).

–Appointed the City Administrator to act as the city's agent in handling HUD Flood Insurance matters.

–Adopted an ordinance creating the office of City Administrator and providing for his responsibilities and authority.

–Received notice that the city would be getting $81,933 in Federal Revenue Sharing for 1975.

DOWNTOWN CHARLEVOIX, CADILLAC AND TWO LOCATIONS IN TRAVERSE CITY

Girls Kill Kalkaska

CHARLEVOIX COACH Toni Felter jumps for joy as her team took District Class C honors Monday night in Elk Rapids against Kalkaska.

How Sweet It Is!

By CHUCK WRIGHT

ELK RAPIDS--The Charlevoix girls varsity basketball team accomplished what the University of Michigan could not. They evened the score.

Avenging last year's heartbreaking defeat to Kalkaska in the district finals, the Rayders won their first district championship in class C by destroying Kalkaska 75-23 Monday night in Elk Rapids.

The Rayders, undefeated all season with a 17-0 record, used their awesome man-to-man full court press and their well-executed fast break offense to blow Kalkaska off the floor.

Toni Felter's chargers were not to be denied in this year's district. A repeat of last year's districts would have been too much to take. Felter let her squad run up the score against Elk Rapids in the Rayders opening district win. They won that one 80-25.

It was the final game against Kalkaska that the girls were looking ahead to, however. Starting slowly, the Rayders started to click at the end of the first quarter.

"All the girls needed was to get their confidence in the opening minutes," declared an exuberant Felter.

"Once they started rolling it was all over"

Repeatedly, Charlevoix stole errant Kalkaska passes and cashed on easy fast break baskets. By halftime, the Rayders had run up an 18 point lead.

"Before the districts started, we decided we were going to try to double our score in the second half," Felter said.

"In both of the district games, we almost managed to do it in the third quarter."

The third quarter against Kalkaska was devastating. Von Priest opened the scoring on a tip-in. Then the entire team got in on the action.

Cheryl Pence, who plays forward, center, or guard, led the way as usual. Leading all scorers with 25 points, Pence collaborated again and again with Lee Steelman, Tammy Penney and Von Priest for fast break baskets.

By the end of the third quarter, Kalkaska was ready to run up the white flag as the Rayders had romped to a 52-19 lead. But Charlevoix had no intention of letting up.

If there was a single key in the Rayder romp, it had to be their aggressiveness, both rebounding and on defense.

"I've tried to instill in the girls the need to be aggressive on the boards," Felter explained," and tonight they performed as well as any coach could expect."

Seldom did Kalkaska get more than one shot at the basket. Every missed shot seemed to go into the hands of an eager Rayder, usually Steelman, Pence, or Denise Boss.

"This was a team effort all the way," Felter said.

Steelman added 21 to Pence's game high of 25 points. Von Priest came off the bench to score 20.

She did a "terrific job" in relieving the foul-troubled Heidi Dove, Felter said. Penney had 4, Boss 2, and Beth Egler 3. Felter also credited Boss with a great defensive game.

The Rayders will now travel to Grayling to play in the regionals beginning next Tuesday night, confident of continuing their winning ways.

While the opening district game against Elk Rapids did not have the same tension as the finals, the Rayders made sure they did not look ahead. After jumping out to a 16-6 first quarter lead on 8 points by Pence, Charlevoix seemed to coast in the second quarter.

But they were devastating in the third as they vowed they would be. With Penney and Dove directing the zone offense, the Rayders consistently found the holes in the Elk Rapids defense to score easy buckets.

Pence again led all scorers with 33, followed by Steelman with 24, Priest with 10, Penney with 7, and Boss with 6.

At Monday's Meeting

Council Expected to Discuss Merger

Mayor Edward Hansen said today he expects Charlevoix City Council to discuss merging with Charlevoix Township at its meeting Monday night.

If council is interested in going further with the issue, the Charlevoix mayor said an earlier resolution that put the question of charter revision on the February ballot will have to be rescinded.

In its place, he said council will have to adopt a resolution that calls for the organization of township-city study committees to further analyze merger possibilities between the two units.

The committees would then in turn present suggested proposals for the public to consider when combining services such as water, streets and waste disposal.

Other committees such as the finance committee would figure out what it will cost taxpayers to be joined with each other.

"I expect it (the resolution) will be brought up for discussion because it is timely," the mayor said.

Last week some 150 residents from Charlevoix and Charlevoix Township met at Charlevoix High School to determine whether or not there was any interest in merging.

Township residents outnumbered city residents almost four to one, but Mayor Hansen says he feels the city is willing to at least investigate merger possibilities.

"My reaction is that quite a few people had entirely a different view and are willing to consider it," he said about the meeting that was attended by both city council and township officials.

"The read out from the meeting and from the people I have talked to, says that these people are willing to take a look at it."

He said the reaction of the city from that meeting would indicate that it would be worthwhile to put the question to a vote.

The Charlevoix Mayor says he was not surprised about the reaction because the country is in a sober time and people are seriously looking for solutions to problems.

"The more I look at it the more sensible it sounds," he said.

Mayor Hansen says he has never been against merging and can see its potential.

Hansen is joined by others who say that this is possibly the last time the two political units can consider joining forces.

They feel there is a lot of costly duplication between the two units that could be eliminated if the township and city were merged.

"Sooner or later the town and township should consolidate," Councilman Ralph McRae said during last week's meeting.

He said there are already many township residents who either own businesses or are employed in the city.

While city officials were expressing optimism, Charlevoix township remained reserved.

At the meeting, Stroud said he was invited and would answer any questions township residents had.

"I'm going to have you decide yourself," he said.

"I won't try to sell you on it."

While the merger question would have to be approved by Charlevoix City Council, all township residents will have to vote on the issue.

Reibel Rebukes 13 Count Complaint

By KEN WINTER

Charlevoix District Court Judge Arthur R. Reibel Monday denied any wrong doings in answering to a complaint leveled to him by the Michigan Judicial Tenure Commission.

Last Friday, the commission charged him with neglect of duty and misconduct in office, in a 13-count complaint sent to the Michigan Supreme Court for action.

The Judicial Commission, if supported by the State Supreme Court, is empowered to suspend, censure, retire or remove a sitting judge for shirking of duty and certain crimes and activities prejudicial to the administration of justice.

"This is welcome by myself and the court," Reibel told the Courier Monday.

"Because of all these allegations, I think the people have the right to a public hearing and let the people make a decision of what has taken place."

The formal complaint opens the way for a hearing to be held by a trial master or judge appointed by the Supreme Court who makes only finding of fact or conclusions of law.

Judge Reibel has 15 days to submit his answers to the complaint before the administrative hearing can be set.

After the hearing has been held, the nine-member commission composed of both lawyers and businessmen make the decision on the allegations. Only five votes are needed for action.

Since the commission was started in 1968 by a Constitutional amendment, they have heard allegations against 13 judges.

Judge Reibel said he asked for a full investigation of his court following charges of misconduct in office and failure to act on his mounting caseload by the Anti-Crime and Drug Committee of Northern Michigan.

R.P. Johnson, a Petoskey businessman, said his nonpartisan group of over 3,000 Emmet and Charlevoix businessmen first filed a complaint with the Michigan Judicial Commission last May and now have followed up with a petition signed by 1,000 people.

Judge Reibel claims the group is comprised of John Birch members and as a result of its allegations, he has called for a complete investigation.

"He's full of s—," Johnson said.

"I'm not a member of the John Birch Society.

"That is simply a smoke screen to throw the people off the track."

Johnson, who chairs the anti-crime group, says he is relieved to hear about the Tenure Commission's action.

"I'm happy to see when deficiences exist in the system, the system can correct itself" he said.

Concert at Windmill Farms?

Charlevoix Could have Opera Next Summer

By SARA GAY DAMMAN

Opera, symphony and ballet performances in a natural ampitheatre near the shores of Lake Charlevoix, are in the planning stages for next summer.

If an $8,581 grant currently being considered by the Michigan Council for the Arts is approved, Windmill Farms Campground will host a "Summer Festival of Arts," two consecutive weekends in July.

Windmill Farms Campground, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Boal, Winnetka, Ill., a Chicago suburb, summer residents on Lake Charlevoix, will be the site of the performances. Located on the Boyne City Road, about half way between Charlevoix and Horton Bay, the campground has been in operation three years.

Last summer the Boals, who have been active in the arts in the Chicago area, met with Gideon Grau, Director of the Delta College Festival Orchestra and Summer Conservatory of Music, and Ms. Beverly Hoffman, Artist Manager and Director of Beverly Hoffman Management Associates of Milwaukee and California, to discuss possibilities of producing an arts festival in the Charlevoix area, similar to one held at Delta College, in the Tri-City area, each summer.

Grau and Hoffman toured the Boal's 500 acre site locating a near-perfect outdoor amphitheatre, on a grassy slope surrounded by hardwood forest.

Grau and Delta College drew up a proposal for the summer festival, including an estimated budget. Delta College described its association as "an outreach program, consisting of repeat performance by the Delta Festival Orchestra at Windmill Farm," of programs already rehearsed and performed earlier at Delta College's own Summer Festival.

The Boals agreed to donate the section of land containing this ampitheatre to the project. As the Boals' hopes for the project grew they brought together a number of local residents to discuss formation of a Charlevoix County support organization.

The Lake Charlevoix Music Festival Association, a nonprofit corporation, is in the formative stages. The purpose of the local group would be to involve as many area residents as possible, in all aspects of the festival, Boal reports.

Boal explained recently that if The Michigan Council for the Arts approved the grant for the festival, matching funds will have to be raised locally, though donations and or subscriptions, approximately $8,000. Delta College will donate another $4,000 to the project, in salaries, and expenses for the festival.

Boal added, he "hopes local musicians and artists will want to become involvd, to participate in the festival, from performing to back stage work."

Our 80th Year?

This week begins our 80th year in publishing a newspaper for Charlevoix.

Or does it?

No one is quite sure if the volume numbers on the front of our newspaper are entirely accurate.

But we're going to assume they are and call this the first issue of Volume 80.

To make matters even more confusing, author Doyle Fitzpatrick of Lansing has loaned us what is thought to be the only existing copy of the Charlevoix Courier's first issue, then called "The Charlevoix Journal."

As you will see on page three, the first issue was printed in 1893 and was edited by King James Strang's first son, Charles.

JULY 10, 1884

Mrs. Harrison Miller returned home from Beaver Island last week.

JULY 17, 1884

Mrs. Ruth Bedford returned from Beaver Island last week.

The residents of Beaver Island, to the number of 83 couples, indulged in dancing on the Fourth, and had a jolly good time.

Wingfield Watson, of Evangeline township, has a fine field of spring wheat. His other crops also look well.

JULY 24, 1884

A new warehouse 90 ft. long is just being finished at St. James.

Dan Williams, lightkeeper at St. James, registered at the Bridge Street house last Saturday.

John Gallup, of St. James, will please accept our thanks for favors rendered last Sunday.

Visitors to Beaver Island will find the boarding house of Mrs. Gibson an excellent place to get meals.

First ad for "Claribelle" (boat route)!

OCT. 9, 1884

A small schooner arrived last Tuesday from the Beavers with about 1200 bushels of grist work for the flouring mill of Dexter and Noble.

JAN. 15, 1885

Mrs. Sarah A. McLean (not Beaver) dressmaker, has just received word that her husband, from whom she has been separated for about 5 years, died in December, leaving a policy of insurance of $2,000 for the benefit of herself and two children.

JAN. 29, 1885

Shows a birdsview of Charlevoix, Mich. showing harbor and summer resort.

MAY 1, 1884

An order has been given for a full page portrait of James J. Strang in the forthcoming history of the Traverse region, by J. R. Page and Co. and it will doubtless be accompanied by a brief sketch of his life.

JAN. 29, 1885

On the 16th Ult. we received our last mails, carried by Capt. Roddy, of the Schr. Tom Paine, from Harbor Springs. He had a hard time in crossing, sailing through large fields of ice, but finally reached Mr. Dormer's dock at 1:00 P.M. Mr. Lindstrom, the lightkeeper , kept the light burning until after Capt. Roddy's arrival.

The Schr. Hart, from Northport, bound for Lake Erie, reached our harbor on Dec. 26th. She was loaded with provisions, etc. It took several of our men two days to get her up to the dock.

The Schr. C. J. Wells, that went ashore last Fall on Whiskey Island reef, has gone to pieces. All the lumber drifted away, and the Islanders did not get any.

So far the winter is a poor one for all concerned. There are several parties cutting ties and posts, and probably eight or ten cargoes will be got out this winter. The fishermen have not set any nets, but intend to if the ice makes.

We are generally healthy. No sickness at present, and only one death (John P. Gallagher) of consumption, since the close of navigation.

John Gallup is wintering on the Island, and is now making fish barrels at the rate of 40 a week, resting on Saturdays and Sundays. He intends to visit Charlevoix this winter.

M. F. O'Donnell teaches the school in Chandler township for three months. His roll contains 40 names, with more to come.

The inevitable tax gatherer is making his rounds, asking for 5 percent on our capital, to contribute to the general fund of the town. This is not before liquor was sold by two or more persons who did not pay the license or give the bond. If this license was paid, it would save the taxpayers at least $1,200. Our new county officers are going to look into this matter, and insist on license saloons or none at all. The following are the principal officers: Judge of Probate, James Donlevy; Sheriff, John Connally; Clerk and Register, John Donlevy; Treasurer, Owen O'Donnell; Prosecuting Attorney, Benj. T. Halstead. Surveyor, Fred Butts.

The mail goes in a small boat by Paul LeBanc and Wm. Gibson, who will carry our mails for the winter. St. James January 8, 1885. Signed "I".

FEB. 5, 1885

Born on Feb. 4th, to Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Strang, a daughter. Both doing well.

FEB. 26, 1885

Beaver Island

The weather still continues cold with no indications of change. Snow is over 3 ft. deep and it is very hard to go from place to place.

We had but 4 mails since Dec. 19, 1884, but now that the ice is good, we should have two a week. It looks, however, as though we would be left without any more 'til Spring, for the Post Office Department is only willing to pay a sum equal to 2/3 of the amount of stamps cancelled at our office in each quarter. This arrangement will not pay for one mail during that time.

Charlevoix County Gets $580,000 in Revenues

By PEG OHLE

The County of Charlevoix, its townships, cities and village will receive a total $579,895 in State Revenue Sharing Funds next year.

That is the amount alloted to the area, according to a Regional Information Paper prepared by the Northwestern Michigan Regional Planning and Development Commission.

Charlevoix County government will receive $103,716 of the total amount. The rest will be divided among townships, cities and the Village of Boyne Falls as follows:

TOWNSHIPS: Bay, $9,804; Boyne Valley, $9,703; Chandler, $1,787; Charlevoix, $15,480; Evangeline, $8,772; Eveline, $16,556; Hayes, $14,473; Hudson, $4,489; Marion, $13,904; Melrose, $17,015; Norwood, $6,511; Peaine, $1,258; St. James, $3,461; South Arm, $19,005; and Wilson, $12,846.

VILLAGE: Boyne Falls, $7,996.

"Revenue sharing funds are those state collected-locally shared taxes which may be used by local units of government in any way they elect.

They come from four state sources: Twelve and a half percent of the state sales tax (½ cent of 4 cent levied); twelve and one-tenth percent of the gross collections of state income tax, which is split evenly between municipalities and countries; $14.5 million plus 55 percent of the remaining intangibles taxes collected; an amount from the state's General Fund to cover the guaranteed minimums and relative tax burden supplement provided for the State Revenue Act.

Revenue Sharing is no longer based on a straight per capital formula. It now recognizes the differences among local governments in the need for public services and their abilities to finance their services.

Revenue Sharing to cities and villages throughout the state has increased from $89.1 million in 1970 to the estimated $167.6 million to be paid in 1975.

Most units of government put their Revenue Sharing Funds into their general budgets, using them for whatever services or improvements deemed necessary.

Health Dept. Hires First 'Aging' Nurse

Mrs. Sue Presnell has joined District Health Department No. 3 as a public health nurse to work with Senior Citizens in Charlevoix County in cooperation with the Charlevoix County Commission on Aging.

Mrs. Presnell's duties will include teaching how to care for older persons in the home, giving blood pressure tests, and teaching the fundamentals of good nutrition.

She is a graduate of Michigan State University School of Nursing and served on the staff of St. Lawrence Hospital in Lansing for 13 months.

In her last three terms of college Mrs. Presnell worked in the public health field, mostly with Senior Citizens, and in projects relating to them. At the hospital she specialized in the care of heart patients.

There are approximately 2,500 persons 60 years of age and over in Charlevoix County. It will also be part of Mrs. Presnell's job to find persons who need the kind of help her department can offer. The Survey of Senior Citizens now being made by the Council on Aging will be helpful in this respect.

Mrs. Presnell hopes to enlist Senior Citizens in staffing clinics and doing other things to help each other. The entire program will be in effect January 1.

Mrs. Presnell and her husband, Plas, are newcomers to Charlevoix. He teaches in the Learning Center at Charlevoix High School.

Births

Mrs. Debra Lautenslager, Charlevoix, gave birth to a baby girl, Michelle Lee, November 10, 1974 at Little Traverse Hospital, Petoskey.

Grandparents of Michelle Lee are Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Archambault of Charlevoix.

Save money this winter.

Cut your heating costs up to 17% with our official insulation program.

Last fall, at the direction of the Michigan Public Service Commission, Michigan Consolidated introduced a low-cost home ceiling insulation program designed to conserve Natural Gas and cut heating costs up to 17%.

How successful has the program been? Well, in the past 10 months, mora than 37,700 homeowners have installed ceiling insulation and, as a result, over one billion cubic feet of Natural Gas per year is being conserved. That's enough to heat over 6,500 additional homes this winter. And, that's why we're continuing our insulation program again this fall. Because now is the time to insulate and save.

The heart of our program is simply this: Install six inches of ceiling insulation in your home. It's a quick, easy and inexpensive project that most homeowners can accomplish by themselves for about $100.

How can you get the job done? First, you can do it yourself, and we'll gladly provide a free handbook that tells you how. Secondly, you can have it done by an insulation contractor and, if you wish, we will provide you with a list of qualified firms. Or, third, we can have the job done for you through one of our participating subcontractors. The cost is often under $200 for homes with less than 1,000 square feet of ceiling area.

If you want the job done through one of our participating subcontractors, we have a payment plan to suit every budget. You can pay cash. Or, you can pay over an extended period at an interest rate of 1% monthly on the unpaid balance. (ANNUAL PERCENTAGE RATE OF 12%.)

The need for energy conservation is as great today as it was last year. So insulate now. You'll be holding down winter heating costs and saving Natural Gas, too. Call us for details or for a copy of our handbook.

Our Gas is your lowest-cost fuel; conserve it and you'll save even more.

HOME BEAUTY.

"Mine be a cot," for the hours of play,
Of the kind that is built by Miss Greenaway,
Where the walls are low and the roofs are red,
And the birds are gay in the blue o'erhead,
And the dear little figures in frocks and frills
Go roaming about at their own sweet wills,
And play with the pups, and reprove the calves,
And do naught in the world (but work) by halves,
From "hunt the slipper" and "riddle-me-ree"
To watching the cat in the apple-tree.

O Art of the Household! Men may prate
Of their ways "intense" and Italianate;
They may soar on their wings of sense, and float
To the au delà and the dim remote;
Till the last sun sink in the last-lit west,
'Tis the Art at the Door that will please the best;
To the end of Time 'twill be still the same,
For the Earth first laughed when the children came.

The Record.

From the Detroit Free Press.

The New York Tribune, responding to the Democratic "cant about corruption," appeals to the "record" and says: "The plain people take note of the fact that most of the officials do not run away or get suddenly rich. Two United States treasurers, after handling untold millions, have retired poor; not a single secretary of the treasury or postmaster general in twenty years has left office with more evidence of wealth than he had when he entered it."

Who was secretary of the treasury before Mr. Folger?

William Windom, of Minnesota.

Mr. Windom went to Washington a poor man. When he came out of the treasury he was a millionaire. He built himself a mansion in Washington fit for the residence of a Vanderbilt. No one knew where his sudden wealth came from. But it came. He was a prominent candidate for the republican nomination for the presidency, and was voted for through more than thirty ballots. He went to Minnesota for an indorsement, and asked to be re-elected to the United States senate. The "plain people" had "taken note of the fact" that "Billy Windom," who had lived in a small house on a limited income at home, had grown into a millionaire at Washington. They circulated a lithograph of the Windom palace at Washington. The ex secretary of the treasury was repudiated by his constituents. Then he came to New York and embarked in a scheme to establish a new stock exchange, which was a failure. This is one republican secretary's record.

John Sherman.

The name is enough. Entering Washington life literally without a dollar, John Sherman retired from the United States treasury six times a millionaire. Yet the petty larcenies of the fraudulent president's administration permeated the treasury department under John Sherman as thoroughly as they could if it had been presided over by a needy man. This is the record of another secretary of the treasury.

Who before John Sherman?

Benjamin H. Bristow.

Here indeed was an honest secretary. But how did he leave? The republican administration, finding that besides being honest himself he was determined to make other public officials honest and to uproot and cast out the thieves, whether in a whisky distillery or the white house, kicked him out. The republican politicians punished and killed him for daring to stop stealing. Politically, Benjamin H. Bristow is dead and buried.

Then the postmasters general.

Was not Mr. Cresswell postmaster general? He certainly enriched himself while in office and came out with a very gratifying addition to his worldly means.

There was a postmaster general named Tyner. The general belief is that he made it pay handsomely.

Then there was postmaster general Brady! Practically he was postmaster general. Key was a mere figurehead. Certainly he ruled the department. Everybody bowed to his authority. Does the Tribune mean to say that Brady came out of the post-office department no richer than he went into it? How, then, did he obtain money enough to buy three republican papers in Washington to be run in the interest of the republican administration and the star route defense? Where did he get the $250,000 or $300,000 to pay his share of the expenses of the trial?

But why does our esteemed contemporary confine its tribute to the honesty of secretaries of the treasury and postmasters general? Why not include other cabinet officers? May not the slighted secretaries consider that the Tribune, by indirection and omission, is "mud-slinging" at them?

W. W. Belknap, of Iowa, for instance, was secretary of war. Why overlook him? Did he not develop the resources of post-traderships and deeply interest the public in those profitable assignments? Was there not some proceeding representing an impeachment to add point and flavor to his slighted secretaryship?

George M. Robeson, of New Jersey, also. Was he not secretary of the navy? Why should he be ignored by the Tribune? The purchasers of worthless government vessels and hosts of patriotic, enriched contractors will rise up indignantly against the slight.

The Tribune should be more careful and not make recklessly absurd statements.

John Bright on Protection and Labor.

The following extract from a recent speech of John Bright gives his opinion of the effect of free trade on the British workingmen:

It is a very interesting fact, that wherever a system of protection prevails it is defended by the same arguments and by the same misstatements. I will not give them a shorter word, though it would not be inapplicable. In our time, these very gentlemen who were opposed to us told the people that if we allowed the untaxed corn of foreign countries to come here, our people would be thrown out of employment, land would go to waste, and the laborer would be worse paid than he was before. They are an ingenious people. I suppose they have looked on maps, but they have never read anything of the history of the countries to which they refer, because I have never found in history a map where a people lived who had not to be taxed. It is the universal happy, in some cases unhappy, condition of all people, but now in the United States the very same argument is used. The protection party in the United States say to the people, what will become of you if you allow the manufactures produced by the pauper labor of England to come into the United States? What will become of your labor, and what will become of your wages? And so they say exactly what our country gentlemen said forty years ago, only talking of pauper labor instead of untaxed labor. But our pauper labor, I think, has for the most part vanished, and if wages have doubled during the last forty years, and everything upon which wages are expended is reduced, what can be more monstrous than to speak of the pauper labor of England? Perhaps, though I am speaking here in this vast assembly of my own countrymen, I may be permitted to address a word to the working artisan class of the United States of America. I am not an enemy of the United States. I have fought her battles in this country when for a time I was not sure that the contest would not go against her. I have as much sympathy with the United States now as I had then, and as much, I think, almost as if I had been born upon her soil. I will say this to the workingmen and artisans of the United States: that centuries of legislation in this country have not done so much, conferred so great benefits upon the labor of England, as have been conferred by that great minister of forty years ago, Sir Robert Peel, and by Mr. Gladstone, the great minister of to-day.

Work and Wages.

The high-tariffites never grow tired of assuring the workingmen that the high taxes placed upon many of the necessaries of life are mainly for their benefit—they proclaimed this loudly just prior to the election of 1880, again in 1882, and they put forth the same plea in order to capture their votes in 1884—all the time asserting that the object of the high tax policy is to protect them from the pauper labor of Europe and to insure high wages.

It is evident, however, that the workingmen are beginning to entertain serious doubts as to the truthfulness of this claim, and it is not at all unnatural that they should express their doubts, as they did in the labor congress at Cleveland a few weeks since, at a time when food, rent, fuel, clothing, groceries, etc., are about as high as they ever have been, and wages are lower. They begin to realize that they do not get any of the money extorted from consumers by the tariff laws, and this is one of the most hopeful indications that the era of licensed spoliation is almost at an end.

Protection is having its legitimate effect upon the business of the country. Manufacturers find themselves with stocks on hand which they can not dispose of, as the home market is supplied and they are excluded from foreign markets by the tariff restrictions upon trade, and hence they are compelled to diminish production and put down wages where they do not cease entirely and furnish labor no employment.

For a large share of this depression of business the protective-tariff policy is the cause. It places limitations and restrictions upon trade, and by confining our manufacturers to a single market restrains production, and is therefore the worst enemy in the form of legislation of the workingmen.

A protective tariff is a more potent cause of low wages and no wages than it is of high wages and permanent wages. Experience, the dearest and surest of all teachers, is demonstrating this to be true. [Ex.

How Protection Protects.

It was a cruel thing which a cigarmaker did at a meeting called in the interests of protection at Brooklyn. He was the last of several speakers, all of whom had advocated high tariff as a means of sustaining wages, and he was heartless enough to say that no trade was so well protected as that of the cigarmakers, while the bricklayers had no protection at all; yet cigarmakers in Brooklyn get but $7 a week, and the unprotected bricklayer earns $4 per day. This was such a striking and unanswerable illustration of the effect of protection on wages, that the managers of the meeting could not well be otherwise than disgusted. Yet the cigarmaker was right, and he might have carried his illustration still further. It can be shown that just in proportion as industries are protected are wages low, and labor degraded all through the list. Tariff does nothing which its advocates claim for it except to enhance the price of the necessaries of life to the poor. It does not sustain wages; it does not diversify industry; it does not increase the wealth of the country; it does not promote enterprise; it, in fact, does the very opposite of all these things.—[Evening News.

The Place for Prohibitionists.

Prohibitionists will remember that a few weeks since we asserted that the place for them was in the prohibition party, that the pretensions made by the republican party for their suffrages on the claim of being "moral" was but such a scheme as satan devises. Our contemporary was "shocked" at our boldness, and thought we had evil designs on the prohibitionists, and argued that we were trying to make democratic votes, reiterated its statement that the temperance vote should be with the republican party. But the proceedings of the last few days will probably change the Advertiser's tune. The republican conference in Detroit decided that in the future they would leave the question to "the churches and prohibition fanatics."—[Caro Jeffersonian.

Must Not Count their Chickens Too Soon.

If the republicans are wise they will not regard as absolutely certain that Ohio and Illinois, or even that Michigan and Wisconsin will, give their votes to the republican nominee in 1884. It is just possible that these states, or two or three of them, will go the other way. The democrats certainly will not claim any of these states before the election is over. But if the republicans undertake to fight the next national campaign on the sectional issue it will be possible for the democratic party not only to carry these four states, but also to pick up one or two of the others now placed in the "republican column."—[Buffalo Courier.

Give the Mechanic a Chance.

The Ovid Register comments as follows upon a statement of the St. Johns Republican that the wool growers of Clinton county are out $15,000 by the reduction of the duty on wool:

Then protection makes wool dear and keeps it dear. If Clinton county wool growers are out that amount, then Clinton county clothing wearers are so much ahead. But protectionists have always argued that competition in wool growing would make wool cheap; that had to be argued to gain the vote of the mechanic. Why should the Republican mourn now that the mechanic is promised clothing for less money?

No Morality unless with Votes.

The republican office holders' conference at Detroit decided to do away with all kinds of morality not accompanied with votes. In other words, the temperance question having become burdensome and heavy, they will discard it. Morality must seek a new market, and for the first time since the war the churches will have to pray for something else besides the republican party, as the leaders of that party are to try a scheme to obtain power into which religion and temperance do not enter. Commission Restores Faith in System

The Michigan Judicial Tenure Commission's action against District Judge Arthur Reibel restores our faith in the judicial process.

The commission charged him Friday with neglect of duty and misconduct in office in a 15-count complaint sent to the Michigan Supreme Court.

The complaint ends nearly a year of battle between the judge and many private citizens.

It is always a difficult question to decide whether or not an elected official, especially a judge, should be put before a tribunal to answer charges made against his performance in office.

With Watergate and Nixon's resignation, the question of whether or not the Office of the President was destroyed arose because a group was able to force him from office.

People asked themselves if this could continue to happen everytime a political group didn't agree with the President.

However, we feel this was not the case and hopefully, the Watergate trial as it continues to unfold will support the contention that a misjustice against the people had taken place.

We think there is a certain parallel to be drawn from this national incident and the one now taking place in Charlevoix and Emmet Counties.

The Charlevoix Courier, as well as other news media and private citizens, feel there have been some wrong doings in the office of District Court.

At one point this summer, the Charlevoix Courier swore out a complaint against the District Judge for his failure to make public records available for our inspection.

There have been numerous other instances endured by us and others in dealing with the 90th District Court.

For us, the end result has been intimidation through the threat of law suit.

For others, the end result has been verbal intimidation.

In either case, we are glad to know that in our system of justice there is some recourse that can be made.

We are not asking for revenge for past actions against us or others. We are simply asking for the opportunity for an impartial body to weigh our complaints and if any wrong doing were committed, as we believe they were, to see that justice is served.

As with the office of the President, judicial offices are not sacred when they are abused and we are glad to know there is some recourse that can be taken by the the citizenry.

The Michigan Judicial Tenure Commission action demonstrates to us the benefit of our system over others.

If supported by the State Supreme Court, the commission is empowered to suspend, censure, retire or remove a sitting judge for shirking of duty, certain crimes and activities prejudicial to the administration of justice.

This is an important balance of power and we are pleased to see it being exercised.

Thanksgiving

This Thanksgiving we can be grateful for the strength of our institutions, public and private, which have achieved so much in a few centuries and which have put a bright future for coming centuries within our grasp.

Wars, we pray, are behind us; the geographical frontiers have disappeared. Now we are searching for solutions to economic difficulties which are troublesome, but certainly not insurmountable.

It is important for us not to lose sight of our goals and convictions in the light of present economic setbacks.

For those of us, who are fortunate enough to be holding down jobs while thousands are out on the streets, let us be mindful of how fortunate we are.

Let us all be thankful for what we have and continue to remember it is the little things in life that bring us joy.

And let us be thankful for recent events of the past so we can build for a new tomorrow, even though Ohio State will be going to the Rose Bowl.

Today's problems, while serious, can be solved without resorting to war or economic catastrophe.

For this we can give thanks sincerely and without reservation.

Congratulations Girls

The Charlevoix Girls Basketball team should be commended for its fine demonstration of talent.

It takes hard work and many sacrifices to achieve the record they have made thus far.

Most important to us, Charlevoix girls have demonstrated their ability in competitive sports and the need to include girls in a solid year round sports program.

We also encourage Charlevoix residents to take an active part in the girls' program, similarly as they have with the boys in years past.

Again our congratulations to the girls of Charlevoix High School.

Those Christmas Taxes

Twas a few days before Christmas and all through the town
Thick gloom was hanging
And people did frown!
Santa had gone
To his home in disgust
I'll tell you the reason
If I really must
Things had been booming
And coin freely spent–
Now people were hanging
On to their last cent!
The P.O. was busy
With much Christmas mail
Each man working top speed
And going full sail–
But now we're distressed
And sad is the scene
Since that (tax notice) monkey wrench
Wrecked our postal machine.
Instead of the greetings
Many folks hoped to view.
We gave them a notice
Of taxes come due.
So they stopped buying presents
And greetings and stuff.
Which discouraged Santa
And he left in a huff
Now I can't for the life of me
Find any good reason
Why tax notice letters
Must be mailed just at this season.

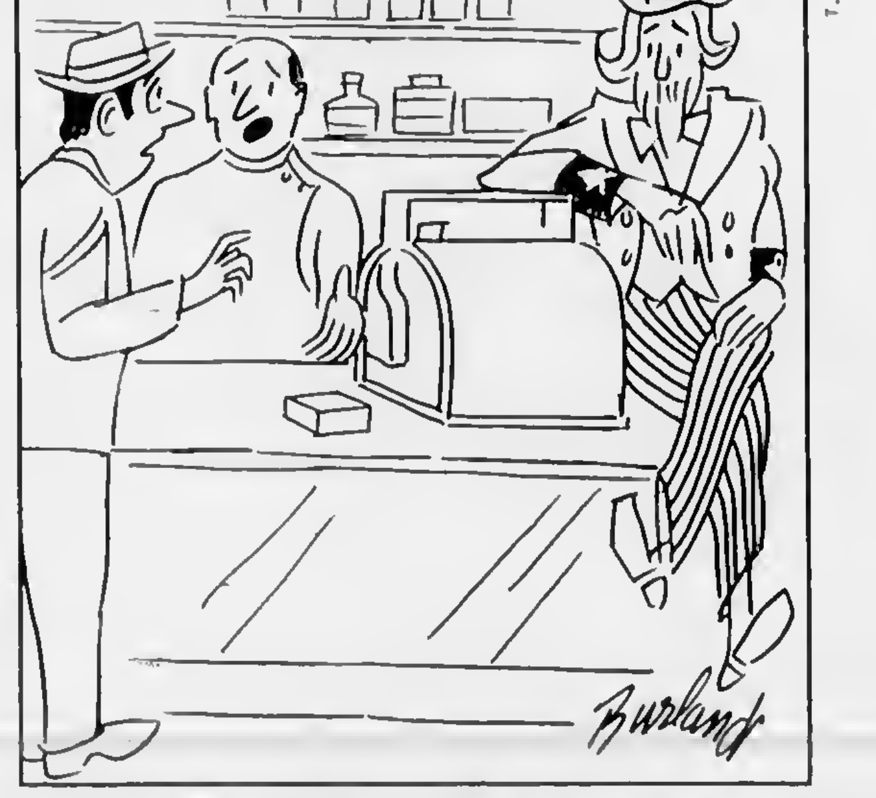
"Well, whoever he is—every time I ring up a dollar he snatches out thirty cents!"



Now that the election is over, the people of the country can pay less attention to politics and personalities and concentrate on the issue which overrides all others—inflation.

Rhetoric aside, it is Congressional action which was the major factor in causing the huge boost in the cost of living and it is Congressional action which can get us out of it.

Look at these comparative figures:

Clockwise

By BOB CLOCK

It finally happened Thursday night.

Our super furry dog Holly tangled with a skunk.

Now it's one thing when a short-haired terrier does battle with one of Mother Nature's little stink-pots, since they wash up fairly easily.

It's quite another to try to lather-out the clinging odor of skunk from a bale of sheep's wool. Holly, a Keeshond, would make a beautiful throw rug if she weren't so lumpy.

The confrontation between skunk and dog took place in the back yard where Holly was tied and I didn't realize how bad it was until I invited her in for dinner. After one hasty pass through the kitchen I lodged her on the side porch while we decided what to do.

"Tomato Juice," Judy suggested helpfully. "They say tomato juice works wonders."

So I ran to the refrigerator, opened a can of tomato juice and poured some in Holly's bowl. She wouldn't touch it.

"Your're supposed to pour it on her," Judy complained, "not in her."

But I refused to waste any more expensive tomato juice on a lousy skunk.

I should have given Holly a bath immediately, but I had promised to take a picture for Fran Martin.

When I arrived at the Martin house, Fran noticed the heady aroma of skunk and I explained what happened. I didn't realize I had any of the stuff on me and beat a hasty retreat with Fran's camera in tow.

Outside I took off my shoes and sniffed them. No skunk aroma there, so I proceeded on my picture taking assignment.

When I returned, I handed Fran her camera and she gasped.

"You must have it on your hand, because it's all over my camera," she announced.

I sniffed my hands and sure enough: Skunk. I must have picked it up when I unsnapped Holly's leash.

I put the camera on the window ledge where there was a draft and hurried home to face a skunky dog.

Holly still hadn't touched her tomato juice and I decided that maybe dogs don't like tomato juice after all.

While Judy and the kids scurried around for towels, soap, detergent and bath salts, I drew a steaming tub of water. Then, as the kids stood back at a safe distance holding their noses I ushered Holly from the porch into the bathroom. (I know dogs should be washed down in the basement in the washtub, but Holly doesn't fit in anything but a bonafide bathtub. In anything else she looks like an elephant in a teacup.)

I was going to try shampoo first, until it dawned on me that shampoo costs more than tomato juice. So I grabbed a plastic bottle of Pink Liquid (that's the name of it, honest) which is supposed to clean dishes "right down to the shine."

Holly sudsed up beautifully, although she objected terribly to being bathed in warm water. She panted, rolled her eyes and made odd little noises in her throat.

After the first scrubbing I rinsed her and sniffed. Pretty good but not good enough.

So I lathered her again with a bar of Fels Naptha soap, the same stuff my mother used to rub on shirt collars and poison ivy. After another rinsing and another sniffing I still wasn't satisfied. Back to the Pink Liquid.

After three scrubbings and as many rinsings, Holly emerged from the tub, wet, rumpled and smelling for all the world like a laundry maid.

Exhausted, I tumbled into the kitchen and lunged for the refrigerator and a cold bottle of Black Label. But my eye fell on a frosty pitcher of tomato juice.

As I poured a tall glass, I mused on the difference between "Pink Liquid" and "Red Liquid" and wondered if Judy had made a mistake.

Ask Senator GRIFFIN

By cutting through red tape, members of Congress can often lend a hand to those with problems involving the federal government. Through the columns of this newspaper, Senator Griffin answers questions of general interest. He will respond personally to all communications addressed to: Senator Robert P. Griffin, Senate Office Building, Washington, D.C. 20510.

Q. My hippie son has come up with another of his wild ideas. He's trying to tell me that Martha Washington was not the first "First Lady" of the United States. He says that there was a first lady before her. Surely George Washington wouldn't have lied about his own wife.

—R. H., Grand Rapids

A. I wouldn't call George Washington a liar, but your son has a point. Many history books virtually ignore that there was a President before George Washington. In 1781, before the present Constitution was adopted, the Continental Congress elected John Hanson of Maryland as President. Since President Hanson was not elected pursuant to a vote of the people under our present system, the debate will go on as to who was actually First Lady, Martha Washington or Jane Hanson.

Q. My biology teacher told our class about 109 animals in the United States that are on the endangered species list. At least two on the list are native to Michigan—the Eastern timber wolf and something called the Kirtland's warbler. I know quite a bit about the wolf but nothing about the Kirtland's warbler. Can you enlighten me?

—B. J., Bay City

A. According to the National Wildlife Federation, the Kirtland's warbler is a songbird. Unfortunately, there are fewer than 300 couples still in existence. These beautiful birds breed in a relatively small region in Michigan's lower peninsula—an area bounded by Lake Huron on the east to Kalkaska County on the west, and from Ogemaw County north to Presque County. The birds are bluish gray on the upper body with conspicuous black stripes on their back. The lower body is pale lemon yellow with bold dark streaks on the side and breast. One unusual characteristic of the bird is that it wags its tail up and down. It is only 5¾ inches from bill to tail, and its song is carried in a loud and low pitch. Like a lot of people, this bird doesn't care for Michigan winters. It spends summers in Michigan and winters in the Bahamas.

If it Fitz

By JIM FITZGERALD

Just as the Mafia should have been hired to do the USA fighting in the Vietnam war, Mickey Cohen should be appointed director of the FBI.

Providing, of course, that Cohen has already gone through change of life and is no longer subject to hot and cold flashes.

Statistics prove it would have been much cheaper to hire Mafia hit men to kill North Vietnamese (or was it South?) than to do it the Pentagon way. The defoliation program would have suffered, thus allowing enemy trees and squirrels to continue spreading the Communist doctrine. But on a per-peasant basis, Mafia bullets kill much more economically than Air Force bombs. The Godfather way is also less messy, which would have meant additional savings when our bodycounters went to the laundromat.

Likewise, ex-gangster Cohen would certainly save the taxpayers money if he were running the FBI. He would also be much less of a national embarrassment.

In 4 months the FBI spent more than $3 million searching for Patricia Hearst. 75 agents are working full-time on the case. So far they have found their way to work each day. Except for one agent who got on the wrong freeway and is now helplessly lost in a small town with no street signs or Standard Oil station.

Cohen located Ms. Hearst one afternoon by phoning a few of his excellmates and other friends. Total cost of his search was $5.75 for the calls plus several promises to put in a good word with the warden.

Cohen did not reveal Ms. Hearst's exact location because he has sampled this nation's penal system and "I don't bring nobody in to go to prison." But neither the FBI nor the Hearst family questioned Cohen's veracity. There seems no doubt that Cohen could knock on Patricia Hearst's door anytime he pleases.

I don't blame Efrem Zimbalist Jr. for retiring into reruns. It must be humiliating when 1 parolee can do what the entire FBI can't. The Ford Motor Co. should sponsor Mickey Cohen on TV Sunday nights. In 13 weeks he could uncover the genealogy of all those "drug-related murders" (the killer's cousin is an aspirin!) and find Judge Crater.

Cohen could also repair the terrible damage done to the FBI image by ex-director L. Patrick Gray III. Tough guys like Elliott Ness and Jimmy Cagney taught this nation to respect FBI agents as rugged characters whose strength and bravery were exceeded only by their honesty and virtue. But then came Gray who admitted under oath that he lied to aid the Watergate cover-up. And the nation tittered as Gray described his conscience pangs:

"I was warm and hot all over, almost like a woman in menopause, because I had told a lie," he said.

The explosion you heard was J. Edgar Hoover cracking through his gravestone headfirst. He devoted his life to fighting the Red Menace and earning respect for the FBI. Now Hoover is betrayed by a replacement who forgot to take his estrogen pills.

The least this nation deserves is a top cop who can lie without blushing. I for one hope Mickey Cohen's parole officer will let him travel to Washington.

Meet Charlevoix

...Oscar Ward

Oscar W. Ward, a native of Ironton and now a Charlevoix businessman, was recently elected to the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners to represent the second ward in Charlevoix. The Courier recently asked him a few questions about the job, and about government in general.

COURIER: Now that you have attended a meeting of the County Board of Commissioners after being elected to serve on it, what do you think is the biggest job of a Commissioner?

WARD: Communication. There should be better communication between the people and their elected public officials. I think if we have this communication there will be better response for the public.

COURIER: What will be your major interest on the Board?

WARD: My interest is monetary. I believe that real estate taxes could and should be reduced by less spending. Ten years ago, before moving to our present home, we were enjoying reasonable rent at 206 E. Upright for $40 per month. It is presently costing us $50 per month in taxes to live in my own home. I believe that sales and income taxes are more equitable.

COURIER: Do you think we need housing for senior citizens?

WARD: I haven't studied this question. Off hand, it seems that it might be surplus service, but maybe further study would show a need. Most of the older people in town seem to reflect an independence. It seems like they want to live alone. It's an individual matter. As far as isolation is concerned, in the old days we would just wait for the old rotary plow, sometimes for three or four days.

COURIER: Where do you think we are spending too much money?

WARD: On schools, for one thing. I don't think the public is getting its money's worth in education. Our educational system in this country is the failure of the century. Youngsters are taught to be spectators not doers. Any kid who has spent 12 years in school and can't make a living has been robbed. We definitely need more vocational education. Those who are equipped for the professions should be encouraged, but it's not for everybody.

COURIER: What about money spent for social services, the health department and so forth?

WARD: Maybe in booming economy we can support all these services. But in a worsening economy where is the money coming from? We have had a managed economy that is catching up with us. People should learn to take care of their families and each other.

COURIER: Shouldn't the government help?

WARD: A government that is big enough to give you everything you want is a government big enough to take from you everything you have.

COURIER: What can one new person on the Board of Commissioners do about this?

WARD: One new personality being elected as a peoples' representative rather than a new appointee of the powerful will have an impact far greater than merely one vote on the commission. The incumbent commissioners would absorb the message quite suddenly, in my judgment.

COURIER: Why did you run for office?

WARD: I was born in the area and have lived here all of my life with the exception of 10 years prior to 1950. I feel I know the area and its problems. I keep informed and have long been a student of history and government. I have often reflected on the qualifications possessed by some who come to office by appointment. The compelling need for somebody to face this TAX challenge in Charlevoix County propelled me into the public arena more from the necessity for action than the desire for public office.

COURIER: Have you had any recent involvement with government?

WARD: Many will recall our most successful efforts in the petition drive regarding the newly created City Building Authority and our insistance that an election be held before any bonds were sold for expansion of parking facilities.

FIRST CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH
(United Church of Christ)
101 State Street, Charlevoix
R.H. Giffin, Minister

We are a Pilgrim people by heritage as well as by intent, embarked upon an ongoing journey of faith to discover God's will for our lives.

Founded by the Pilgrims of Plymouth Colony and the Puritans of Massachusetts Bay Colony in the 1620's, the Congregational Church united with the Christian Church in 1931. The resulting denomination merged with the Evangelical and Reformed church in 1957 to become the United Church of Christ in order to more fully express our oneness in Christ, to make more effective our common witness to Him and to serve His kingdom in the world through agricultural, educational, medical, urban and evangelistic projects in 50 some countries.

The United Church of Christ recognizes the inherent autonomy of the local church under the leadership of the "laos", the whole people of God, minister and laity alike. The First Congregational Church of Charlevoix was founded in 1882 after meeting as a Sunday School and Society for many years in the old Dixon home. The latest addition to the original structure was dedicated in 1970. Outstanding in the line of 25 ministers is Dr. Harold E. Kohn, well known counselor, artist and writer now Pastor Emeritus.

The present active and associate membership numbers about 425. Sunday worship is held at 11:00 a.m. September through May with adult classes at 8:00 and 9:45 and Church School classes at 9:45 for all ages through 9th grade. A Women's Fellowship, four circles and a Men's breakfast group meet monthly. A youth group is being reorganized at the present time. Family nights, adult forums, leadership training and an ongoing ministry of music highlight the year.

We are a free church, a responsible church, a church of the people, gathered for work, witness and worship, dispersed to be the church in the community as members assume positions of leadership and responsibility and we invite all of like spirit to worship with us.

Local Kiwanis Club Celebrates 40th Year

Charlevoix Kiwanians and their "Kiwaniqueens" will celebrate the 40th anniversary of the founding of the local chapter next Monday evening with a dinner at Leutheuser's Restaurant.

Ernest F. Hunt, governor of the Michigan District of Kiwanis International, will be an honored guest at the meeting. Hunt, who lives in Holt, is an Industrialist who has a record of 25 years' perfect attendance with the Holt chapter.

Local Kiwanians are telling the story of a happening at one of the first local Kiwanis meetings. Oscar North, the first president of the chapter, was also a chemistry teacher. He was illustrating the power of suggestion and had passed around the table a glass tube of so-called nitro-glycerine. North had explained the potential of that amount of explosive in an earlier talk. By pre-arrangement, when the "Nitro-glycerine" was passed to Frank Bird, then register of deeds, he fumbled it and it fell to the floor. At that moment, Clarence Meggison, who later represented this area in the state legislature, shot a blank cartridge under the table.

This incident nearly shattered the Kiwanis Club of Charlevoix, but eventually 26 of those in attendance became charter members of the chapter.

Each year the Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts of the Charlevoix area gather sap from maple trees in the city, from which the Kiwanians make maple syrup. The funds derived from the sale of the syrup are used for the Club's youth projects.

New Group Formed

Al-A-Non, an organization for families and friends of alcoholics now meets every Friday evening at 8 o'clock in Christ Episcopal Church.

Purpose of the group is to share experiences and thereby help each other. "Everyone can expect sympathy and understanding because of all of us are living with the same problems and frustrations," a spokesman for the group says.

It is essentially an anonymous group. Only first names are used and everything that is said is kept confidential. Although Al-A-Non is not affiliated with Alcoholics Anonymous, they do cooperate with them and their program is based on the 12 steps of A.A.

Besides meetings, members are available for telephone counseling 24 hours a day. The local phone number is 547-2145.

Meet Mary Chew

Mary Ann Chew has been a fourth grade teacher in the Charlevoix School System for seven years.

You never know what you might find on the countertops in her classroom as her children are involved in numerous science and social studies projects.

Miniature people and paper houses, various bug and plant collections, test tubes, dry cells, and other miscellaneous items line the counters, making an interesting learning environment.

Mary Ann abides by the premise that children learn best by doing and provides ample opportunities for creative productivity. Each day her children engage in individuatized reading and spelling lessons.

In guiding her children's learning experiences, Mary Ann likes to accentuate the positive, and she also likes to encourage reading for pleasure.

Reading for pleasure, especially about archaeology, is one of Mary Ann's favorite pastimes, along with other interests such as growing roses, antique hunting, arts and crafts, and sailing.

She and her husband, Vince, also have had a major project going on this past year—building their second home.

This summer found Mary Ann painting, insulating the whole house, and even mixing mortar! Also lending a hand or two with the family project was the Chew's five year old son, Michael.

Mary Ann graduated from Flint Junior College with a retailing degree, but she went on to get a teaching certificate from Central Michigan University and the University of Michigan. Before coming back to the northern Michigan area (Mary Ann was raised in Petoskey), she and Vince remained in the Flint area where they both taught school for a few years.

Presently Mary Ann is an active member of the Congregational Church, being Assistant Superintendent of the Sunday School. She is also active in the Hospital Guild and Women's Club.

As chairman of the Professional Studies Committee, a school-related group, Mary Ann and other teacher representatives work with the school board and administrators to raise educational standards and facilitate school affairs.

Library notes

We have some helpful and informative new books to mention this week, as well as some highly entertaining new titles.

VITAMINS IN YOUR LIKE is a readable and honest book on vitamins and nutrition written by Dr. Erwin Di Cyan who has been a drug consultant for 28 years.

At a time when the clamor for natural foods and vitamins has reached monumental proportions, this book comes as an illuminating road map through the maze of the vitamins, minerals and trace minerals that are so vital to the healthy functioning of body and mind.

EARLY DETECTION, by Dr. Philip Strax presents a long overdue testimonial to the value of the early diagnosis of minimal breast cancer. This new book should really be required reading for every woman. It is not only educational, but it may also save the reader's precious life. There is an excellent question and answer section which clears up a great many misconceptions and old wives' tales.

On March 27, 1944, President Roosevelt had a complete physical examination. He died suddenly of a massive intracerebral hemorrhage on April 12, 1945.

The new book FDR'S Last Year by Jim Bishop gives a detailed account of the last 12½ months of his life, day by day, and sometimes hour by hour.

It may have been the most crucial year in the 20th century.

It was the last year of the war in Europe, the year of the Quebec Conference and Yalta.

This accurate and authentic account is based on hundreds of interview with secretaries, Secret Service men, doctors, political cronies and relatives of FDR.

It is a lengthy but carefully documented account of the world-shaping events of a momentous year in our history.

CHIEF!, is a first-rate account of the tough, cigar-smoking retired Chief of detectives of the New York City Police Dept.

As former boss of 3,000 detectives and a veteran of 30 years on the force, Al Seedman is acknowledged by many as the most brilliant and intuitive detective since Sherlock Holmes.

After Three Weeks

Kenney's Excavating Holds First Place

By Chuck Wright

After three weeks of city league action, all three divisions have extremely close races. Only Kenney's Excavating holds first place outright.

In the "A" league Freedman's and the Town House have identical 3-0 records but each have almost been knocked off. Last week Medusa led the Town House throughout their contest only to fall 60-58 on Joe Beaudoin's last second basket. Bob's Sunoco almost upset Freedman's the previous week.

In the Lake Michigan division of the "B" League. Russell's Shell, Charlevoix County State Bank, and Andy's Tire World are in a three way tie with 2-1 records.

Russell's was upset last week by Jim's Clark 56-52. Jerry Skippergosh collected 32 points for Jim's.

Kenney's sole possession of first place in the Lake Charlevoix division of the "B" league is the result of its hard fought win over John Deere. Both teams were undefeated entering the game.

With the score 36 apiece at the end of the third quarter, John Deere and Kenney's put on a scoring exhibition. Kenney's won the wild fourth quarter and the game 59-52. Mike Wallick scored 20 for the winners while Max Bolser and Jack Danbert had 15 and 12 respectively. Dave Moyer had 20 for John Deere and Gary Stuzman had 18.

While Beaudoin's shot enabled Town House to fight off Medusa, it was Spook Coleman who led the way with 21 points. His hot outside shooting offset the super efforts of Kevin Swanson, Bruce Meggison and Randy DeYoung who combined for 42 points.

Freedman's had no trouble with Haggard's, winning 93-55. After a slow first quarter Freedman's got its feared fast break going. Roger Crain collected 21, Denny Crain 17, Rich Kelly and Terry Blissett 14, and Mike Bade 13. Mike Hamilton led Haggard's with 16 followed by Dave Fershee with 14 and Rich Wojan with 11.

Coast Guard took its weekly drubbing, this time at the hands of Bob's Sunoco. Hud Drenth paced the 68-25 victory with 27 points. Harold DeYoung added 14 and Ron Boss 12.

Jim's 56-54 win over Russell's was a bitterly fought affair. Skippergosh's one man show was enough to overcome Russell's balance. Larry Brock had 16 for Russell's, Mike Crain 14, and Jim Potter 13. Vince Left added 10 points to Jim's cause.

The Jonnechek brothers are becoming quite a show. Kevin scored 29 and Steve 20 in leading Andy's Tire World to a 63-53 victory over Alray Cottages. Carl Swanson had 14 for the losers.

In a tight defensive battle First State Bank nipped Village Milkhouse 34-32. The game was tied at the end of the second and third quarter. Chuck Bentley scored eight of his 10 points in the second half to lead the way. Roger Gowell

Rayders Open Tonight Against Harbor Springs

By FRAN MARTIN

The Charlevoix Rayders, coached by Barry Anderson, will launch their 1974-75 cage season Tuesday followed by two others within the week.

Charlevoix will host Harbor Springs here Tuesday in a non-league game; travel to Grayling Friday to play the first game of the Michigan-Huron Shores schedule and entertain Onaway in a second non-loop game next Tuesday.

Coach Anderson counts among his candidates for this year's squad eight players from last season including Mike Streeter, Chuck Faust, Dave Martinchek, Kevin Stokes, Bob Alger, Dan Greene, Jim Donaldson, and Kevin Martin, all of whom saw action with the Varsity last season.

Streeter, a senior guard, was a regular all season, while Stokes, a 6-2 junior center, Dave Martinchek, a 6-0 senior forward, Alger, a 5-11 junior forward and Faust, a 5-11 senior guard played regularly but were not always starters.

Dan Greene, who is nursing a football injury, and Martin who has been ill, will be contenders for starting positions when they recuperate, Anderson said.

Anderson went on to say that the team definitely lacks height but added that he was hopeful the quintet could compensate for this with speed. "We have a fine potential as far as speed is

Open New Season

Wrestlers Take to the Road This Week

By FRAN MARTIN

The Charlevoix Rayder matmen, coached by Norm Probert, will take to the road Wednesday to launch the 1974-75 wrestling season.

The team will travel to Grayling on Wednesday for the season opener and go to Rogers City for a meet on Dec. 5.

Coach Probert counts 13 letter winners among the 31 boys who are out for the squad. Before the season is too far along he is hopeful of increasing this number to more than 35, he said Saturday.

He also said that the team was still competing in challenging matches to determine who would be participating in the various weight classes in Wednesday's opener.

At Friday's practice session, Pat DeYoung and Terry Mol, both seniors with three years experience behind them, were elected co-captains of this year's wrestling team.

DeYoung, who transferred here from Moline, Ill., where he spent his freshman year, wrestles in the 138 pound class. Mol, who also is beginning his fourth year on the mats, is in the 145 pound class.

Others are Phil Christ, a senior who has a 61-15 record in the heavyweight class and could hit the century mark, according to Probert. This will be his fourth year in the sport. At the present time, he is working toward participating in the 185 pound class. Terry Drew, a junior with two years experience is in the 132 pound class; Tim DeYoung, 112 pound junior with one year's experience; Rex Hodge, 119 pound class, a senior with two years experience; Dan Key, a senior with three years experience in either the 112 or 119 pound class; Bill Belfy, a senior who is out for a second year in the 119 pound class: Dane Whitley, a junior with two years experience in the 167 pound class; Don Trost, a sophomore who is starting his second year in the 119 pound class; Gary Probert, sophomore with a year's experience in the 167 pound class; Rob Hilton, 126 pounds, a junior with a year's experience and Dan Mort, 155 pounds, a senior with three years experience who is presently recuperating from a shoulder injury.

Others are Jeff Skelton, 106 pound sophomore who won a numeral last season; Ralph Muma, 126 lb. sophomore; Dave Swartwout, 126 lb. sophomore; Jim Sladek, 185 lb. senior who is out for the first time; Christ Wimmer, 145 junior out for the first time; Frank Olach, 126 lb. sophomore who lettered last year and who came out Friday; Ed Bourke, a sophomore in the 155 pound class who won a numeral last season; Bob Sundahl, 155 pound senior out for the first time; Ron Smith, 145 pound junior; Mike Snizik, 145 sophomore out for the second year; Rich Borths (119), Greg Loper (167), Brad Snizik (126), Craig Golovich (112), a transfer from Fenton, Swain Smith (119), Mike Kitely (106), and Mark Byard (98), with their weights who are freshmen and out for the first time.

Probert said he would be assisted by Mike Carland and John Ozga, the latter a former Rayder wrestler and graduate of Lake Superior State College, who has returned here.

Can several policies to protect one business cost more?

They certainly can, if the coverages overlap! If you have several insurance policies to protect your business, you may be paying twice for the same insurance! Coverages don't often overlap, but one "double coverage" is one too many. Check your insurance policies to see if there's any duplication now. Or better yet, call us to see if you qualify for our Business Multi-Peril Insurance. Multi-Peril puts all the coverages you need into one package with one premium. That's right—it's all together.

Mrs. Herman Van Stedum and Mrs. Harry Cooper, who were patients at Charlevoix for a week, came home last Wednesday.

Mrs. Harry DeGroot has been in Grand Rapids the past two weeks caring for her daughter Mrs. Betty Mae Nichols and babies. Betty Mae is experiencing serious heart trouble and is confined to her bed for rest.

Jim Kooyer and wife, Bill Kooyer and family visited their folks Mr. and Mrs. John Kooyer the past week.

Anne Osterbaan, who visited her children, brother and sisters and other relatives in Wyoming, Grandville, Zeeland, West Olive and Hamilton the past two weeks, came home Thursday in that big snow storm. Roads were very slippery at the south end. Her granddaughter Evonne Osterbaan visited with her grandmother Friday and Saturday while her father Peter Osterbaan and friend Gene Berens of Hamilton went deer hunting. Many deer were seen, but the only deer they came home with was a doe, illegally shot by another hunter. The doe was picked up by Antrim County Conservation officers.

His wife Effie Vandenberg Sears is the sister of Grace Klooster and Jake Vandenberg of Ellsworth. They have four children, a daughter Judy and three sons, John, Franklin and David. Nursery Co-op Meeting

Indians Teach Parents

ROBERT DOMINIC of Petoskey sang some local Indian chants Thursday night in the Charlevoix Public Library basement for Charlevoix Nursery Co-op parents and children

Parents could learn a lot about child rearing if they looked at how the Indians used to do it.

"They never believed in beating a child," Mrs. Robert Dominic told some 40 parents of the Charlevoix Co-op Nursery Thursday night.

"But, they did believe in punishment."

Instead of spanking a child, the parents would simply tell the entire village, who would in turn tell their children.

"The children knew they were supposed to play with him," she said.

After so many days of being ignored, Mrs. Dominic said, he would have the option of either confessing or leaving the village.

If he confessed to his parents for the mistake he made, the entire village would have a feast--and place the child in the seat of honor.

"He realized then how terrible it was to be a bad boy," she said.

The scene was one of many example that Mrs. Dominic used to show how parents of today could learn from Indians of the past.

Instead of the parents raising children, Mrs. Dominic said grandparents were used because of the many experiences they had had.

"The parents job was to provide a living for that child," she said.

Mrs. Dominic said children these days are not encouraged to enjoy nature like they were in earlier days.

Often children were left in the woods alone for several days, she continued, so they could learn how to survive and understand the spirits.

The Petoskey woman added that Indian children were taught also only to use what they needed and not to waste anything.

Mrs. Dominic's brief remarks followed a dance demonstration and story telling session by her husband.

Dominic along with his son, Brian, and friend, Sandi Nognnashe, also from Petoskey showed how Indians of both this locality and the eastern portion of the United States danced.

Robert Cook Honored

By FRAN MARTIN

Robert J. Cook, teacher in the tool and die and machine trades program at East Jordan for more than eight years before retiring, was honored recently by former students for his efforts in their behalf.

Four of his former students made the presentation, which was a surprise to him, after the majority of the more than 150 students had been contacted by the quartet composed of Michael Klooster of Eastport, Thomas Rainey of Boyne City, Gordon Himebauch and David Marshall, both of Charlevoix.

In appreciation of his dedication to the program which he helped found and develop with the aid of nine northern Michigan industries, he was presented with a plaque that bears the following legend: "To Bob Cook, a man of "rarity" who has for eight years helped improve and train over 150 men of northern Michigan for industry.

With our sincere thanks,
(signed) The Graduates and Participants in the East Jordan Tool and Die and Machine
Trades Program.

November 1974

The founding of the program in 1965 resulted from the need of skilled labor for industries in the area. Through the efforts of Cook and the late Uno Suomela, both teachers with the Charlevoix high school at the time, and the cooperation of nine area industries working through the Michigan Vocational Department and the U.S. Department of Labor, the program came into being. Its purpose was to upgrade workmen in the various fields relating to the tool and die industry.

The apprenticeship program that resulted requires 8,000 hours of shop experience and classroom training over a four-year period to receive a journeyman's rating in the tool and die or machine trades. The course is designed for one or the other.

In all, more than 300 men have participated in the course, Cook said. Of this number, more than 150 have graduated or will graduate in June. Others enrolled in other certain phases of the program.

The present class will complete its studies in June. Until economic conditions better themselves, it is unlikely the program will be continued for the present, Cook said. However, should a need arise at some future date, the program may be resumed.

The classes, two per week throughout the school year for four years, were taught at the East Jordan high school which made its facilities available to the program. Men from as far away as Otsego, Kalkaska and Emmet Counties participated.

Walter Thorsen of East Jordan has served as chairman of the Industrial committee which helped found the program. Norman Cook is its present director. Numerous teachers have worked with the program since the death of Mr. Suomela and the recent retirement of Mr. Cook.

MR. AND MRS. Hans DeYoung of Ellsworth are celebrating their 35th wedding anniversary. An open house was held last weekend at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Vollmer in Ellsworth. Mr. and Mrs. DeYoung have two children, Judie (Mrs. Robert Vollmer); and Dean; as well as four grandchildren--Jeff, Bryan, Scott and Doug.

concerned. If we can develop this asset, we should make a pretty fair showing" Anderson continued.

On Saturday, Anderson said Streeter, Stokes, Martinchek, Faust and Alger would probably start but added that that could change before the opener Tuesday.

Charlevoix finished the season last spring with a record of 5 wins and 9 loses in league play and 8 and 14 overall record. The Rayders were tied with Grayling for fourth place behind Boyne City (12-2); Cheboygan and St. Ignace (11-3) and Petoskey (8-6) in league standings.

also had 10 points for First State Bank. Gary Novotny had 12 for Village Milkhouse.

Wojan Aluminum won its first of the year with a 45-39 victory over Muma's. Down 32-26 at the end of the third quarter, Wojan's rallied behind the offensive thrusts of "Clean" Dean Mikulski. He scored 6 of his 14 points during the rally. Don Ward chipped in 10 points. Bill Gensle paced Muma's with 13 while Mal Maps added 10.

Charlevoix County State Bank clobbered Medusa "B" 80-39. Dennis LaCroix led the barrage with 20. Denny Richardson had 17 and Steve Martinis 12. Stan Johnson managed 10 for Medusa.

High scorers for the week: Hud Drenth's 27 points led the "A" league while Jerry Skippergosh had the season's high scoring 32 in the "B" league.

Reibel

"Regardless of the outcome of the trial, it indicates the system can correct itself."

The complaint alleges that last August, Reibel figured in a row with Mackinaw City police and harbor authorities over a tugboat he owned, engaging in "scandalous, improper and abusive" conduct with intent to intimidate the officers.

Reibel claims his boat was in danger of sinking and that he needed electricity to keep his pumps going.

He said "a young fellow" at the dock told him to move and was indignant when Reibel told him that marine laws permit him to dock in times of emergency.

Reibel said he then told the dock muster to call the police.

Charges that he has failed to dispose of his backlog of cases and in fact supplied the Supreme Court Administrator's office with false information on his caseload brought denials by the district judge.

In fact, Reibel said, the state office had supplied him with outdated forms.

"I'm sure some of the fugures are wrong because the report was wrong," he said.

The complaint listed by title 341 separate legal actions pending, in Emmet and Charlevoix Counties, which Judge Reibel was said to have "persistently failed and neglected" to process.

Another portion of the complaint charged Reibel installed a county expense, in the Charlevoix County Courthouse, a telephone and telephone line for Castle Farms and Beaver Island Transit, Inc.

However, Reibel says this was done in agreement with the deceased Kit Carson, a County commissioner on the Buildings and Grounds Committee.

The judge said the county had no equipment and he worked it out so the county could use his (Reibel's equipment) if he could use one private telephone line (in the Charlevoix County Courthouse) to divest himself of his private investments.

Reibel said he does not plan to divest himself of Castle Farms, Inc., as has been ordered by the Supreme Court Administrator, because he sees no conflict of interest and it is within the guideline established by the Canons of Judicial Ethics adopted recently by the Michigan Supreme Court.

The 41-year-old judge, who draws $21,000 a year from the state and only a $600 supplement from Charlevoix County, said he has hired Dean Robb, a Traverse City attorney, to represent both him and the county.

The Crooked Tree Arts Council, of Charlevoix and Emmet Counties, Board of Directors, met with Boal in late summer to endorse the plans and pledge its support. At a meeting in his summer home, the Boals discussed the plans with a few Charlevoixans who agreed to help develop the Lake Charlevoix Music Festival Association, once funds were approved, and to meantime write on their own and solicit others to write E. Ray Scott, Michigan Council for the Arts, to consider the grant request favorably. Amongst local supporters are: The Rev. Hewitt and Cynthia Johnston, Edith Gilbert, Tom and Holly Seeling, Tom and Sara Gay Dammann.

The grant proposal that Delta College sent to the arts council stated, "Great care and effort would be directed...toward cooperating and coordinating with any and all other arts oriented or civic organizations within the immediate as well as more remote areas around Charlevoix, to insure that (1) the proposed program would be innovating, supplementing and enhancing in nature rather than competitive in any way."

Thanksgiving Services

Thanksgiving will begin this week with many Charlevoix residents participating in the Community Thanksgiving Service scheduled for Wednesday.

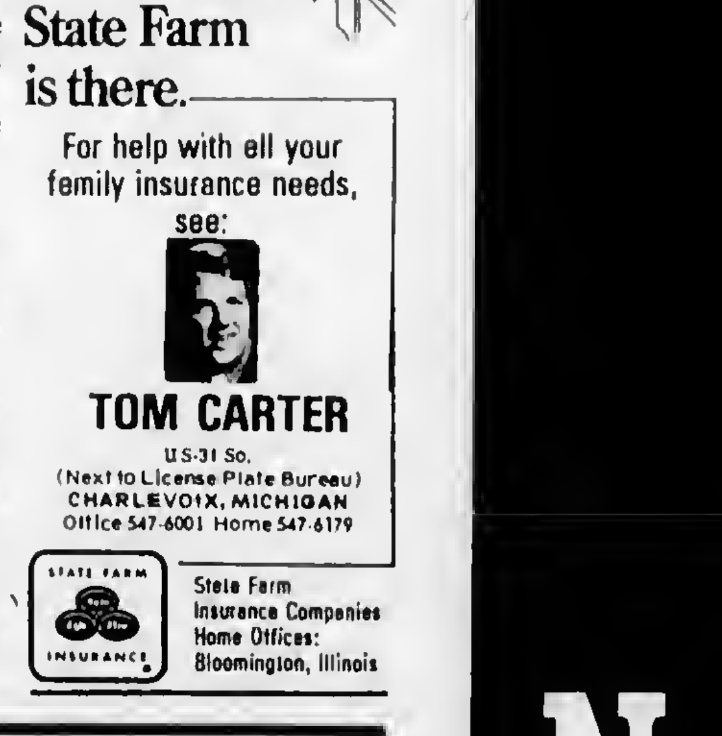
The service, hosted by the United Methodist Church in Charlevoix, will begin at 7:30 p.m.

In addition to congregational singing, special music will be added by other churches.

The Rev. Don Schorsch, pastor of the Assembly of God Church, will bring the message entitled "Praise," using his text from the 15th Psalm.

Ironton Congregational Church (United Church of Christ) members are planning their own special Thanksgiving Eve service for 8 p.m.

On Thanksgiving Day, the Christian Science Society at 205 Clinton in Charlevoix will hold a service at 11 a.m.



Like a good neighbor, State Farm is there.

Charlevoix Commissioner Says To Expect New Dog Shelter

By Peg Ohle

Charlevoix County may have a new dog shelter in operation by the middle of next year, says County Commissioner Ralph Richardson, a member of the Sheriff's Committee, which has jurisdiction over the shelter.

Richardson says that if another $10,000 can be put into the County's 1975 budget to add to the $10,000 already set aside to build a shelter, a simple but adequate shelter can be constructed.

Antrim County has a new shelter built at a cost of $18,000 to $19,000, including a pickup truck used to transport the animals. "The building is completely enclosed and insulated," Richardson says, you can live next door and not know it was a dog shelter."

The County has also been looking at building sites for the structure, but no decision has been reached as to whether it will be in the Boyne City or Charlevoix area.

The present shelter in Boyne City does not meet state standards and has been under attack for some time by state officials, who cite the lack of water, heat, electricity, and ventilation.

Richardson says he hopes that a cooperative agreement can be worked out with the County Humane Society to help furnish the new building.

The Humane Society is now carrying on a membership drive for funds.

A contribution of $5.00 or over entitles a person to an adult membership. Student junior memberships are available for 50 cents.

Contributions to the Humane Society may be sent to Patricia Sturm, treasurer, Box 2151, Boyne City, Michigan, 49712.

Christmas Tree Growing Is Number 1 in Michigan

By PEG OHLE

Christmas is still a month away but hundreds of thousands of Michigan grown Scotch, Austrian and Norway, pine, Douglas fir and white spruce trees have already been shipped across the United States and Canada to be decorated for the holiday season.

Michigan is the number one state in the country in producing plantation grown Christmas trees, supplying over four million, or about 12 percent of the national market.

Most of the trees are grown in the northeastern part of the lower penninsula, from Cadillac to the Thumb area. Some are also grown in the upper peninsula and in northwestern Michigan.

The Snow-Kist Company, with headquarters in Cheboygan, is one of the larger growers. One of their plantations is in Charlevoix County, near Boyne Falls.

Joseph Feuquay, assistant manager of Snow-Kist, says this year's shipment of trees will number about 100,000. It is a good year for harvesting because of last year's relatively mild, dry winter. During harsh winters much damage is done to trees by mice and other animals, as well as by grossbeaks, which eat the buds from the trees.

Snow-Kist, like other Michigan Christmas tree growers, ships trees to Texas, California, even British Columbia. Feuquay says they ship very few trees to Michigan outlets because retail prices here are about the same as wholesale prices in other parts of the country.

Costs of operation are putting the squeeze on Christmas tree growers. Labor, transportation and materials all cost more, according to Feuquay. "Twine that we tie the trees with costs 400 percent more than it did last year," he says.

Growing Christmas trees plantation style started in Michigan in a large way about 15 years ago, reports Bob Neumann, Jr. of Michigan State University's Department of Information Services.

From eight to ten years are required for a young seedling to become a harvestable Christmas tree (six to seven feet tall). During this time tree plantations are providing valuable wildlife cover for deer, pheasants and snowshoe hare.

Scotch pine is the most popular Christmas tree among producers and consumers. It is one of the fastest growing, and it keeps better than some other species which may drop needles after cutting.

Many people like to cut their own trees. It not only is a good family activity, but it assures the customer a fresh tree. Other people like to dig their tree, keep it in a pot during the holidays and re-plant it outside after Christmas. This is not difficult, Neumann says, because the ground is not frozen too hard this time of year. If a peat pot is used, the pot can be buried in the ground with the tree.

John Essenburg, who used to harvest 3,000 or 4,000 trees on his plantation south of Atwood, now cuts only 300 or 400 , which he sells at both wholesale and retail. His trees are Scotch pines.

Michigan State offers some hints on how to make sure your tree will stay green and fresh as possible. When you get it home, cut a fourth or half inch off the bottom of the trunk and place the tree in water immediately.

JOHN ESSENBURG shows some of the trees he has cut down for sale in the area. His farm is located in Atwood.

Council Approves Merger And Adopts Time Table

Charlevoix City Councilmen officially set the wheels in motion for merging with Charlevoix Township Monday night.

Council unanimously approved a resolution that establishes a time table for merger, as well as calls for revision of the city charter.

And to further formalize its commitment, the council, along with the mayor and city attorney, signed a written statement that they would resign if merger was approved.

The action came only minutes after Councilman Gerald Selph introduced the motion that could have the township and city merger as early as October, 1975.

Mayor Ed Hansen said he thought the township is going to want more services and that the city is going to want to provide them.

"It's a question of people wanting to do it under one head of government or under two heads of government," he said.

Last night's resolution modifies an earlier resolution to revise the city charter next February to later in the year, after township residents are given a chance to decide whether or not they want to join with the city.

The decision to investigate merger further comes only weeks after both a public hearing and several other public discussions that residents were interested.

Under the newly adopted time table, citizen committees will be appointed as soon as possible to study items ranging from police and fire protection to taxation.

Then by March 1, each of the eight committees will submit reports to city council and the township board. The two governmental units have until April 1 to take action.

In May, a hearing would be held by the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners on merger.

While this is taking place, the city would still continue with its regular city primary election in February, with the city election on April 7.

In June, Charlevoix Township residents will hold a special election on the merger issue if the county commission gives the go ahead.

During August, new petitions for mayor and six aldermen would have to be filed if the merger question passes in the township.

If merger fails, there would be a special election in September in only the city for charter revision and election of nine charter commissioners.

Otherwise, a special election will be held for mayor and six new aldermen, as well as the charter and charter commission, in October.

In other action, council:

Indians Balk at Federal Plan

By TOM DAMMANN

MUSKEGON--Some 200 Michigan Indians, representing the Grand River Band of Ottawas, voted unanimously Saturday night to reject a plan submitted by Secretary of the Interior Roger B. Morton for distribution of an award of more than one and a quarter million dollars.

The Indians acted because the plan fails to specify that only persons with one quarter or more Indian blood are eligible to receive the money.

Their fear is that under current plans the money would be dissipated in payments to all sorts of people with very little Indian blood, and therefore not help those who need it.

"When persons who are less than one quarter blood degree are paid, then the Indian is paying the whiteman for taking away his land," The Michigan Ottawa and Chippewa Descendants Committee of non-Reservation Indians wrote in a position paper.

The money was appropriated by Congress October 21, 1968, in satisfaction of an award granted to the band by the Indian Claims Commission following 20 years of litigation over the price paid the Indians for approximately one million acres of land in the Grand Rapids-Traverse City area they ceded to the Federal government in an 1821 treaty.

The price paid in 1821 ranged from three to 16 cents an acre, according to Robert Dominic, of Petoskey, President of the Northern Michigan Ottawa Association. The settlement amounts to about 90 cents an acre.

The funds have not been distributed pending a plan which was supposed to be worked out with the Indians.

The Association whose membership includes many Charlevoix Indians has long maintained that only applicants who can prove they have one-quarter Indian blood are eligible, that this is the basis on which such things as scholarships and medical assistance are granted to Indians throughout the nation, says Mrs. Waunetta Dominic, of Petoskey, Secretary of the organization.

In a letter to Carl Albert, Speaker of the U.S. House of Representatives, Morton outlined the method of Girls Ready for Regionals

The Charlevoix high school girls basketball team, District champs, will go against a strong Alcona squad in the opening game of the regional tournament at Mancelona at 7 p.m. Wednesday.

Charlevoix goes into the tournament with an 18-0 record. Alcona has a 20-1 record.

Coach Toni Felter said she would likely start Cheryl Pence, Lea Steelman, Denise Boss, Heidi Dove and Tammy Penney with Von Priest certain to see action early in the game.

She said that Dona Bellowa and Sandra Jodges would probably also see action.

"The girls are ready. They're remembering what happened to them in the district tournament last year and trying doubly as hard to compensate for that experience "Mrs. Felter said of the team.

The finals will be played Friday

Fran Martin Honored

Fran Martin was made an honorary member of the Coast Guard Wives Club at their November meeting. Fran has been a friend of Coast Guard personnel for many years and has acted as unofficial welcomer to many service newcomers.

The club also had a Christmas Toy party and a garage sale recently. Plans for their Christmas party will be presented at the next meeting of the group, this Wednesday at 7:15 in the Coast Guard Station.

Purpose of the Club is to perform charitable works and to help service people become acquainted with the community. Membership is open to women whose husbands are on active duty or are retired from any military service.

Recently elected officers of the Coast Guard Wives are Mary Neal, president; Judy Beglin, vice-president; Marie Packert, secretary; and Katie Wade, treasurer.

Planners Look at Soil Erosion Act

The Charlevoix County Planning Commission Thursday, December 5, at 7:30 in the Court House Annex.

The Commission's meeting will include a public hearing on the Soil Erosion and Sedimentation Act. (P.A. 72), which becomes effective January 1.

This Act will govern the cutting and filling of all land, as well as removal of vegetation to control erosion of valuable top soils and to prevent sedimenting of lakes and streams.

The Planning Commission will also vote on the selection of five proposed highway corridors through Northwestern Michigan.

The selection will be made from 15 submitted by the State Highways and Transportation Department.

Townships Meet At Bay Township

Collecting taxes was the major subject of discussion at the November meeting of the Charlevoix Township Association, held last week in the Bay Township Hall.

Robert Pollack of the State Treasury Department, Bureau of Local Government Services, spoke to the group about such matters as when tax money should be turned over to the County Treasurer, how it can be invested for short periods of time, and auditing procedures.

Election of officers for the coming year was also held. Rose Bergmann of Charlevoix Township was re-elected chairman and Joan Oliver of Wilson Township was elected secretary-treasurer. She succeeds Shirleen Tripp of Hayes Township, who was not a candidate for re-election.

The Weathervane Inn

Young Offers Another Chapter

EDITOR'S NOTE: Earl A. Young, Charlevoix realtor, is known around the world for his contributions to Charlevoix. This week he is offering another chapter from his book he is about to publish concerning his involvement in Charlevoix during the last 70 years.

With Christmas just around the corner, Mr. Young thought this chapter on the Weathervane Inn would be appropriate.

This is the second time any portion of the books has appeared in print. Last July, the Courier printed his introduction on Charlevoix.

By EARL A. YOUNG

When finishing details at Weathervane Inn in June, 1954, we moved a 15 year old, long-needled pine hall way up the sloping bank of the river to the channel bank not far from our office door.

The tree looked nice just coming even with the top of the bridge railing.

Everyone interested at all expressed doubt that a tree that size moved could possibly live. We were very careful to plant the tree the same way to the weather it had been before.

We sliced up a bag of raw potatoes to put around the roots with a great deal of earth from its former location; we watched and kept it well watered.

I was confident it was going to live.

Then in late summer one side of the tree started to turn brown. People who had been watching said, "Earl, your tree is dying", and I always answered, "the tree can't die, I just won't let it die, it just has to live".

All summer I paid special attention to the tree and before the end of October the rusty brown needles began to be replaced by new growth.

The next spring there was welcoming evidence of new needles and a few white shining pine cones started to appear.

For 16 years we watched over it until instead of being fifteen feet high, it was thirty feet high and a very definite spot of beauty at the end of the bridge near the Inn, with the background of stone work.

This unusually lovely picture was taken by friend Forrest Fowler, early one morning in March when there was an extremely heavy frost.

Another summer of enjoyable beauty and then in the storm of November 22, 1970–a storm such as we have never seen before with waves coming in all the way from Lake Michigan washing the bank so far that the water was lapping the basement walls of the Inn and threatening to undermine the north abutment to the bridge–the eddy formed by the waves at this point tore away all of the bank and toppled our pine tree into the surging water.

For sixteen years our lively pine tree was a friend of great beauty and understanding and is now just a memory.

MR. AND MRS. GEORGE Housel of Horton Bay remember what it is like to go through a depression. Hopefully, they won't have to go through another one.

Charlevoix Residents Do

Remember the Last Depression?

By PEG OHLE

What was it like back in the days of the Great Depression, the days that parents and grandparents like to tell their young people about with an additional phrase such as "you don't know what tough times are?"

We asked a few area residents what they remember about those days, and in most cases their answers bore a tone of nostalgia rather than pity and hardship.

Ralph Hamilton was living in Grand Rapids then. He says, "Things were tough. I ended up one Christmas with 25 cents in my pocket. I had a family too."

$25 A Week

In January, Hamilton says, he got a job that paid $25 a week if he sold seven insurance policies.

If he didn't make that quota, he would sign up "a tombstone", hoping that another week he would be able to take that name off his list and sign up a legitimate customer.

An honest grocer helped the Hamilton family live by extending credit. Food costs were low, hamburg was ten cents a pound, Hamilton recalls.

When asked how he thought the younger generation today would take a depression Hamilton said he was afraid "not too well," citing the riots occasioned by the Viet Nam war.

Mrs. John Martin, Sr. says that she was living on a farm in those days, and though they didn't have any money, they had plenty to eat. Things like Christmas presents weren't bought," she recalls, "but made from articles we had around the house."

The Bieha's

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bleha lived in Charlevoix during the depression years. Bleha worked in a grocery store 70 to 80 hours a week for a salary of $10. Farmers traded items such as eggs and hogs for groceries. Eggs were seven or eight cents a dozen, and one Christmas Eve, Bleha recalls, a farmer brought in two hogs, for which the store paid him four cents a pound, then cut them up and sold them for six cents a pound.

Mrs. Bleha says their grocery budget was $3 a week in those days, and one person couldn't carry the food home.

The depression hit Charlevoix gradually, Bleha says, because people were used to working only during the summer, and for quite a while there was enough money from summer residents to help things along.

'Big Salary'

"Everyone had gardens and chickens and put up their own ice in the winter. There were 26 fishing tugs operating out of Charlevoix and you could buy 50 pounds of salted fish for the winter for $5, " Bleha says.

The average wage in Charlevoix during the depression years was $300 to $400 a year, with teachers receiving the latter "big" salary, according to Bleha. But houses could be bought for $300 or $400.

Mrs. Bleha worked with the federal relief program when it came to Charlevoix County in 1934. It was the first federal money that had ever come to the county, and it was difficult to distribute it equitably. "There wasn't enough to go around and we were constantly accused of showing favoritism," she recalls.

Ooly $36

Another local resident, who lived downstate at the time, remembers that he and his sister supported a family of eight on a total income of $36 a week in the 1930's. "We were lucky to have jobs. It was those who couldn't find work that were really hurt in those days," he says.

Mrs. Jack Van Loo was only a small child during the depression, but one of her memories during those days is the "ice cream" her mother made from snow. "Mother would take off the top layer of snow and use the clean lower layer," she recalls. Then she would mix it with vanilla and sugar. It tasted much like regular ice cream. It was good," she adds.

The George Housels of Horton Bay lived on a farm in Ohio in the 1930's. They have many memories of those days, memories of hard work and little money, but of much ingenuity.

Maple Syrup

Housel cut red oak lumber which he sold for $15 a thousand feet. One year they made 150 gallons of maple syrup and marketed it for 50 cents a gallon.

At one time, when Housel ran a garage part time, he accumulated a supply of tires and jacks and other tools taken in trade for gasoline, which sold for about 20 cents a gallon. These were later sold at a small profit. Dismantling cars for the aluminum in them was also a business venture. The aluminum was then sold to a junkyard.

Housel also bought hay and straw which he baled and sold to the local fairground for $2.50 a ton. He grew and sold oats for 25 cents a bushel. When he worked for someone else, Housel was "tickled to death to get $1.00 a day."

Cleaned Houses

Mrs. Housel remembers cleaning an elderly neighbor's house to earn enough money to buy shoes for her son's graduation. She also remembers that instead of butter the family ate bacon

Guess What?--It's Tax Time!

City and rural mail carriers have especially heavy loads this week, and it isn't a rush of early Christmas cards that's filling the bags. It's the annual property tax bills.

Statements for all taxes levied in the county, with the exception of taxes for city governments, are being sent to owners of 20,568 parcels of property for a total of $5,508,291. The average bill is $267.80.

Property owners in the cities of Charlevoix, Boyne City and East Jordan, and the village of Boyne Falls, will receive 5,856 of these greetings. Those in the unincorporated areas will receive 14,712.

The taxes will cover the cost of operating Charlevoix County, its 15 townships, the local school districts and the Intermediate School District during the coming year.

Taxes are due and payable on December 1, with a collection fee of one percent being added if paid on or before February 14, 1975. An additional collection fee of three percent is added after that date.

A New Commission

The average American businessman and private citizen are being literally buried by an avalanche of required government paperwork. And the "snow" is getting deeper.

Between December, 1967 and June, 1974, businessmen found 159 more mandatory forms on their desks to be filled out. That made a total of 2,178 in 1974. Individuals, too, filled out 189 additional federal government forms in the same period.

Not only are Americans filling out more government applications, compliance reports, and statistical questionnaires--it's also taking them longer to do it. By June, 1974, for instance, American businessmen were spending 35.6 million manhours a year to complete these forms--up 11.9 million manhours from 1967. Individuals also were forced to up the time they spent on this paperwork by 11.5 million manhours in this period. These figures do not include time spent on state and local forms.

Expanded federal programs such as the Occupational Safety and Health Act, social security, manpower training, environmental protection, and equal employment opportunity compliance account for most of the 50 per cent increase in the reporting burden borne by American business since 1967.

Fortunately, relief is in sight in the form of a proposed Commission on Federal Paperwork to study the problem and recommend ways to ease the burden.

Legislation creating such a commission has merit, we believe. Someone, somehow, must help to shovel American business and industry out from under the costly "paper avalanche" now threatening to suffocate it.

Good Job Crews

Thanks to city street crews, the foot of snow which fell on Charlevoix Thanksgiving Eve wasn't such a calamity after all.

When dawn broke on Thursday, many Charlevoixans who had planned out-of-town --- or even in-town --- trips for the day considered cancelling them. All sidewalks and streets were virtually impassable.

Then --- even though it was a holiday --- the street crews began to work their magic.

Big and little snowplows rumbled up and down thoroughfares, side streets and alleys all day long until everyone was plowed out.

The little alley plow even worked long after dark, making sure every by-way in town was open to traffic.

And the job wasn't easy.

Many cars were left parked at the curb overnight, since the ban on street parking didn't go into effect until Dec. 1. The plows had to work around them.

And many residents had holiday company, meaning there probably were more cars to cope with than usual.

Undoubtedly the plowmen would have preferred to remain at home with their families over the holiday.

But they stuck to their machines until the job was done.

We all owe them a hearty "thank, you!" (B.C.)

Save Tax Money

For many Charlevoix County residents, this won't be a particularly good time of the year.

This is the week many residents will be getting their annual property tax bills.

It will be especially tough because some are having a tough time meeting expenses with rising food costs and other inflationary factors.

Because of our troubled economic times, while we encourage everyone to pay their taxes, we also encourage government officials to take extreme caution in spending tax dollars.

This is not a time to be launching new programs or beefing up departmental staffs.

It is a time to be thinking of ways to be cutting down on tax dollar spending.

We might even go as far to suggest that perhaps those serving on appointed and elected commissions go without the salaries they may be getting.

We feel this is particularly a good move for those serving on the county board of commissioners.

Each commissioner averages about $2,500 a year that could be saved if he was willing to forego the token salary for his services.

It used to be an honor to serve on the county board and we feel this should be enough payment for the service they render.

At the same time, it would allow taxpayers a break that is needed at this time.

Resident Talks About Merger

Dear Editor:

I feel I should write something in connection with the proposed merger of Township and City.

I believe it is a good idea to merge for the mutual benefit of both sides.

The Township, being more or less dependent on the City for police protection, utilities etc., can, as part of the City, depend on same instead of having to ask and getting, if and when!

The City again, needs room to expand.

I believe the south half of the Township could be incorporated as one ward, perhaps as ward four. The north half could then be joined in as ward five with of course equal representation in the City Council.

There is and has been more than talk of a new High School complex. This my friends and fellow neighbors, will come sooner or later and I'll hazzard a guess sooner then expected, though I cannot see where between six and seven million has to be spent.

That seems too much even for this day and age. The City and its environment is growing and so is the student enrollment.

Therefore, may I respectfully suggest if a new High is to be built, that the present City Hall be turned over to the Fire Department and maybe also, for the time being, the Police Department and that the middle school building, of the sensible disposal of which, not a word was mentioned at the last School Election time, be acquired for City Hall. While I am in agreement that this building may not meet the present day specifications for a school building, this 1927 built structure is sound, well built and as offices acceptable I am sure. The increasing size of the City warrants such a move. I believe that had a sensible disposal of the middle school building had been written or talked about at the time of the last school election the vote for the new High would have been considerably closer than it was.

The new Charlevoix township Fire Department, situated as it is on the north side of the Channel, is in an ideal location for all of the City's North side.

That beloved Channel Bridge is also a good bottleneck. With the Fire Department controlled from a central office where a better twenty-four hour watch would be maintained a greater fire hall space would have to be had, that is part of my reason for suggesting the disposal of the City Hall as I have suggested.

Now the middle school building is a large building and all of it would, perhaps never, be needed for city hall.

Therefore, could not a part of it, perhaps the one story wing, be dedicated for the use as a museum, I believe a nice, large museum building would be a great Summer Folk attraction to Charlevoix.

This would not have to be opened to the public, and therefore expensively heated, during the winter months.

Not just old pictures, which after all, are a dime a dozen round about, but Indian relics, old household tools and furnishings, farming tools, lumbering tools, commercial fishing and sailing equipment, such as old anchors and anchor chains, old guns and so forth, all such would slowly be turned over to a good museum.

A small fee, such as a dollar per family or fifty cents for each individual could be charged for maintenance and guard duty.

If I remember correctly the Furniture Museum in Grand Rapids opened at 10 and closed at about two, when last I was there many years ago, with no charge at the door; but that last I would not advise for these times.

Of course you folks in the Township are free to merge or not just as you see fit or wish.

After all, this is America and no political, "ism", is raising its ugly head and shouting, "You must" but I for one, believe it to be an all around wise move to merge.

Those of you who are in township office would be of course, eligible for city office.

Your good talents of office administration could and would be utilized for the good of the same people you are now serving as well as the people of 'Old Charlevoix.'

Let us also think of the duplication of almost all the governmental services which can only mean some needless expense.

Give it a good thinking over both City and Township folks and as far as I'm concerned, I'll just say, "Enough said!"

Respectfully signed,
Frank Kubleek

Getting to Know Mr. Raymer

By BOB CLOCK

I'd like you to meet Ralph Raymer, the new principal at Charlevoix Elementary School.

Mind you, I have never met Mr. Raymer myself, but I feel I know him better than some of my kith and kin.

In fact, ever since school started in September, Mr. Raymer has been a recurring topic of conversation at the Clock dinner table as our school girls discuss the events of the day.

I guess I brought up the subject of Mr. Raymer shortly after school opened when I asked the girls if they had met the new principal yet.

They agreed in unison that they had.

"What's he like?" I asked.

"Well, he only has one arm," Jennifer responded matter-of-factly.

"How did he lose his arm?"

"He lost it in a hunting accident," she answered. "They couldn't get the bullet out, so they cut off his arm."

"Is that what your teacher told you?" I asked.

"That's what HE told me," she answered.

I had a picture of Mr. Raymer as a man who doesn't pull any punches. He also sounded like someone who is acutely aware of the curiosity of the young.

"How did he happen to tell you about his arm?" I asked. Jennifer.

"Steven ASKED him," she responded.

On subsequent evenings we learned from Katie that Mr. Raymer is a wizard with coins.

"He'll hold a quarter in his hand, then flick his wrist and it'll be gone. Then he'll flick his wrist again and the coin will come back. I think it goes up his sleeve."

One day this fall Jennifer was running in the alley, tripped, fell and fractured her arm. The doctor put her broken wing in a splint for five weeks and a firm bond of affection developed between Jennifer and Mr. Raymer over their common affliction.

"He stops by the room almost every day to ask about my arm," she told me proudly one night.

She was very happy that Mr. Raymer cared.

One night all the girls were fairly bursting to tell Judy and me about a new game being played at the Elementary School.

"What kind of game is it?" I asked.

"Well, it's called 'Mr. Raymer'," Katie said.

"'Mr. Raymer!' That's a funny name for a game," I replied. "How do you play it?"

"Oh, it's easy," Jennifer said. "You put your arm inside your jacket, stuff the empty sleeve in your pocket and walk around the playground. Timmy plays it better than anyone. He puts his arm behind him so you can't see it."

"Do you think that's nice," I said, "mimicking Mr. Raymer just because he has only one arm?"

Faces all around the table suddenly looked very sad and very sorry. Then I remembered that imitation is the most sincere form of flattery. After all, if they didn't admire Mr. Raymer, they wouldn't want to look like him.

A few minutes later Jennifer spoke up.

"Mr. Raymer can do a lot of things with only one arm. He even beat Diane's father and Meg's father playing golf."

I made a mental note never to play golf with Mr. Raymer, if I ever take up the game.

"He also can open my thermos bottle," Jennifer laughed. "I hold the bottle with my good hand and he turns the top with his good hand."

One evening Katie seemed particularly pleased as we sat down to dinner.

"Do you know what Mr. Raymer told me today?" she asked.

"What did Mr. Raymer tell you today," I answered, with perhaps a trace of envy in my voice. It isn't easy for a father to share his girls with another man.

"Mr. Raymer said I have the bluest eyes he has ever seen."

It has been a long time since anyone has said anything nice about little Katie's poor bespectacled eyes, although when she was a baby total strangers called her 'Big Blue' because of the size and color of her irises.

I looked at Katie's eyes—really looked at them—for the first time in, well, I guess it has been years. And, by golly, they are as blue as Lake Michigan the first day of June.

I was glad Mr. Raymer had reminded me.

He must be quite a guy.

Interested In Horses?

Dear Editor,

The Corral, a newspaper for those who are interested in the activities of horses has established a Michigan Office in St. Charles, Michigan.

Walter D. Thompson, a resident and store owner in St. Charles, has brought extra thought and communication avenues to the interest of horse owners in Michigan. Mr. Thompson has, for the last year, edited and published The Morgan Horse News.

The Morgan Horse News is a national newspaper for just the Morgan breed of horse. The Morgan Horse News is read by over 1,000 Morgan owners, and many other breed owners have expressed a desire to advertise and put news into that publication. But because it is just for Morgans, another avenue of communication was necessary.

The Corral has been in existence for over 6 years, with subscriptions totaling about 8,000. Over 1,800 papers are purchased over the counter at tack shops in Ohio, Indiana and Michigan. The Corral is published twice each month.

Being a Tri-State horse publication for all horses, Thompson wants to draw together the thoughts of all horse lovers into one group that can effectively communicate their needs and remove that communication gap that so often appears without a good communication vehicle.

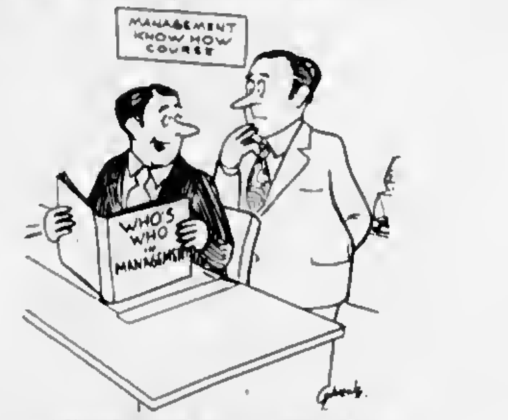
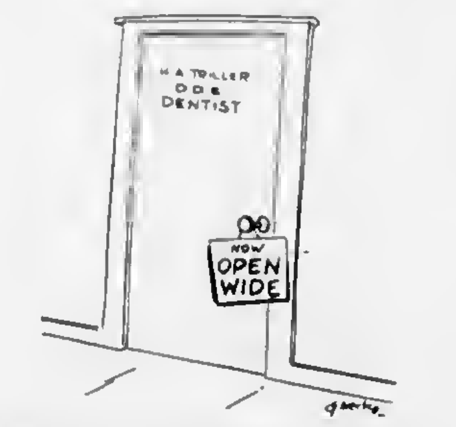
My Neighbors



"I'm boning up on my management know-who."



If it Fitz

It was my turn to host the monthly poker game so I phoned 6 guys and reminded them to show up. The 6 calls took me a total of 2 minutes. My son timed me and applauded while my wife burned.

If my wife phoned 6 friends in a row, you would have to time her with a calendar.

My poker conversations went like this: "Mallory, this is Fitz. Poker at my place at 8 o'clock Wednesday." "I'll be there." "Goodbye." "Goodbye."

My wife couldn't report a fire without telling whoever answered the phone that her granddaughter had been declared the smartest kid in the 1st grade, 2nd section, 5th row from the windows.

Being a grandmother is a serious business with my wife. The other Sunday on TV, the football announcer was describing a large hole in the defensive line through which a fullback ran for a TD.

"A grandmother could have scored through that hole," he said.

"That sounds like a putdown on grandmothers to me," my wife snorted.

I guess living with me has made her so sensitive. She is extremely wary of being put down by the world's champion male chauvinistic pig which is me, oink, oink, she says. She fights back at the mere shadow of a suggestion that the male might be the superior gender. Her fierce counterattacks often counter no attack at all. The phone deal is a typical example...

There are several facts of life that cannot be denied. One of them is that women and men dial for different reasons.

For a man, the phone is a tool, the same as a hammer. If he wants to pound a nail, he grabs a hammer. If he can't find a hammer, he uses a shoe or a baseball bat. If he wants to tell his wife he'll be late for dinner, he grabs a phone. If the line is busy for 2 hours, he drives home and hits his wife a hammer, shoe or baseball bat.

For a woman, the phone is an appendage, the same as a hand. If she wants to ask the woman next door to lunch, she phones and asks her what she's eaten the last 167 lunches and gets the recipes. If she dials a wrong number, she tells the stranger about her grandchildren and they are still talking at dinner time when her husband bursts through the door looking for the hammer.

As I said, these are facts. I do not recite them with any intention of putting down my wife or any other woman. There was no malice involved when I asked my son to time my poker calls and print the statistics on the wall next to the phone. "Dad made 6 calls in 2 minutes. What have you done in the face of a national energy crisis?") I was merely researching a subject with the sole intention of sharing the knowledge gained with my readers.

I do not think women are inferior simply because they talk long on the phone. Geez, windiness may be a virtue, similar to cleanliness. Who am I to make such a judgment! Who am I to put down women simply because I have been phoning my home for 3 straight hours now and the line is still busy and my hands are starting to shake and I'm developing a twitch under my left eye and I will have to drive home to tell my wife I won't be home, God help us all?

I just wish I could remember where she keeps the hammer.

Meet Charlevoix

Donna Wojan

Donna Wojan of Charlevoix is president of the Charlevoix County Humane Society. The Society has been working diligently during the last few months to do something about the inadequate animal shelter now operated by the County.

COURIER: What is the purpose of the Charlevoix County Humane Society?

WOJAN: To prevent cruelty to animals and provide adequate housing for those picked up as strays until they can be placed in homes or disposed of humanely.

COURIER: What are you doing toward this end?

WOJAN: Presently we are working with the County to provide an adequate shelter. We are also having a fund drive to help maintain such a shelter.

COURIER: What is wrong with the present county animal shelter?

WOJAN: It has no water and no electricity and without these facilities there is no way to keep it clean and sanitary. Also, the shelter is undermanned. If a dog is lost or found on the animal control officer's day off, there is no way of knowing if the animal is in the shelter. Also, the neighbors around the shelter in Boyne City are complaining about the appearance of the building which is not insulated and therefore the dogs' barking and howling can be heard all over the area.

COURIER: What is the Humane Society able to do in helping people find lost dogs or place unwanted ones in homes?

WOJAN: All we can do at this time is to suggest they call the Sheriff's Department and inquire if the dog has been picked up, or in the case of unwanted dogs, take them to the Emmet County shelter for adoption. We also suggest that they use the radio in helping to find or place such animals.

COURIER: If and when the new animal shelter is built, how does the Society propose to work with the County?

WOJAN: That hasn't been definitely decided. We propose to hire a director trained in animal control to run the shelter. We would also provide voluntary labor to assist him. We would like to initiate a pet adoption program and a pet population control program to reduce the number of stray animals. This spring we are going to conduct a dog census to determine the number of dogs in the county to help enforce the license regulations. Licensing dogs makes it easier to find owners of lost dogs, provided they are wearing their tags.

COURIER: This is an ambitious program. How are you going to finance it?

WOJAN: Approximately half the funds would be from the existing Sheriff's dog control budget. The remainder would come from contributions, membership fees in the Society, and fund raising activities. So far we have raised money by setting up a hot dog stand at the Flea Market, selling popcorn and balloons at the East Jordan Fourth of July parade, and raffling off a picnic table. We have also sent out 1,000 letters to summer residents and business establishments asking for contributions. We hope to contact most area residents personally during the next few months. The newspapers have been most helpful in bringing the need for a new animal shelter to light and advising people on how to obtain a membership.

At present we are holding another raffle, this month we are having a baked goods sale in Boyne City, and in January we are starting a dog obedience course.

COURIER: Tell us more about the dog obedience class.

WOJAN: The class will be sponsored by the Charlevoix Recreation program and held in the garage at the Sheriff's Department, starting Tuesday, January 15. It will be a ten-week course, once a week. The fee will be $20.00 for the ten weeks. Dogs will be taught the basics of obedience – sitting, staying, "down", "heel", "come", "stand", etc.

COURIER: How may dog owners sign up for this course?

WOJAN: They can contact the Charlevoix Recreation Department or register the first night of class. However, we prefer that they register ahead of time. If we don't get 10 dogs registered we won't be able to hold the class. On the other hand, if we get as many as 40 we will have to hold two classes each week.

COURIER: Have you a final statement?

WOJAN: Just that we need all the financial help we can get. We also need volunteer workers for fund raising activities and clerical work.

ZPG Asks for End to 'Brain Drain'

PETOSKEY--A Zero Population Growth (ZPG) spokesman claimed today that ending the brain drain could help curb the nation's staggering unemployment level.

Some 110,200 persons joined the unemployment lines the first week in November, the government reported last week.

Dr. John Tanton, chairman of ZPG's U.S. Foreign Aid and Immigration policies, said less importation of foreign skilled workers would leave more jobs open to unemployed Americans.

"It would also provide opportunities for many U.S. students who now would like to train in such fields as medicine," he said.

He estimated that out of 16,689 licensed physicians, 7,419 were graduates from foreign medical schools.

He said the United States could save millions of foreign aid dollars if it would end the Brain Drain.

"While we have been pouring in foreign aid dollars, we have at the same time been draining off the highly motivated persons of the less developed countries, in a form of (reverse) foreign trade," Tanton said.

"The loss of these persons represents a transfer of capital from the underdeveloped countries to the United States."

Dr. Tanton says the less developed countries lose money invested in education at about the time they expect some return.

He estimated that the U.S. saves $4 billion by importing 100,000 scientists, engineers and physicians between 1949 and 1967.

Beyond this financial loss, Tanton said underdeveloped countries lose highly motivated people who might help them campaign for better conditions.

"The Brain Drain also perpetuates outmoded educational practices in the less developed countries," he said.

Instead of training badly needed public health workers, countries are training physicians instead.

"The doctors decline to work at the wages and conditions that the country can afford to pay and look toward emigration," he said.

"If emigration were less possible, pressure would build up to redirect the educational programs.

He said a 1973 U.S. House Committee on Foreign Affairs study revealed that by discouraging immigration of physicians from less developed nations, the U.S. would be aiding the cause of world population control.

The population expert said native doctors would be able to provide native birth control services, in addition to being able to train community birth control workers, instead of sending U.S. Action Program workers.

Dr. Tanton said the U.S. should also re-evaluate educating foreign students.

"As many as two-thirds of the students from the lower developed countries never go home," he said.

"They take out immigration papers and stay in the U.S. instead."

Once educated, Tanton said students don't want to go home.

He suggested that the U.S. help set up training institutes in the home countries and send educators abroad to help set up staffs.

What Happens to School Records?

Educators Confront New Record Law

By SARA GAY DAMMANN

Parents and 18-year-old students have won the right to review and challenge personal school records according to a new federal law that went into effect November 19.

Charlevoix Public Schools and the Char-Em Intermediate School District were in the process of setting their own policy on the issue, when school authorities learned of the imminent passage of the law last summer, according to Superintendent James McKimmy.

But, an informed observer pointed out that "the handwriting has been on the wall for a couple of years. The schools have known this law was coming."

The issue has been dramatized by national media. Instances such as a bus driver writing "John Jones is bad on the bus and therefore shows criminal tendencies," have been cited as a type of abuse of school records by unqualified people

Dramatizations

The dramatizations have said that such notes were inserted into a growing folder of records on John Jones, which followed him throughout his school career, regardless of whether the information was correct or incorrect.

Upon graduation, according to the stories, employers, the government, credit bureaus, insurance companies a variety of people or agencies had access to these records, eventually becoming part of a national computer data bank on millions of American citizens.

The Big Brother image, pushing buttons to receive detailed personal information on a person aroused an outcry. Personal privacy was the dominant theme.

"Watergate had a large impact on getting this bill passed," said one Charlevoix teacher.

The privacy section of the law is known as the "Buckley Amendment."

According to a Chicago Tribune report, James Buckley, Conservative Senator from New York, sponsored the amendment, which was hastily passed without hearings or committee reports.

Issues Raised

The issues raised by backers of the bill were:

–Is it an invasion of personal privacy for such information to be compiled in the first place?

–Should people have access to any information being gathered about themselves?

–Should individuals be able to challenge the veracity of such information?

–Who else should have access to these personal records?

Charlevoix Schools officials all stated they welcomed the new law, but that abuses used to dramatize the issue nationally have not existed locally.

Lilian Bergmann, Boyne City juvenile officer says that while she found school authorities anxious to cooperate, she thought records were handled with "sensitivity."

"They never ran-off copies," she said. "They were careful to see records were used properly."

Records Open

Max Novak, Charlevoix School Board President, said: "As far as I know, only vital and necessary information has gone into our school records. And our policy has been that records are not generally open to anyone except trained school people. They have always been open to parents."

The Professional Study Committee of the Charlevoix Schools, and a policy group of the Char-Em Intermediate District, have been at work strengthening the protection of students' and parent's privacy and increasing policy safeguards so that whatever information enters a student's record is limited to pertinent and professional observations, according to McKimmy.

The committee studying the school policy and the Federal Law will present a suggested resolution to the School Board on December 9, which Novak feels confident will be adopted.

Major Points

Basically the resolution will conform to the provisions of the law, a provision of which is that each school district adopt their own policy.

ROY FORTIN, assistant Charlevoix High School principal, and Gayle Kaczynzki, high school counselor, at the high school files which must be saved indefinitely.

The major points are:

1. Parents, or 19 year old students, have the right to inspect and review all records kept by schools on their children (or themselves in the case of 18 year olds).

2. No one else has the right to see those records without permission of the parent of the student involved, or the student himself, if he's 18; with the exception of authorized school officials, schools to which a student transfers, or certain "authorized representatives" of the Federal government, such as when a student applies for a Federal loan.

3. If a parent, or the 18-year-old, finds information in the records which he thinks is wrong or feels should not be in the record, he has the right to a hearing to challenge the records.

Details of the national law include that police may not have access to the records without a court order; that potential employers cannot see the records without written consent from the individual, or his parent if he is under 18; and in cases of court orders or government security checks for military or government employment, which don't require consent first, the person involved must be informed that his records were released.

No Funds

The enforcement power for this law comes from provisions for Federal School funds to be cut off for non-compliance.

McKimmy said the policy adopted by the Charlevoix Schools will be broader than the Federal law requires.

The law deals with the parents' rights to inspect the records, challenge them and the rights of others' to see them.

The Professional Study Committee, McKimmy said, is also concerned with what goes into the records.

"We are telling the author of anything, which goes into the records, to write as though the person you are writing about is looking over your shoulder," he said.

McKimmy spoke of the philosophy of the "self-fulfilling prophecy," which means if someone expects you to behave in a certain way, you will probably behave that way.

Dumb Child?

Therefore, if a parent reads that a teacher has judged his child as dumb, the teacher's attitude may be communicated and the student may quit trying.

COMMON COUNCIL

COUNCIL MINUTES

November 18, 1974
8:00 p.m.

The Common Council of the City of Charlevoix met on the above date and time with Mayor Hansen presiding. Aldermen present: McRae, Plumm, Selph, Timms, Alderwoman Wallace, and Alderman Wood.

The minutes of the November 4, 1974 regular meeting were approved as presented in writing and as recorded in the Council Minutes Book.

Mrs. Frank L. Risley of 604 May Street was present to discuss her May Street sewer Assessment; and feels it is wrong since her sewer empties into Meadowlane sewer. Mayor Hansen advised her to go to the Special Assessment Board. She was told that the City have no way to service the sewer since it runs on private property to Meadowlane.

Robert Cook reported the activities of the Senior Citizen Housing Committee and their findings, having visited projects completed or in construction within the area. Both Boyne City and East Jordan projects were funded by Housing & Urban Development. The Gaylord project was funded by Farm Home Loan Administration and is operated by a private, non-profit corporation. The Committee recommended that the City should consider the possibility of a project to be financed by a grant from Housing & Urban Development, if and when their funds are available. A survey taken by the Committee produced eighty-six interested citizens. Boyne City's units rent for $23 to $98 per month with an average of $42. per month, including heat and lights; based on twenty-five percent of the individual's adjusted income. The Committee also recommended that the City form a commission and secure the services of a co-ordinator to get the project started.

Glenn Harris was present to present his proposal covering application for a building permit No. 204 for Senior Citizens Project which he has been working on since last summer. He turned it over to Joel Arvilla, his contractor, for further explanation. Mr. Arvilla introduced members of Economic Development Group, who had helped in developing steps in acquiring funds for financing and qualified architects. A member of the Development Group told Council F.H.A has been contacted and find they will fund 40 units of elderly housing in Charlevoix. The loan that is arranged for this project is what F.H.A. refers to as a "limited project loan". Under the loan conditions that have been arranged, the profit is limited to three percent per year on the amount of money invested in the project. In this situation there will be a loan of about $500,000 from F.H.A. and about $50.00 in cash so that the profit F.H.A. will allow on this program is $1500 a year.

Mr. Arvilla explained that they have found that they need to ask the city to amend "R-4" because they had designed the building based on "R-2" and found when applying for a building permit the Ordinance had been amended by "R-4".

Alderwoman Wallace offered a Resolution to set the date of Public Hearing December 16, 1974 for the proposed amendment to the Zoning Ordinance and moved its adoption, supported by Alderman McRae. Also, A Public Hearing to rezone the George Krchak property on South May Street from "C-1" to "R-4".

The Resolution was approved by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen McRae, Plumm, Selph, Timms, Alderwoman Wallace, and Alderman Wood. Nays: None. Absent: None.

Alderman Timms offered the following Resolution and moved its adoption supported by Alderman Selph. RESOLVED That, the request of Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District to take up their option of November 11, 1971 for the purchase of the balance of property where the Service Center is located, as outlined in the letter of October 4, 1974 be accepted. AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED That, the deed revision clause "If a structure is not erected, the property reverts to the owner," be used. The Resolution was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen McRae, Plumm, Selph, Timms, Alderwoman Wallace, and Alderman Wood. Nays: None. Absent: None.

Council discussed briefly the Christmas advertisement published in the Courier in the past and the Christmas gifts for City employees. The matter was referred to the Acting Administrator for action.

Alderman McRae offered the following Resolution and moved its adoption, supported by Alderwoman Wallace. RESOLVED That the City Council adopt an Ordinance creating the office of City Administrator in the City of Charlevoix, and providing for his responsibilities and authority. The Resolution was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen McRae, Plumm, Selph, Timms, Alderwoman Wallace, and Alderman Wood. Nays: None. Absent: None.

Alderman Selph offered the following Resolution and moved its adoption, supported by Alderwoman Wallace. RESOLVED That, the City of Charlevoix enter into an agreement with the Charlevoix Garbage Service for one year commencing November 1, 1974, for $4320. per annum, giving the Mayor authority to sign the Agreement on behalf of the City. The Resolution was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen McRae, Plumm, Selph, Timms, Alderwoman Wallace, and Alderman Wood. Nays: None. Absent: None.

The request for a building permit No. 203 by Bruce Glopker and William Dykstra to replace a boathouse located at Belvedere Avenue was reviewed by Council and sent to the Planning Commission for their recommendation.

Northern Michigan Rail Users correspondence was read. Ken Winters from the Courier reported of a meeting he attended and reported it is a non-profit organization to prevent the abandonment of railroads, and the need of support.

Motion was made by Alderwoman Wallace and supported by Alderman Plumm that the City become a member of the organization and that a check be sent to them in the amount of $25.00. The motion was approved by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen McRae, Plumm, Selph, Timms, Alderwoman Wallace, and Alderman Wood. Nays: None. Absent: None.

Correspondence was read from William H. Ohle and from Federal Revenue Sharing.

Alderman Plumm offered a Resolution and moved its adoption, supported by Alderwoman Wallace and designating Acting City Administrator Robert Wexstaff to act on behalf of the City of Charlevoix regarding Flood Insurance. The Resolution was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen McRae, Plumm, Selph, Timms, Alderwoman Wallace, and Alderman Wood. Nays: None. Absent: None.

Correspondence was read from Charlevoix Regional Planning Commission, dated November 18, 1974 suggesting the names of Dick Fochtman, Charles Duerr and Ralph Doan for a replacement for John Campbell who resigned. But no one had been contacted, it was tabled for action at the next regular meeting, December 2, 1974.

Michigan unemployment insurance was discussed briefly, with a reminder that Council must take action before the end of December 1974.

Alderman Plumm asked if it is possible to have the United States and the State flags on display in the Council room. Mr. Wexstaff told Council that the flags are on order.

Alderman Timms reported having a quote of about $3000. from Wojan for storm windows for the entire city hall.

Alderman Wood asked that necessary precautions be made at the airport for snow hazzards and that runways be marked properly.

Alderwoman Wallace asked if figures had ever been compiled of the savings made in some of the lights on Bridge Street being turned off during the fuel crisis and added that Chief Mol would like to have them turned on; hoping it would help eliminate break-ins in that area. She also asked that plans be layed early for Christmas decorating and asked that it be put into Committee. Mrs. Wallace asked if when notices of public hearings are put in the newspaper, if the property could be identified as to address and owner's name and was told by Attorney Berlage that it could be referred to as "commonly known as giving address and name." She asked if council could attend the Northern Michigan Rail Users meeting December 10, 1974 at 7:30 p.m. in Kalkaska. Mayor Hansen agreed to attend.

It was agreed to purchase the Dictaphone Tape Recorder for $525 to record Council meetings and that the tapes be retained for one year, before erasure.

The Finance Committee having examined bills totaling $64,240.00 find them correct and recommend the bills be allowed. Moved by Alderman Plumm and supported by Alderwoman Wallace that the bills be allowed and orders drawn for their amounts. Motion was approved by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen McRae, Plumm, Selph, Timms, Alderwoman Wallace, and Alderman Wood. Nays: None. Absent: None.

Council adjourned

Lose to Harbor Springs and Grayling

Charlevoix Rayders Drop First Two Season Games

By FRAN MARTIN

The Charlevoix Rayders, suffering from a case of opening game jitters, dropped their first game to the Harbor Springs Rams by a score of 64-49 in a non-league game played here Tuesday.

Tonight (Tuesday) the Rayders will take on another non-loop opponent, the Onaway Cardinals, before playing at Rogers City on Friday.

The Rams capitalized on the fouls by making good on 20 of 30 attempts while fouling only 17 times.

The Rams jumped to an 18-8 first period lead before the Rayders started to hit from the floor.

However, it was late in the second period before Charlevoix found the range as the half ended with Harbor Springs leading 41-22.

In this period before teams scored six field goals but the Rams made up for the difference from the free throw line.

As the second half got underway, the Rayders started to hit as Mike Streeter poured in four buckets and one free throw; Dan Greene contributed two field goals and two charity shots and Dave Martinchek, Bob Alger and Chuck Faust one two-pointer apiece.

The Rams' total for the period was four from the floor and four from the free throw line as Charlevoix trimmed their margin to 52-43.

In the final period the Rayders outscored the visitors 16-11 as both Alger and Streeter scored seven points and Faust added two on a field goal. Harbor Springs had four field goals and three free throws.

Streeter paced the game with 22 points with 10 field goals and two of five free throws; Alger had 17 with six field goals and five of seven free throws; Martinchek, Faust and Greene had six points each and Kevin Stokes, who had started, added two.

Grayling Defeats Rayders 40 to 28

A bad third quarter in which they were outscored 16-9 spelled defeat for the Charlevoix Rayders who dropped their opening game in league play to Grayling by a score of 60-49.

This week the Rayders will host Onaway on Tuesday and travel to Rogers City for a second Michigan-Huron Shores league game on Friday.

In the game at Grayling, the Vikings jumped to a 14-12 lead which they held throughout the game as Charlevoix trailed 31-28 at halftime and 47-37 going into the final period.

Mike Streeter with a total of 24 points kept Charlevoix in the game as he scored two field goals in the first period, nine points in the second, five in the third and six in the final period. Chuck Faust contributed 12; Bob Alger, 11 and Dan Greene, 2 points each. Both Faust and Alger had five field goals. Dave Martinchek was the fifth starter. Kevin Stokes joined the action in the second period and Kevin Martin late in the game.

Mark Hansen led the way for Grayling with 14 points followed by Don Weaver with 14 and Craig Hinkle 12.

Grayling outscored the Rayders 27-22 in the field goal department while connecting on six of 14 free throw attempts and collecting 14 personal fouls. Charlevoix scored five of 13 charity shots and had 13 personal fouls.

'A' League Has Several Big Games

By CHUCK WRIGHT

After four full weeks of action, some long awaited showdowns are on the agenda for the "A" league.

The big game features the two league powerhouses, Townhouse and Freedmans. Both are 4-0 for the season.

Last week Townhouse tuned up for the big game by blasting Bob's Sunoco 80-59, despite a 30 point performance by Hud Drenth.

Although the score was rather lopsided at the end, the game might have been a good one if only the players on Bob's team would remember when the game starts. After having to play almost all of the first period with only four players and trailing 19-4 their fifth man finally showed up—but by then the damage was already done.

Townhouse continued their balanced scoring attack with 13 pts, topper Carey 11 pts and player-coach LeRoy Buchanan 2 pts. While for Bob's the only one in double figures besides Drenth's 30 pts, was Ron Boss with 12 pts.

Meanwhile the other team involved in the big game this week, Freedman's was having little trouble disposing of the Coast Guard 88-26.

After starting slow, Freedman's finally got their fast break moving and ended with a 26-8 first period lead, highlighted by 8 points each from Roger Crain and Bernie Ward.

The rest of the game was mostly one sided despite the referee's calling technicals on the crowd for harassing him against Freedman's. (Thanks Larry)

Freedman's were again led by the league's leading scorer Roger Crain with 21 points, right behind him were Terry Blissett 14 points, Mike Bade 14 points, Denny Crain 13 points, Bernie Ward 10 points. Coast Guard was led by Greg Waller with 12 points.

The other "A" league game of the week was also a romp with Medusa besting Haggard's 70-35.

After getting off to a slow start and only leading 8-4 at the end of the first period, Medusa finally got rolling behind the big third quarter output of Doug Winnell's 14 points to move to a commanding 50-13 lead after three quarters.

Leading Medusa to their second victory in four tries was Doug Deyoung 10 points. While Rich Wojan had 11 points and Kerry Balm 10 points for Haggard's.

The other big showdown in the "A" league this week is between Coast Guard and Haggard's. Both are looking for their first win in five tries.

In the Lake Michigan Division of the "B" league the big game of the week was between division leaders Andy's and Russell's Shell. In which Russell's barely edged out Andy's in overtime 64-59.

The game was rather a close one all the way with Russells jumping out to the biggest lead of the night after three periods 40-30. The fourth period was all Kevin Johnecheek of Andy's, as he popped in 15 points and brought his team back to a 55-55 tie at the end of the regulation time.

The Overtime period was dominated by Russell's as they outscored Andy's 9-4.

For the winners Jim Potter led the way with 25 points, followed closely by Mike Crain with 21 points and Larry Brock 16 points. But high game honors went to Kevin Johnecheek of Andy's with 31 points followed by Stu Cunningham's 10 points.

In the second contest of the night Alray Cottages evened its record for the season at 2-2 with a 73-37 win over the Medusa 'B' team. A balanced scoring attack proved to be too much to cope with for the Borths brothers and Company as Alray went out to a 36-14 halftime lead and then coasted the rest of the way.

For Alray Carl Swanson had 22 points, Scott Blanchard 18 points, while Stan Towsley and Mike Pearsall added 10 each. In a losing effort Charlie Borths had 13 points and Bob Borths 10 points.

In the final contest of the evening Charlevoix County Bank moved into a first place tie with Russell's Shell by narrowly defeating Jim's Clark 55-54 and upping its record of the year to 3-1.

Congratulations To "Our Gals"!

Make Sure Your Equipment Fits Properly

Skiers Get Ready

Here's How to Buy Equipment

By PEG OIHLE

Gifts are usually surprises, but there is one kind of gift that should never be a surprise. It's ski equipment.

Proper fit, especially in boots and skis, is so important that the element of surprise must give way to try-ons.

Dick Oestrike of Portside Sports gave this non-skier a lesson in what to look for when buying equipment, explaining the special features that increase costs but insure greater safety.

Boots are the most important part of the ski'ers attire, according to Oestrike. They must fit so that any movement of the foot will be transmitted to the skis.

Alpine boots should allow for movement of the foot inside just from the ball of the foot to the toes, and then only enough to keep the circulation running.

There are many different brands of boots but it is not always possible to buy by brand because the mold from which they were made may not match your foot.

"A foot is a specific and a boot is a generality," Oestrike says, you have to find the generality to fit the specific."

Most boots are made of molded plastic, with the inside filled with a "flow" material that conforms to the shape of the foot. Linings may be anything from rubber to glove leather.

Almost all ski boots are made in Europe, in Italy or Austria, where the old-time die maker's molds shape boots in dozens of sizes. Each size mold costs about $25,000.

Oestrike says that boots can last forever, and that the only reason for buying new ones is to keep up with the trend in industry, which is always trying to improve on the product.

Children's ski boots are a different thing. They must be replaced as the child's foot grows. "Even if you're on a limited budget, your children's boots must fit perfectly," Oestrike tells parents. "Don't stuff toes and put on lots of heavy socks."

To help with the cost of boots for children, Portside has a trade-in program where new boots are bought the first year then traded in on used boots in successive years.

Cross country ski boots look more like bowling or cross country running shoes. More flexibility and freedom and less support is needed in cross country boots. Fit is also most important here. "You must have enough confidence to walk 10 miles in them," Oestrike says.

Boot bindings that attach boots to skis must give good release, both lateral and forward, to insure safety. The skier's ability and weight must be considered in buying bindings.

Bindings for cross country boots cover only the toes to give the up-and-down "walking" type freedom needed.

Proper fit in skis is of primary importance. Weight of the individual and skiing ability are part of the proper fit. Short skis are becoming more popular, so length of skis is no longer determined solely by height of the skier.

Skis were once made of wood, but now, except for some children's models, most are made of a laminated wood core wrapped in fiber glass. The best ones are edged with a one piece metal strip.

Skis are molded to shape in many styles and sizes. Intricacy of the mold has much to do with their price. There are at least eight laminated layers in less than one-half inch thickness of some skis, and the more laminations, the higher the price.

Oestrike says the youngest skier he ever fitted was under three years of age.

"If a child can walk, he can ski," he added, "but there is often difficulty in finding proper size boots."

Oestrike added another bit of advice to parents of young skiers,"'Don't keep them out too long so they get cold and tired."

There are two types of cross country skis: Wooden skis for those who like to spend time waxing and rubbing, and fiber glass skis for those who want to be ready to go out for a short trip on a moment's notice.

Proper fit is also important in cross country skis, with weight being one of the determining features.

Ski poles should be of proper length for the individual skier. They are made of aluminum, and the more expensive the pole, the stronger and lighter it is.

Cross country poles are usually made of Tonkin bamboo, and they, too, should be of proper length.

Ski clothes are a matter of personal preference. However, in Alpine skiing, where the skier is active only half the time, insulated clothing should be worn.

Cross country skiers are active all of the time. They use more energy and should dress lightly enough to prevent getting too warm and perspiring.

So, if you are buying skiing equipment for the first time this year, these are some of the things to remember. But, most of all, remember to be fitted properly for fullest enjoyment of the sport.

SPEND CHRISTMAS BEHIND BARS...

It was just a two-buck belt. You didn't even need it. You even had enough bread to buy it. But, you lifted it instead. It was just for kicks.

What you didn't think about was the fact that shoplifting is stealing. Yes. Stealing And stealing is a crime. And crimes are punishable by law. Some kicks.

When it really hit home was when the store detective nabbed you on your way out. Then you got taken to the manager's office. Then you got taken to the police station. Then they called your folks. You started to feel a little bit sick.

Sure, you're under age. But juveniles who steal get police records, too. It's like a tattoo. Never washes or wears off. It sticks to you. Some kicks.

Maybe it didn't happen to you. Or not yet. But think about it. Shoplifting can wreck your life in seconds. In terms of college, or of a job.

It's the holiday season. It could be tempting.

Postage Rates Up 25 Per Cent

If you send the same number of Christmas cards this year that you sent last year your postage bill will be 25 percent higher.

It was last spring that First Class postage was raised from eight to ten cents an ounce.

Postage rates have increased steadily in the last 30 years, from three cents in 1944 to today's ten cents.

When the present postal system was started in 1883, the rate was two cents, in 1917 it was raised to three cents, and in 1919 it was returned to two cents.

The rate remained at two cents until 1932, when it became three cents again.

The following year two rates went into effect, two cents for local delivery and three cents for out-of-town delivery.

These rates held until 1944 and the establishment of an overall three cent rate.

In 1958 First Class postage went up to four cents, in 1963 to five cents, in 1968 to six cents, in 1971 to eight cents, and in 1974 to ten cents.

The seven cents increase from 1944 to 1974 is a hike of almost 43 percent.

Air Mail rates have shown similar increases. When this type of service was established in 1918 it cost 28 cents an ounce to send a letter, but this price included special delivery. The same year the price was reduced to six cents, without special delivery.

Another reduction came in 1928, to five cents, but then the upward trend began. In 1942 the cost went up to six cents, in 1944 to eight cents, in 1968 to ten cents, in 1971 to 11 cents, and in 1974 to 13 cents.

If you think all the above is a sad story, the Chamber of Commerce says that postage rates are going up again, about midyear 1975. They say that letters will cost 13 cents and that other classes of mail will go up 30 percent, too.

CHARLEVOIX ELEMENTARY students got together last Wednesday for a last hour singing fest before going for Thanksgiving vacation. Mrs. Marina LaBlance led the songsinging.

'Trial of Billy Jack' Draws Big Crowds at Cinema III

Few motion pictures have stirred as much excitement and enthusiasm among general audiences and movie insiders as "Billy Jack."

The story of a disillusioned half-breed (Tom Laughlin) and an unorthodox but dedicated school director (Delores Taylor), "Billy Jack" focused on the divisive frustrations of the late 1960's with more success than any other film of its time.

Movie-goers sated with the slick fantasies of Hollywood responded to the rough integrity and realistic themes of "Billy Jack" with such fervor that this "little" picture became the box office success story of the decade.

Events have since vindicated the themes and viewpoint of that film, which ended with a handcuffed Billy Jack being led away by the State Police.

My Lai, Cambodia, Kent and Jackson State, Wounded Knee and Watergate have confirmed our worst fears about a society in crisis.

Now, the creators of "Billy Jack" have examined the causes and dramatized the possible results of these recent events in a new film that continues where "Billy Jack" left off–"The Trial of Billy Jack."

It is now showing at the Cinema III in Charlevoix.

The entire resources of the Taylor-Laughlin organization were deployed in making "The Trial of Billy Jack" as true a refelction of contemporary America as possible. The story unfolds in flashback as school director Jean Roberts relates the trial, conviction and imprisonment of Billy Jack before describing the subsequent events that led inexorably to the final and tragic confrontation.

The film's theme–the power of love vs. the love of power–is timeless; the situations it depicts–the brutal oppression of America's native Indians, corruption in government, greed of big business–are the stuff of today's headlines.

Indeed, many sequences in "The Trial of Billy Jack" are based on actual events in recent history.

Library notes

Good books seem to run in streaks.

In the past recent months, we have had some books which were not first-rate, even though they were written by first rate authors.

There are, fortunately, some old reliables who never disappoint us, and we have a list of new titles which will mean good news for everyone.

We hope this streak of good books lasts for quite awhile, but in any case, we have enough highly entertaining novels and non-fiction to keep everyone happy, no matter how deep the snow drifts get to be.

Catherine Cookson, surely one of the most popular and loveable authors, has just given us "Our John Willie," the story of the unselfish love between two brothers, and their terror of an eccentric old woman, Miss Peamarsh.

The two boys were left orphaned and penniless when their father was killed in a flood mine shaft accident.

Work in the coal mines was hard to find in 1852, and John Willie was too frail to work anyway.

Dave has to rely on his wits and resourcefulness simply to keep the two of them alive, and Miss Peamarsh doesn't make it any easier for him.

The story has a beautiful ending. It is as tender and sensitive a book that has come along for a long time, and it will certainly take its place among the author's previously renowned books.

Art Buchwold is funny in his newspaper columns, funny on TV, funny in person. In short, he is a very funny man. His new book: I Am Not A crook is a chuckle from one page to the next.

An interview with Spiro Agnew is downright hilarious.

The Los Angeles Times says: "We need to add another member to the President's cabinet–a secretary of humor. And Art Buchwald is our choice to fill the post."

Thomas Tryon has given us another heart-thumper. This attractive young author had a notable career as an actor in film, on stage and in TV, but received a smashing, extraordinary success when he became a writer.

His first book The Other was not only a shiverying thriller, but it was evidence that a major novelist had been discovered. Some people think his second book Harvest Home was even better than the first. Now we have a third novel, Lady,which proves again that we have a major storyteller among us.

Lady lives in a beautiful home. She is fair and kind and everyone loves her.

And yet Lady lives in agony with a terrible secret until she can no longer bear it.

This is a chiller and you'd better leave the lights on when you read it.

The final book to be recommended this week is The Frontiersmen by the distinguished author Allan W. Eckert.

This is not a book to be breezed through over the weekend. Researched for seven years, it is the first in a series Mr. Eckert is writing entitled "The Winning of America". It is the story of wilderness America itself, its penetration and settlement.

In The Frontiersmen not only do we care about our long-forgotten fathers, we live again with them. It is a rich, powerful, absorbing narrative. One to keep in mind for the long nights when the north wind blows.

March of Dimes Campaign Starts Jan. 1

Charlevoix County mothers will be out campaigning for the Mothers' March of Dimes Jan. 1, says Mrs. Janet Ready, campaign chairman.

"The March of Dimes is intensifying its efforts to help every newborn in Charlevoix County toward a healthy start in life," she said.

"So it is appropriate that our annual campaign begins on January 1, symbolized by a newborn infant."

She said her organization's goal is to improve the quality of life at birth and because of that have become deeply involved locally with pre-natal care.

Some 55,000 babies die in infancy each year. More than 200,000 newborns each year enter the world with a physical or mental handicap.

"This damage to human potential could be greatly reduced if we give our attention to better maternal and infant care." Mrs. Reddy said.

In particular wemust focus on intensive care organized on a regional basis for the woman whose pregnancy is at risk, and the infant who is critically ill at birth."

Anyone interested in working as a volunteer for the drive may call 547-9724.

The drive will continue through January 31.

Fern Burns of Central Lake and Isabella Vanden Berg of Six Mile Lake were Friday visitors with Grace Klooster.

For deacons, Cornell Alofs, Arthur Drenth, Henry Heeres, Myron Postmus, James Rubingh and Peter J. Vander Ark.

Mr. and Mrs. George James of Flushing and Mr. and Mrs. Norman Veldkamp were Sunday evening after church visitors with Elsie Timmer.

Jennie Wynsma, Mettie VanderArk, Dena Otte and Anne Osterbaan were supper guests of Fannie Koster, Saturday.

Folks are leaving the north for a warmer climate. Mrs. Margaret Clow and her son Bill have left for Florida and Mrs. Dessie Farrell has gone to Arizona for the winter.

In the first tournament games played at Ellsworth Friday evening our girls basketball team won over Central Lake.

Our schools will have a short Thanksgiving vacation from Wed. afternoon until Monday morning.

Sundew At Work

By FRAN MARTIN

With approximately two-thirds of the Aids to Navigation to be removed from Northern Lakes Michigan and Huron, the USCG Cutter Sundew returned to the job at hand Monday after spending the Thanksgiving weekend in port.

Weather permitting, the ship will withdraw aids in the area of the Straits of Mackinac before participating in an intensity survey of the new radio tower at Beaver Head on Beaver Island, according to Lt. Roger R. Roznoski, skipper of the ship.

Readings will be taken at every five degrees by technicians aboard the ship and at the tower site to determine effeciency.

The new radio tower replaces the one in operation many years at the abandoned Beaver Head light station at the south end of Beaver Island.

Following the tests, the Sundew will be working in Grand Traverse Bay, removing aids to navigation, replacing them with winter markers and returning the aids (buoys) to Charlevoix for winter storage.

According to Cmdr. Roznoski, present plans call for the removal of all aids by mid-December with the closing of Greys Reef and White Shoal light stations on Dec. 17. This will be followed by a trip to Base Soo to pick up lighted winter buoys and place them in the St. Mary's river.

This will mark the close of the fall buoy season.

The ship will then return to its homeport in Charlevoix to prepare for the long arduous icebreaking season which, last year, stretched into April. The Sundew's icebreaking duties center primarily in the Straits of Mackinac and the St. Mary's River.

With the navigation season remaining open as late as possible, the Coast Guard is responsible for escorting lake freighters from Lake Superior ports through the St. Mary's river after they have passed through the locks and through the Straits and they make their way past Lansing Shoals at the western end of the straits to make their way up Lake Michigan to the steel mills at Gary, Ind.

WOMEN FROM the Charlevoix Historical Society presented "Once Upon a Time--Women Throughout History", Monday at the Charlevoix Women's Club held at the First Congregational Church. distribution as follows:

"The Secretary of Interior shall prepare a roll of persons born on or prior to the date of approval of this plan and whose name or the name of lineal ancestor appears on the roll of the Grand River Band of Ottowa Indians contained in the Durant Roll;; (a rule of thumb generally used in Michigan Indian-Federal Government negotiations- "of Ottowa-Chippewa Indians approved February 19, 1910, or the payment roll derived therefrom, approved May 17, 1910, or any available rolls or records acceptable to the Secretary."

The letter further states that "the determination of the Secretary regarding the eligibility of the applicant shall be final." After the new roll is prepared and approved the "Secretary shall make a distribution of the judgement funds in equal individual shares to the persons whose names appear on the roll."

The Northern Michigan Ottowa Association has consistantly fought for the one quarter Indian blood principle of determining the eligibility of applicants for any monies due Michigan Indians from the Federal government.

The controversy seems to stem from the fact almost all the Indians involved are non-reservation Indians.

"Without having the specifics before me, I think the problem is that these Indians are not an organized tribe which specifies in its constitution what is required to be a member," Emmett Cameron, Acting Assistant Area Director, Bureau of Indian Affairs, (B. I. A.) Minneapolis, Minn., said in a telephone interview Friday.

Mrs. Dominic denies this, saying that the quarter blood requirement is in the Association by-laws.

Cameron verified her contention that scholarships are granted on the quarter blood basis which he said is written into the Federal regulations covering Indian education.

The B.I.A. would be the Federal Agency involved in the distribution of the million and a quarter dollar judgment.

The Indian rejection Saturday took the form of a resolution which also included an objection to the fact that the award does not include lawyers' fees and other expenses involved in the lengthy litigation.

In a companion resolution the group agreed to rehire Rodney Edwards, Duluth, Minnesota attorney, who has been associated with the litigation throughout and who is already in Washington, D.C. on the matter, according to Mrs. Dominic.

Both resolutions will be sent to Speaker Albert she said Sunday.

grease on their bread. Bacon was five cents a pound.

"We always had enough to eat but not always what you would like," Housel recalls.

New clothes were a rarity in the Housel family. They wore "hand-me-downs", and there weren't many of them. Underclothing was laundered at night for the next day's wearing.

Coal was mixed with wood for heating purposes. Coal cost $2.65 a ton in those days, and if there wasn't enough money to buy a ton, it was bought by the bag.

As Mrs. Housel looks back on those days she says, "We were just as happy then as we are now. We had neighborhood dances where we ate cake and drank cider. We used to make apple butter in big tubs in the yard."

"Although there was no money in those days, people didn't try to gouge each other," Housel says. "We never locked our house doors or cars. People used to help each other. We traded work for work."

Mr. and Mrs. H. N. Woodbury, Jr. had the latters parents, Mr. and Mrs. Mick Cunningham and other members of their family for Thanksgiving guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Mark Cross and Mrs. Richard Selissen and family were dinner guests Thanksgiving

Mr. and Mrs. Mark Cross and Mrs. Richard Selissen and family were Thanksgiving dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. D. Currier of Birmingham who are spending several days in their local home.

We did lose our sixteen inches of snow and had beautiful weather with a forty and fifty degrees temperature several days and I planted tulip and crocus bulbs but winter returned with twelve inches of light feathery snow and made everything beautiful for Thanksgiving morning but made hazardous driving and kept those with small plows busy cleaning driveways for their neighbors and friends who were entertaining guests for this holiday weekend.

Last Sunday afternoon members of our church choir and several others with our minister, Mr. Harold Kruse and family, held services at Grandvue and visited with friends who are patients there.

The Sunday School hour has been changed to 9:45 through 10:45 which will shorten up the time between Sunday School and the eleven o'clock church service.

Did you count your Blessings this Thanksgiving. With all the high prices, unemployment and sadness we still have blessings to be grateful for in this great country of ours.

Obituary

Funeral services for Lawrence J. (Skip) Skippergosh, 63, who died unexpectedly Monday, will be held at St. Mary's church at 1 p.m. Wednesday. The Rev. R. Dale Magoon will officiate. Burial will be in Brookside cemetery.

Mr. Skippergosh collapsed at his home after helping a friend push a car at 6:45 a.m. Monday. He was taken via ambulance to the Charlevoix Area Hospital where he was dead on arrival.

Born in Charlevoix Dec. 21, 1910, Mr. Skippergosh attended Haskell College in Kansas for a short time before returning here. In 1944 he was married to the former Frances Loonsfoot who preceded him in death in December 1963. He had been employed by the Charlevoix County Road Commission and, since 1969, by the Charlevoix Street Department. He was a member of St. Mary's church.

Surviving are five sons, Lawrence, Jr., Jerome, and Michael of Charlevoix, Kenneth of Chicago, and James of Wisconsin; two daughters, Mrs. Thurlow (Joyce) McClellan of Grand Haven and Mrs. Marilyn Narcho of Chicago; six grandchildren; a half-sister, Mrs. Walter Howe, of Charlevoix and two half-brothers, Francis Carroll and John High, both of Petoskey.

The body is at the Winchester Funeral Home where friends may call.

Engaged

THE ENGAGEMENT of Virginia Lou Sanders to Richard W. Metzger has been announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wayne O. Saunders of Ironton.

The prospective bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ruhl Metzger.

Miss Saunders is a graduate of the East Jordan High School and will graduate in May from Central Michigan University. Mr. Metzger is a graduate of Lincoln High School in Manitowoc, Wis., and Northern Michigan University in Marquette.

The couple is planning a May wedding.

Tree Sale

The Big Brothers of Charlevoix County will hold a benefit Christmas Tree Sale across from Will-Flow Corporation until Christmas.

The group is asking for a five dollar donation for any tree on the lot.

A club spokesman said the money will go directly to Big Brother projects in the county.

Trees may be purchased day or early evening on the lot.

Records

"If we are anyway responsible for under estimating a child, we are responsible for creating an under achiever," McKimmy said.

Which is one of the reasons why it is vital records be accurate, he concluded.

Not everyone agrees with McKimmy's assessment that records have not contained abuses to date.

One parent, whose child is still in school and wishes to remain anonymous complained that school officials passed harmful information on about his child, but claim the school never knew he had a learning disability.

"They must have left vital information out of the records, but somehow passed on other stuff," he said.

Parent's Problem

"He was diagnosed as having a reading problem in the middle school, but he got well into high school without getting reading help. They claim they didn't know about his problem."

The parent said "they definitely passed along each year that he was a bad boy.

"I haven't seen the records to know if it was in writing, but I know they have had him pegged," his mother said. "There's no question he behaves badly, but the minute anything happens he gets all the blame, before anyone even trys to learn what really went on."

"It's hard to understand why the Middle School knew he had a reading problem and everyone at the high school claims they never knew. Yet they all seemed to know and expect him to misbehave."

Middle School counselor Condit Drury, has been a long time advocate of parental access to records, and for limiting their content to such relevant information as vital information, (birth date and statistics) health records, and test scores.

"Problems are identified to help the student," he said.

Drury reported that last year a 7th grade student, concerned by the national publicity, began questioning the content of records. The student was not satisfied with oral assurances until "I had his record sent in. He looked at it and went away satisfied that his record was limited and accurate."

Records at the Char-Em offices generally deal with students referred for diagnostic testing of one sort or another, says Superintendent Jim Shepard.

Tom Caldwell, Director of Special Education, explained that State Laws governing special education make necessibility mandatory.

Problems do exist with the opening up of the records, however. Certain items will have to be removed now. McKimmy and others specifically mentioned such "privileged information" as psychological reports. To date reports from the Mental Health Clinic have been in the records. School officials feel that access to psychological reports could be harmful.

"Your reader should know, we are not talking about clandestine information compiled on students," McKimmy said of psychological or similar reports, but of jargon used by professionals which is subject to misinterpretation."

That type of material is in the process of being returned to the original author–taken out of students' records.

Engaged

Mr. and Mrs. John Dahle Henth of California announced the wedding of their daughter, Barbara Suzannee to William F. Bergmann last month.

Bergmann is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Bergmann of Charlevoix.

COMMUNITY CHURCH OF GOD
202 W. Hurlbut Street
Charlevoix, Michigan

Reverend William P. Seibert, Minister, 547-2875-Church, Home-547-9120, Sunday School- 9:45 a.m. Morning Worship 11:00 a.m. Evening Worship 7:00 p.m. Mid-week Services-7:30 p.m. Include: Adult; Children's Youth Bible Classes; Nursery Class.

We the Community Church of God in Charlevoix, with general offices in Anderson, Indiana, think of ourselves as a movement within Christendom for the restoration of the New Testament Church of God. In our infancy, back in 1880, our basic theme, "Unity among God's people," was not a popular theme. The years, however, have brought vast changes in public opinion, so that today there is scarcely a Christian who would argue against the unity of Christians.

Membership in the Church of God is by virtue of a spiritual birth. Everyone who has been truly converted from sin has experienced the forgiving and regenerating love of God in Christ is viewed as a member of God's family, the Church of God. Jesus Christ is seen as the only door by which men may enter God's great family. Scripturally, there exists no other loyalty or allegiance. In the heart of God alone are kept the records of those who by confession, repentence, faith, and surrender have experienced a new birth. In the first century "the Lord added to the church such as were being saved." We feel that God still operates in the same manner.

We see the Bible as more than a record of God's revelation of himself to mankind. It is also the supreme guide-book for members of the family of God. What other book of principles could be given to improve on that which God has given? What other statement of belief, what creed, could improve on the New Testament?

We believe that the Bible very clearly proclaims that every Christian is a priest. There is therefore no room in God's family for human government. God can...and does...speak directly to each one of His children. And no one child is above another in delegated authority. It is always God who "sets the members in the body as it pleases him."

The Church of God, in prayer and sincere desire to know God's will exercises complete freedom in determining all matters of mutual concern and interest.

To become a member of the Church of God, one who is truly Christian by experience and confession simply associates himself with the group and exercises all the privileges and powers which are his as a member of God's family.

Salvation makes a person a citizen of God's kingdom, and only sin can put him out; as such a citizen he has a potential membership in every local group of Christians throughout the world. He exercises those privileges in the group or congregation with which he associates for worship, study, fellowship, evangelism, and service.

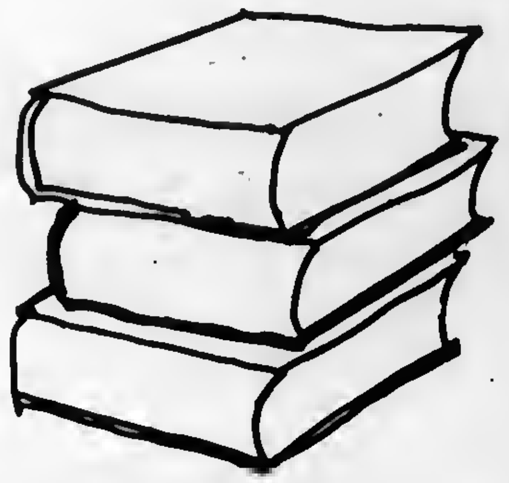
BOOKER WASHINGTON



Booker T. Washington was an American Negro educator, born a slave in Franklin County, Virginia in 1856. Washington endured great hardships and poverty in his youth but managed to get an education at Hampton Institute. In 1881, he was chosen to establish and head the Tuskegee Institute for practical training of Negroes in trades and professions. During his lifetime the school grew from nothing to a facility with over 100 buildings. In 1901, Washington wrote "Up From Slavery". He was recognized as the educational leader of the Negro people in the United States. He died in 1915 and was elected to the American Hall of Fame in 1945.

Files $3.2 Million Suit

Judge Reibel's Saga Continues

By TOM DAMMANN

Two new chapters in the saga of 90th District Court Judge Arthur R. Reibel began unfolding last week, both in the county court house, almost simultaneously and both directly involved with Reibel's erstwhile ownership of Castle Farms.

On Wednesday morning precisely at 10, on the east doorstep on the County Building, Under Sheriff James D. McCallum began the mortgage foreclosure sheriff's sale of Castle Farms, which Reibel and his wife, Erwina, had hoped to open last summer as an artists's colony tourist attraction.

McCallum read the foreclosure notices which had been advertised in the COURIER each week since October 30, and then asked for bids.

SBA Bids

Edmund Starkey, loan officer from the Detroit Regional Office of the Small Business Administration (SBA) stepped forward and bid a total of $91,000 for the property.

The auction was conducted in accordance with state laws, Starkey explained, to satisfy $87,500 in delinquent principal and interest payments on two mortgages held by SBA and the Charlevoix County State Bank.

A spokesman at SBA's Detroit office explained that it is normal procedure to bid an amount to cover the outstanding principal and interest on a foreclosed mortgage.

If anybody had bid higher than the $91,000 he would have acquired the property.

Can Be Redeemed

But in any case, under state laws, the Reibels have a year in which to redeem the property, the spokesman said.

Meanwhile, SBA will acquire a sheriff's deed to Castle Farms, which it can deliver at a future sale, unless the Reibels redeem the property.

The second chapter of the saga came to light when witnesses to the auction discovered, pinned to the bulletin board in the County Building Lobby, a copy of a suit Reibel and his wife filed two days before.

Constitutionality?

The suit challenges the constitutionality of the state laws, covering mortgage foreclosure sheriff's sales and asks for $3,200,000 in damages.

Naming the SBA, the Charlevoix County State Bank and several individuals as defendants the Reibels charge that "the foreclosure and advertised sheriff's sale of "Castle Farms, violates their right to "due process of law as guaranteed by Article 1, Sections 2 and 17 of the Michigan Constitution of 1963, and the 14th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution."

The suit asserts that Michigan statutes providing for the "Foreclosure of Mortgages by Publication" are unconstitutional because they permit the "taking of property without actual notice, an opportunity for a hearing on the validity of the underlying obligation, or a judicial determination of the secured parties' right to security."

Three John Does

Also named in the suit are SBA's Detroit District Director Don Edmondson; Gordon R. Wellman, an officer of the Charlevoix Bank; and several John Does, "whose true names are unknown as of this date."

The loans were originally arranged by John Van Haver, who is named in the advertisements of the foreclosure sale, with Charlevoix County State Bank which in turn sold, in effect, 85 percent of the mortgages to SBA, retaining only 15 percent participation.

Lost Suit

In November 1973, Reibel lost to Van Haver in a suit Van Haver filed in Circuit Court here to recover money he claimed Reibel failed to pay him.

Circuit Court Judge James Fitzpatrick ruled that Reibel still owed Van Haver some $24,000. Litigation over his decision is still pending.

Castle Farms consists of some 43 acres, a stone castle-like structure and several outbuildings formerly parts of the summer residence and dairy farms of Chicago millionaire Albert L. Loeb, a landmark southeast of Charlevoix for more than an half century.

An appraisal offered by the Reibels as an exhibit in their suit sets the value of the property at better than a half million dollars.

In their list of complaints, the Reibels contend that despite their continued cooperation with the federal agency, they were never notified of the foreclosure notice before the publication of the advertisements, beginning October 30 in the Charlevoix Courier.

The Suit

Nor had they "received notice of any judicial hearing, all of which denies the Plaintiffs their rights under the Due Process Clauses" of the State Constitution and under the 14th Amendment of the U.S. Constitution, the suit asserts.

The suit requests a temporary and permanent injunctive order because the Reibels "are justly fearful and apprehensive that upon expiration of the redemption period prescribed by law, Plaintiffs shall lose all right, title and interest in said property."

Restraining Order

The Reibels asked the Circuit Court for a temporary restraining order, a permanent injunction after a hearing on the merits, a declaratory judgement that foreclosure notice provisions of the state law "are constitutionally inadequate and that the statutes are null and void as repugnant to the Constitutions of the U.S. and the State of Michigan."

The Reibela charge Wellman, the bank, SBA and others with conspiracy, which among other things resulted in newspaper articles harmful to

PBB Strikes Once Again

By PEG OHLE

Another herd of dairy cattle in Charlevoix County is suffering from poisonous chemical contamination.

Twenty-six cows belonging to Mr. and Mrs. Charles Britton of Norwood Township were tested in October for poly-brominated-biphenyl (P.B.B.) and showed a contamination rate of less than the one point in a million then set as a safe standard. However, they were above the three-tenths of a point in a million, which is the new tolerance level set by the state.

As of last week, biopsies of three of the Britton's cows were being made again to determine if the contamination is high enough to warrant disposing of the cattle.

One large dairy herd and one herd of beef cattle in Charlevoix County were destroyed this fall because of the poisoning.

The P.B.B., a fire retardant chemical, was mistaken for magnesium oxide, a common mineral supplement for animal feed, and added to feed supplied farmers by Michigan Farm Bureau Services, Inc. Michigan Chemical Company of St. Louis, Michigan comingled the P.B.B. with magnesium oxide shipped to the Farm Bureau.

P.B.B. contamination has resulted in the destruction of thousands of head of livestock and poultry throughout Michigan.

Farm Bureau Services, Inc. has filed a $275 million lawsuit against the chemical company, asking for damages for loss of animals, business and related costs for itself and for the hundreds of farmers whose livestock were damaged as a result of having been fed P.B.B.

If the Britton herd is condemned it will be destroyed and buried on state land in Kalkaska County in which all the other contaminated animals have been buried.

The resultant loss to the Britton's will not only be that of the cattle but income from sale of milk and the expensive steam-cleaning of barns and feed lot before more cattle can be put in them.

If and when any insurance money will be forthcoming from the hard-hit Michigan Farm Bureau Services, Inc. is yet to be determined. "We'll just have to wait and see," Mrs. Britton says.

Two Local Hearings Being Held Tonight

Charlevoix hosts two important public hearings tonight (Tuesday) on the Pine River Channel and Fisherman's Island Park.

The Army Corp of Engineers will hold a workshop at 7:30 p.m. at Charlevoix City Hall to discuss further modification of the Charlevoix Harbor.

They plan on presenting the results of a study conducted on the economic transportation of commodities such as coal and limestone through Charlevoix harbor in larger vessels by deepening the channel.

The alternatives range from no improvement to dredging of the channel to depths varying from 19 feet through 25 feet.

Proposed plans for Fisherman's Island will be discussed at a public hearing by the Department of Natural Resources (DNR) at the county courthouse. The meeting will be at 7:30 p.m.

DNR Parks Division Chief O.J. Scherschligt will conduct the meeting. Plans presented will be the result of citizens input from an October public hearing.

Proposed concepts call for limited development with rustic atmosphere, primitive camping sites, hiking trails and minimum parking areas.

The hearing will discuss more specific plans for parking, trails, camping and entrances to the proposed park.

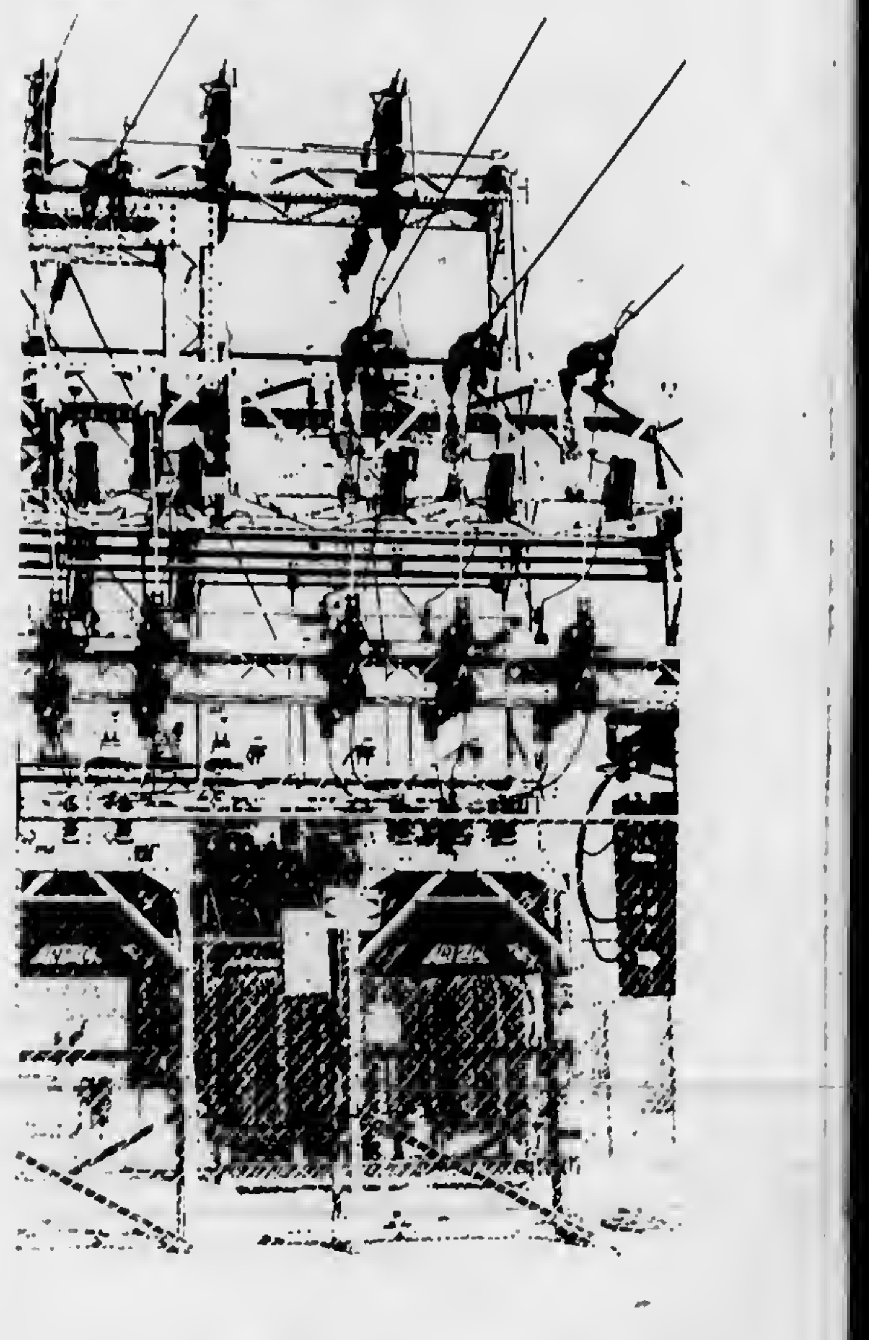
Future Shocks

Charlevoix Can Expect More Rate Increases in Electricity Unless There are Changes



Willie Wirehand has blown his fuse. Again.

Charlevoix County residents are being asked to replace the fuse by paying increased electric rates totaling 14.9 per cent, as well as a power cost adjustment.

And, unless there is a major change in the trend of the economy or major legislative action, Charlevoix area residents can expect more electrical rate hike requests in the next few years.

Those are simply the facts of economic life.

The concerned consumer can probably argue not against a rate increase itself, but about the amount of an increase and how it will be distributed among the residential, commercial and industrial customers. The consumer can also push for more economical development of facilities--so he is not paying for expensive generating equipment that sits idle.

It wasn't so long ago that Willlie Wirehand, that smiling little advertising caricature used by the REA, told us how much magic would be worked in our homes for "only pennies a day."

Many area residents unquestioningly accepted the idea that virtually unlimited sources of electricity could work all sorts of wonders and cost almost nothing.

They know differently now.

They know that the danger of a kind of electric shock lurks inside each monthly bill from the Top of Michigan Rural Electric Co. And they increasingly hear such ominous words as "brownout" and "blackout."

In September, 1973, a typical consumer using 613 KWM would have paid $19.44.

However, in the fall of 1973, Top of Michigan found its wholesale power costs rose sharply.

Roger Westenbroek of Top of Michigan said that average cost for the first eight months of 1974 were 51 per cent higher than the same period in 1973.

To help offset some of the loss, Westenbroek said that the Public Service Commission approved a power cost adjustment in December.

With this adjustment, the same consumer using 613 KWM paid $26 in September, 1974, or 33.7 per cent more than he paid in September, 1973.

"The Power Cost Adjustment was not adequate to enable the company to operate in the black in 1974," Westenbroek continued.

"So, in September, 1974, the Public Service Commission approved a rate increase which went into effect in October."

Now, the consumer who paid the $26 in September is being billed $29.88 or 14.9 per cent more under the new rates.

And if things continue, the 4,500 Top of Michigan customers in Charlevoix County will probably see more increases.

One of the major influences, in addition to rising fuel costs, is an opinion by the state attorney general's office that utility companies will no longer be able to add fuel adjustment rates to customers' bills.

For many years power companies have been making additional charges to industrial and commercial customers whenever wholesale power costs have gone up.

Then in 1972, after several legislative changes, power companies were also able to pass those costs on to residential users.

But now, in a recent opinion by the attorney general, power companies can no longer make adjustmenta outside actual rate increases.

According to several sources, the question now arises--where are power companies supposed to make up the difference when their wholesale costs go up?

They say they can't operate at a loss and unless they can get rate hike approval from the Michigan Public Service Commission, new construction and maintenance of existing lines will have to be decreased.

Each electric utility company affected by the attorney general's opinion has until Jan. 14, 1975 to show cause why the adjustments they have been making shouldn't be rescinded.

"Looking down the pike...it's going to be an increasing thing," Westenbroek said.

Bulletin

Charlevoix Township trustees unanimously adopted a resolution Monday night stating they do not want to merge with the City of Charlevoix.

Township Supervisor Oscar Stroud said the vote came after some 20 residents indicated they were not in favor of the move.

For the last several months, both township and city officials had been considering merger of the two governmental units.

"There was no real bitterness or anything like that," Stroud said.

"They were satisfied the way they were at this time."

Stroud said the township was against merger because they didn't like doing it at the same time the city was considering a new form of government.

The City of Charlevoix is considering changing from a Fourth Class City to Home-Rule Charter.

"We felt at this time, the township was moving along very reasonably with township government," he said.

"So why change?"

Stroud cited that the township had been able to keep up with the times with the formation of a fire department, water system and new road construction.

"We have a lot of engineering done and are working towards a sewer system," he said.

Merchants Ready for Christmas

Christmas is off to a sparkling start this year in Charlevoix.

Colored lights have been strung along Bridge Street to herald the coming of Christmas. They will replace the regular street lights and operate from their controls to conserve electricity.

"They will make the town look more cheerful," says City Administrator Robert Wexstaff, recalling that last year there were no Christmas lights because of the energy crisis.

Charlevoix's Christmas tree this year will be one of the live ones in East Park, to be decorated this Wednesday evening by students in the schools' art classes. However, the tree will not be lighted.

Santa Claus will come to the Charlevoix County Bank at 5 p.m. Friday afternoon, and each child visiting him will have his picture taken on Santa's lap.

Santa will make another appearance, with the help of the Fire Department, Saturday at 12:30 at the foot of Clinton Street. He will greet all the children and ask their Christmas wishes. After Santa's visit the children will be treated to a free matinee at Cinema III.

The City of Charlevoix will also sponsor its annual house decorating contest. The unlighted decorations will be judged Saturday, December 21, by Mrs. Robert Tunms, Mrs. Ray Wood and Mrs. Robert Wexstaff. Prizes for best decorations will be $50, first; $25, second; and $15, third.

Persons joining the Christmas Club at the First State Bank will have an opportunity to draw for a 10-speed bicycle on Friday, December 20. The drawing will be part of a Christmas party, complete with candy, apples and Santa Claus.

The Charlevoix Courier and radio station WVOY will sponsor a Carol-In Monday evening, December 23 in East Park. Loud speakers will be installed to carry the music throughout the business district.

Tim Moore of the radio station will act as master of ceremonies and Marina LaBlance, Charlevoix Elementary music teacher, will lead the caroling.

The Carol-In will be held early, at 7 o'clock, so that families can gather as a group and participate in singing favorite old Christmas songs.

The Courier and WVOY will also sponsor a Christmas card drawing that evening. The prize will be cross country skis for all members of the winner's family.

The winner must be present at time of drawing.

The Christmas cards, with the participant's name, must be in the office of the Courier or WVOY by noon, December 23. After the drawing, the cards will be sent to a charitable organization to be used for holiday decorations.

Letters to Santa Claus to be published in the Courier must all be in by Friday, December 20, to be included in the issue before Christmas.

Take A Snowmobile Safety Class And Be Prepared for the Season

A Snowmobile Safety Training Course is being conducted by the Sheriff's Department this week in the cafeteria of the Charlevoix Middle School. Classes are slated for 7 o'clock Monday, Wednesday and Friday evenings and a final test will be given on another day.

Michigan law requires youths between the ages of 12 and 16 to have passed such a course and carry a certificate indicating completion of the course while operating a snowmobile. Further information about the course may be received from the Sheriff's Department.

The Michigan Department of Natural Resources says that last year there were 1,505 snowmobile accidents reported to the Michigan State Police, and in these 21 persons were killed.

Taking the training course does not mean that the operator will not have an accident, but it is interesting to note that over 90 percent of drivers involved in accidents last year did not have formal instruction in safe snowmobile operation.

Using statistics compiled by DNR's Law Enforcement Division, a fairly typical accident can be synthesized. By using the highest percentages for each category, here is a composite picture of what happened:

Most likely, the scene would be set in the northern Lower Peninsula during a weekend of December, January or February sometime between 5 and 11 p.m. Our driver is young, between 16 and 25, but he has had quite a bit of experience on the snowmobile, 100 to 500 hours, although he hasn't had official training.

There is nothing wrong with the machine and the driver is wearing a helmet. He has not been drinking and, when the accident occurs, he is most likely to be on a roadway or trail.

The weather and snow conditions are just about perfect. He's got packed snow and it's 11 to 20 degrees.

Why the accident? The main cause during 1973's snowmobile season was speeding (26 percent) with hitting a hidden or unseen object as the second biggest problem (10 percent).

He's most likely going to be injured (75 percent) and the biggest percentage of injuries will be damage to the lower limbs. As a result of the injuries, chances are the driver would be temporarily incapacitated.

If there is a passenger involved in the accident, the highest possibility is that it is a child under 12 years old who is sitting on the machine. The passenger, too, is wearing a protective helmet.

The passenger is a little luckier than the driver, however. In an accident, chances are 71 percent compared to 75 percent that the passenger will have injuries of the lower limbs and will be incapacitated.

These accidents are not the result of high power machines being raced. They are most likely to happen on machines with between 21 and 40 horsepower, the same type of machine most used by Michigan residents.

Snowmobiler Guide Lists Area Trails

A snowmobile guide containing information on rules and location of trails in the state has been compiled by the Michigan Department of Natural Resources.

The guide is available at DNR Regional and District headquarters, the DNR Detroit Information Office of the Michigan Tourist Council.

Maps with legends pinpoint the location of snowmobile trails, their length and a phone number for inquiries on conditions.

Nine new trails, several of them within reasonable driving distance of Charlevoix, have been opened but are not listed in the guide.

The new trails are Greenhills in Michigamme State Forest, Chandler Hills in Jordan River State Forest, North Branch in Otsego State Forest, Silver Creek in Black Lake State Forest, East Devil's Lake in Alpena State Forest, Bear Lake in Kalkaska State Forest, Gladwin Refuge in Tittabawassee State Forest, St. Helen to Roscommon in Houghton Lake State Forest, and North Missaukee and Lake City North, Missaukee State Forest.

The DNR's Law Enforcement Division reminds snowmobilers that January 1, 1975 is the start of a new registration cycle and all machines must be licensed for another three-year period.

It should be noted that both automobiles towing snowmobiles and the snowmobiles themselves must have a Motor Vehicle Permit before entering a state park. These are usually available at the park entrance.

Want No Improvements

Planners Reject Highway Plan

The Charlevoix County Planning Commission, at its regular meeting last week, rejected all highway corridors proposed by the State Department of Highways and Transportation through Northwestern Michigan.

Instead, the Commission adopted a resolution setting forth four objectives they consider important in routing any super highway through the area:

(1) The highway should extend north to Mackinaw City instead of joining Highway 75 at a point such as Vanderbilt, (2) the highway should be a limited access freeway, (3) highways 31 and 131 should be joined some place south of Charlevoix County, (4) the highway should be placed where there would be the least possible environmental damage and where it would provide the most economic benefit to the area.

In rejecting the plans, Charlevoix County joined Emmet County and the City of Charlevoix in saying that none of them met the needs or desires of the area.

The Planning Commission has been requested by the Department of Highways to select five highway corridor plans from among 15 submitted by them for study and consideration.

During the lengthy discussion about the highway plans many questions were raised, including whether Charlevoix County wants or needs a super highway running through it, whether such a highway would bring more problems than advantages, and whether the environmental aspects of the county would permit such a highway.

Commission member Don Berlage said he thought the Planning Commission would be doing people of the county a disservice by approving any ten-mile wide highway corridor. He also suggested that if there were to be a super highway through Charlevoix County it should be routed by local planners, using a topographical map to insure that environmentally sensitive areas would not be disturbed.

Commission member Ed Wojan said that the Planning Commission should consider its goals, whether the county wants growth by encouraging manufacturing or whether it wants to remain essentially a resort area.

Planning Commission Chairman Walter Thorsen pointed out that adequate highways for shipment of manufactured items was most important.

Commission member William Ohle said he believed that any highway plan should be coorrdinated with other modes of transportation such as railroads, water and air.

The motion rejecting the proposed highway corridors is being sent to the State Department of Highways and Transportation and to the Northwest Michigan Regional Planning and Development Commission.

Republicans Elect New Officers And Propose Several Changes

In an attempt to revitalize the Republican party in Charlevoix County following the election of five Democrats to the County Board of Commissioners last month, a new set of officers has been elected, the party situation evaluated, and changes in the by-laws proposed.

Mrs. Thora Kotowich of East Jordan is the new president of the Republican County Committee, William Cooper of Ironton is the new vice-president, James McCallum of Charlevoix is the new secretary, and Eliene Rouse of Boyne City is the new treasurer.

Meeting last week, the county group followed Governor Milliken's lead when he took a look at the Republican party statewide and noted its weaknesses.

Locally, members say that the County Committee is in a shambles, that there is no visible county wide organization, and that there are no permanent records.

Other criticisms are that there is a noticeable lack of party interest in its members except at election time, there is no continuing and consistant program of service to the community, and there are no restrictions on the use of the Republican partybanner by those seeking public office.

To correct these weaknesses the Republican County Committee proposes to change its by-laws and statement of purpose in several ways.

The proposed statement of purpose of the Committee is set forth as follows:

(1) Promote more efficiency and economy in all county and township bodies. (2) search out, promote and support qualified responsible people for all elective and appointive offices, (3) restore all possible governmental functions to the local level, (4) be noticeably active in supporting worthy community functions, (5) perform ombudsman services for citizens in the county when needed and requested.

The Committee also proposes to set up and maintain continuous records of operating procedure, to establish party performance records as a qualification for use of the Republican banner by those seeking public office, and to deny party endorsement for re-election to those county officials who fail to keep performance records during their term in office.

Harold Harris of Horton Bay was appointed chairman of a committee to study and revamp the by-laws. Other members of the committee are Madeline Denu, East Jordan; Edward Hansen, Charlevoix; Richard Dubin, Boyne City; Delbert Ingalls, South Arm Township; Roy Brunell, Boyne City; William Ohle, Horton Bay; Mrs. Kotowich and Cooper.

Help Everyone Have A Merry Christmas

Christmas is a time of joy and great celebration.

It is a time to renew old friendships and give thanks.

But for some, Christmas is only a time of sorrow.

It is a time of being forgotten and having only past memories to live with.

Join us at the Charlevoix Courier in brightening these people's holiday by sending a card of Christmas cheer to those who otherwise may be forgotten.

If you know of no one, we suggest you might send a card to the many at Grandvue Medical Care Facility in East Jordan.

Perhaps you know some of them and could even take a few minutes to stop in and spread the holiday cheer.

The following is a list of the patients at Grandvue.

Clockwise

By BOB CLOCK

I can't remember a Christmas season during my long years on this planet that men of the cloth and bands of their devoted followers haven't lit into the rest of us for letting Santa Claus corrupt the spirit of the holidays.

Of course, they're right. But they aren't making much headway. The glittering Christmas season characterized by colored lights, fake evergreens dripping with shimmering tinsel and the merry tinkle of cash register bells has absolutely nothing to do with the birthday of the Christ Child.

Yet it seems that each succeeding Christmas is doomed to become more commercial than the one that went before.

There almost was hope for suffering Christendom last December when, because of the worsening energy crisis, many communities elected to forego the pleasure of multi-colored lights, which traditionally herald the Birth of Our Savior on Main-st., USA.

But, by golly, you know we have strayed so far from the true meaning of the holidays that it really didn't seem much like Christmas without the colored lights in Charlevoix, even for us old sinners who ought to be worried about other matters. The Christmas tree in East Park decorated with "sensible" non-electric ornaments didn't even look like a Christmas tree, so accustomed had we become to gaudy trappings.

I shouldn't admit it, but I didn't like Christmas in Charlevoix last year. I felt pretty bad living in a day and age that couldn't afford a few paltry Christmas lights.

Of course, I knew my attitude was wrong. I knew as well as the next fellow that there would be no Christmas if the Christ Child had not been born in a stable in Bethlehem many hundreds of years ago. The Christmas story has withstood the test of time. The details are forever new and forever beautiful–embodying the promise of salvation and forgiveness that are the root of the Christian faith.

Why, then, when the Christmas story alone should be a signal for global rejoicing, why must we turn to Santa Claus, Rudolph the Reindeer, Frosty the Snowman, grinches, elves, and other assorted fictional characters to divert attention from the central idea behind this holiest of holidays?

I don't know for sure, but I feel more strongly each year that the trappings of Christmas have become a front, a mask, a blind, a camouflage for most of us.

If we just once embraced the Christmas story as a prophecy-come-true, our lives would never be the same.

How could we ever accept the Christ Child and at the same time drop bombs on our neighbors, sell arms to our enemies, ignore hanky-panky in government, cheat in business, pollute the water we drink and the air we breathe with frightful substances, and gorge ourselves while the world starves?

I am afraid that most of us who live our days in fear and darkness could not withstand a face-to-face confrontation with the brilliance of the Christmas story. We must be content to waste our little lives in the company of such second-rate frauds as Santa Claus and Rudolph.

Letters to the editor

Dear Santa--Help Channel 6

Dear Santa,

I thought you'd like to know that in view of inflation and the energy crisis I'm going to give you all the help I can this year. I never know what to give people anyway so this year I'm sending a big contribution to Public TV, Channel 6! This way I can give Aunt Amy who is shut-in days of lovely music and for her niece who has twin boys I'm giving Sesame Street, Mister Rogers and the Electric Company. That way she'll have time to put away some of the toys. For my Uncle Roger who has never worn a single necktie I have given him I'm giving The Advocates, Book Beat, Special of the Week and Evening Pops.

With all this Christmas shopping so neatly taken care of I'll have time to take a college credit course from Central Michigan on channel 6. I do think I've got the right Christmas Spirit this year, don't you?

So Santa, if other people are writing you with questions about what to give just tell them to send a check payable to Central Michigan University–TV 6 to:

Development Office
Central Michigan University
Mt. Pleasant, MI 48859

If enough people give we can have wonderful TV and radio for Northern Michigan, a gift for all seasons.

Sincerely,
Virginia

Broader Salary Cuts

Dear Editor:

Your comments in the Dec. 4th issue addressed to saving tax money by having the elected County Commissioners serve for free is fine with me providing you can broaden your focus somewhat to include an equal salary cut for ALL CIVIL SERVANTS both appointed and elected and especially lawyers and teachers.

If you meant to "bait" the Commissioners for a debate–you have succeeded at least with one.

I never did feel that government was ever meant to become a financial vehicle to create and maintain a privileged class in a life style more affluent than the people who were supporting them.

There is a truism which goes thus–"One never misses-What one has never had." Well I have managed for 56 years without a government salary and feel capable to continue so please press onward and if you can reach agreement with enough involved parties enormous sums can be saved indeed.

Sincerely
Oscar W. Ward

Great Job Girls

The Charlevoix girls basketball team showed real character in their tough 62-58 loss to Gladwin in the regional finals.

The girls saw certain victory turn into sudden defeat. It definitely could be called a heartbreaking loss.

Of course the girls were disappointed. Why shouldn't they be? They had worked nearly four months towards a possible state championship and had become used to winning.

But the girls did not let their disappointment affect their sportsmanship. They offered no excuses for their loss. They faced up to it and accepted it while giving nothing but praise for the fine Gladwin team.

You could see the mutual respect that the two teams had for each other. It was an emotional ending to a well-played game and the Charlevoix girl, glossy-eyed, were very graceful losers.

While Charlevoix, lost the game, the girls can be proud of what they had gained; an ability to face up to adversity and defeat.

This is what inter-scholastic athletics are all about. The two teams had practiced hard, were bonded together by their common goal to win, and had played their hearts out.

This type of experience is exactly what makes interscholastic athletics so important within our school system. Winning, losing, competition, hard work, all help to develop the character of an individual.

And our girls showed plenty of it.

Early Cars Would Run on Whiskey

Today's motorist may feel that the energy crisis presents unique problems with regard to the location of fuel, but can you imagine any current automotive manual suggesting, "If your engine is warm and you run out of gas, you can nearly always get home on kerosene or alcohol or even bad whiskey."

Around 1900 when the nation had only 140 miles of paved roads, and maps, signs, service stations, and gas gauges were non-existent, if a motorist's "homing instinct for fuel" failed him, one could find him prescribing to this old fashioned remedy, according to Petroleum Today, a magazine published by the American Petroleum Institute.

Attempts to avert this situation promulgated the use of a device called a "gaso-phone," a float-rigged bell which rang when fuel ran low. Others, however, simply carried gas cans or dipped rulers into tanks to measure supply.

By 1913 some relief was on the way, with the appearance of the first service station along modern lines. The operators of this Pittsburgh, Pa. station sold gasoline, oil, and grease, put on tires purchased at the station, dispensed air and water, and allowed customers free use of rest rooms, according to the article.

Charlevoix Suffers A Great Loss

Charlevoixans were saddened last week to learn of the death of Lawrence (Skip) Skippergosh at age 63.

Mr. Skippergosh apparently suffered a heart attack after helping a friend push an automobile. Of course his friend felt bad when Mr. Skippergosh was stricken, fearing exertion had brought on the attack.

But Mr. Skippergosh was incapable of not helping a friend in need. If that car needed to be pushed, it was going to get pushed. Skip would have it no other way.

A veteran employe of the Charlevoix County Road Commission and the Charlevoix Street Department, Mr. Skippergosh will be missed by Charlevoixans of all ages.

Little kids will miss not having him stop and chat with them from the seat of one of the big city utility trucks.

High School athletes will miss his expert advice, particularly in the areas of track and field. (Skip reportedly had Olympic potential when he was young, but "burned himself out in college.")

Sports fans will miss not seeing him at football and basketball games. He might not have made the Olympics, but he raised a family of fine athletes.

Townspeople generally will remember him as a man who never complained, no matter how tough the sledding. They'll miss his cheerful, smiling optimism. (B.C.)

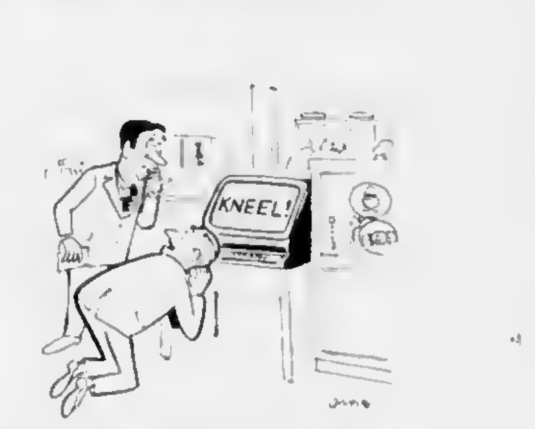
Correction

John R. Wilson, Jr. of the Chicago Club has written us to straighten out the relationship of Mrs. Katherine Babst Parsons and Earl D. Babst.

In a recent story about the Charlevoix Public Library we mentioned that Mrs. Parsons had given some rare volumes to the library that had been in the collection of Earl D. Babst. We erroneously identified Babst as Mrs. Parson's husband. He was, in fact, her father.

Wilson also noted that Mrs. Parsons, now deceased, was the eldest daughter of Earl D. and Edwina Uhl Babst of Grand Rapids. The Babsts had another daughter, Alice Babst Bent, who now resides in Connecticut.

My Neighbors



"I asked it if there is a God."

If it Fitz — Fingered by the Pentagon

By JIM FITZGERALD

A couple of years ago, in New York, I left a dinner early to avoid hearing a speech by the nation's top military officer. Thus I probably blew my chance to learn inside information on why Negro soldiers tap-danced before dying in Vietnam.

The current chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff is General George Brown. In a recent speech to Duke University law students, he explained the trouble in the mideast. The trouble, he said, is that rich Jews own all the banks and newspapers in the United States.

Gen. Brown probably felt safe parading his prejudices before a bunch of future lawyers. After all, lawyers were responsible for a famous break-in at the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist. Everyone knows Ellsberg exposed the Pentagon Papers simply so he could play the big shot at neighborhood bar mitzvahs.

But one of those Duke law students must have been a guy named Green with a nose job. Gen. Brown's speech became worldwide news, exposing him for what he really is–a typical high-ranking officer in the U.S. Military.

President Ford reprimanded Gen. Brown, threatening him with the loss of a valet if he doesn't confine his future philosophizing to restroom walls.

The Senate Armed Services Committee voted 11 to 4 against questioning Gen. Brown about his Duke remarks. Questioning generals is risky. The world might learn the U.S. bombed Cambodia because it is full of slant-eyed gooks.

Gen. Brown accepted amnesty gracefully. He apologized, admitting his remarks were "unfortunate and inaccurate." He said he will no longer make speeches on subjects he knows nothing about and from now on will devote his full time to military duties. And one of his top military priorities is the bombing of the Duke law school.

A lot of naive people expressed shock that a bigot is chairman of the joint chiefs. This is because most people do not understand the function of the joint chiefs. You probably think their primary job is running the Navy, Army, Marine Corps and Air Force. You're wrong.

The primary function of the joint chiefs of the protection preservation of the Haldeman Haircut, pretrial. Every West Point graduate knows a short haircut is the bumper sticker of a true American. Hairy people are automatically furtive. It is much easier to find a communist in a bush if he is bald.

The test is that no lock of a man's hair should be longer than the 1st joint of his middle finger. It is up to General Brown and the other chiefs to administer the joint test and to enforce necessary penalties.

So naturally they are called the joint chiefs.

Men charged with this tremendous responsibility can hardly be expected to have time for the niceties of civilization. They leave it to the pinko bleeding hearts to keep the Negroes in the front of the bus and the Jews out of the gas ovens. The joint chiefs have more important things to do. They are ever-vigilant, protecting their nation from the longhair menace, night and day.

As General Brown might explain: "I can never lock up the joint and go home."

Meet Charlevoix ...Phil Ruppe

Congressman Phil Ruppe made a quick visit to Charlevoix last week and the Charlevoix Courier was able to have a brief interview with him in the car on the drive from Petoskey to Charlevoix.

Here is a portion of that interview.

COURIER: Are we actually in a depression? If we are not, how close are we?

RUPPE: Well, I can't speak to how close we are to a depression, but let me say very firmly I do not believe we are in a depression. I think we are certainly in a recession. The unemployment rate of six plus percent would indicate that we are. However, we still must recognize that we have tremendous numbers of people employed in the United States. A year ago, the unemployment rate was a great deal less and perhaps at 5 percent, we had more Americans and a higher percentage of Americans working that we had ever had in the past. So, I believe we are in a recession, but I don't believe we are bordering on panic or catastrophe. If we have areas where we are in serious straights it would be in the housing industry.

COURIER: What are you presently doing to avert this economic condition?

RUPPE: First of all, I very firmly support President Ford's call to the Congress to pass legislation that would increase public employment and legislation that would provide for an additional 13 weeks of unemployment compensation for individuals who are out of work and whose unemployment has or is about to expire. I also believe very firmly that we should have a three to five year moratorium on any increases in auto emissions standards. I think it has been very difficult for the auto industry, who each year meet emission and safety standards that are in a constant state of flux. I believe we should have this three to five year moratorium during which the government and industry can get together to determine just where they want to go in terms of emission standards, safety standards and any additional standards against the cost of the automobile and against energy and fuel consumption.

COURIER: In talking about the automotive industry, what is the gasoline picture looking like?

RUPPE: Well, the gasoline picture is not good and of course, President Ford and I strongly support the concept of working with and asking the automobile industry to increase present mileage in automobiles by 40 percent, the increase due in 1980. The gasoline picture at the present moment is one where we consume about 17 million barrels of oil every day. We import about some six million barrels so do have about a 35 percent foreign requirement. This means we are going to have to spend about 25 billion dollars in paying for the oil we import and it also means that we are to a degree at the mercy of the oil exporting countries....

COURIER: Do you think there will be rationing or a gasoline tax?

RUPPE: I'm very strongly opposed to the gasoline tax. First of all, we've got to enforce the nation's speed laws, voluntary conservation programs can save a great deal of oil, certainly the 55 mile-an-hour speed limit is one way to achieve this. We've also got to substitute and encourage industry and our utilities to move from utilizing oil and natural gas to utilizing coal where we have hundreds of years of supply. We've got to accelerate if at all possible the utilization of our off-shore resources both east and west coast. I think we should utilize Elk Hills and its reservoirs of oil, it could supply this nation with 300,000 barrels of oil for a number of years. We should also look at Pet-Four, which is petroleum reserve number four in Alaska. So there are a number of things we can positively do. We certainly at the same time have to do everything possible to conserve oil and it could well be we will have some type of government action reduce automobile consumption. I think the gas tax, however, is a very unfair way of reducing consumption. Particularly, in an area like Northern Michigan where we depend on the automobile to get to work to do our business and certainly to accommodate the tourist industry.

COURIER: What are you doing at this point to prevent the abandonment of Northern Michigan Railroads?

RUPPE: Well, a number of months ago, the Department of Transportation came out with a recommendation that would have reduced the trackage in Michigan by some 37 percent. Hearings were scheduled regarding that cutback package in Grand Rapids and Detroit. At that time, I very strongly protested to the department that Michigan was not being heard and as a result hearings were held in Marquette and Traverse City. The report, I believe, the ICC is coming out with a study of its own. I very firmly stated to the ICC that we have to take into account the health of the railroad industry, but we also have to take into account the economic impact and the alternative source of transportation available to the

Be on the Lookout for Christmas Dangers

By PEG OHLE

Chritmas is the happiest time of the year, but every Christmas season there are thousands of tragedies that could have been prevented by knowledge of the impending danger and precaution against it.

Fire is a great danger at this time of year because of the many decorations being used, the electrical gifts being tested, and the traditional extensive use of fireplaces.

Charlevoix Fire Chief John Curtis warns against leaving Christmas tree lights on when trees are unattended. Trees should also be kept moist and away from all sources of heat.

Check Wires

Curtis suggests that all electrical wires be checked for fraying and loose connections and counsels against overloading circuits. Only waterproof equipment should be used outdoors.

Lighted candles are extremely dangerous and should never be used except when some one is in the room. Christmas wrappings and boxes stuffed into fireplaces or stoves are another fire hazard.

Christmas toys may also cause accidents. Very small toys or toys made up of small pieces may be swallowed by small children. When strewn on the floor they may cause slipping and falling.

Toys with sharp edges such as the long pieces of Tinker Toys and Erector Sets are dangerous if a child runs with them. They may injure the face, eyes or throat. Toys containing pins or staples present swallowing or injury possibilities.

Any toy that a small child might chew on, such as foam rubber balls and painted articles, is also potentially dangerous. While the danger of lead poisoning from paint is no longer with us, some paints do flake off and could cause choking and upset stomachs.

Although not an immediate danger, soft toys that can't be cleaned or laundered may create a health problem. Many stuffed animals, puppets and bean bags are in this category.

Be Simple

Dr. Eileen Earhart of the Family and Child Science Department of Michigan State University, in citing the above dangers in toys, says that the simpler, less decorative ones are the best. She also says that while most toys are made of plastic, wooden ones are more durable and safer because they usually have smoother edges.

Another holiday danger, perhaps just a nuisance, may be found in your fireplace wood. While no right-thinking person would light a fire in the fireplace before Santa Claus has made his trip down the chimney and returned to his sleigh on the rooftop, fireplace fires are part of the Christmas season.

Fireplace wood may harbor insects such as carpenter ants, roaches, wood borers or beetles, according to Dr. Donald C. Cress, Michigan State University Extension entomologist.

Beware of Insects

He explains that the insects emerge from the fireplace wood as household temperatures rouse them from what would have been a normal winter's sleep.

"These insects are not uncommin in dead or dried wood, the type usually used in fireplaces. They normally live their life cycle in soft or hardwoods, some have one generation per year, others require two or three years to complete one generation," Cress says.

Even though the insects may start crawling or flying about the house in search of something to bite, they aren't likely to chew your house down or swallow the settee. Generally, they can be considered a nuisance.

Fireplace wood should be stored where winter temperatures will keep the insects in the wood. Bring only enough wood into the house to last an afternoon or evening. That way, insects will not have a chance to emerge.

No chemicals are registered or recommended for controlling insect emergence from firewood.

Teacher Feature

Meet Mrs. Martin

As librarian, Mrs. Lucy Martin says she learns something new every day helping students with research.

"Being librarian permits me to work with children as individual people who have both in-school and out of school interests," she says.

The Charlevoix Middle School librarian has taught about twenty years and has seen many changes in the field of education, most of which she believes have been good.

Lucy went to North Central College in Illinois.

She has taken most of her graduate courses at Central Michigan University where she earned her library certification.

Her hometown of Ferndale, Michigan, initiated her to teaching, and though she has taken some time off while having her children, she has taught English, social studies, speech or worked as a librarian ever since.

"I've taught high school but I really prefer the middle school. I wouldn't want to go back to teaching in the high school," Lucy says.

Lucy is a very caring person, a very caring leader.

She is the head of the Congregational Church Women's Fellowship group, the treasurer of FISH, an emergency help organization, chairperson of CHICO, an organization for helping Indian children; past president of the Charlevoix Women's Club, and one of the most dedicated members of the KHH.

Besides having a librarian's love for reading, she enjoys singing in the church choir, bridge, and out-door activities like cross-country skiing and boating.

Their married daughters, Ann and Elaine, reside in Charleston, West Virginia, and Columbus, Ohio, respectively. Paul, their son, is teaching English at a university in Beirut, Lebanon. Dr. and Mrs. Martin are the proud grandparents of two grandchildren.

Charlevoix's Mike Coyne Wants to do Your Work

Michael Coyne

Would you hire this youngster?

He wants you to.

Michael Coyne along with some 30 sixth grade math students are trying to earn money for their annual trip to Greenfield Village.

They hope to be earning the money by doing odd jobs for anyone who is willing to hire them for 50 cents an hour.

"It was a teacher's idea," says Michael.

"He thought it would be good for us to deal with money."

The Charlevoix middle school student thought it would also be a good thing do to for the public.

He said the students could do anything from shoveling snow to babysitting.

Michael says about the only thing his group can't do is climb ladders.

Each of the students will be supervised, in addition to public - relations person coming after the job is finished.

"If people are not satisfied with the job we come back and fix it and do it right," he said.

"I think the project is going to be really fun."

Those interested in hiring a student should call 547-6936 from 4 to 8 p.m.

In Charlevoix County

You Need 5 Permits to Build

The mounting number of permits, rules and regulations, and paper work entering our everyday lives is exemplified by what will be required to build a house in certain locations after July 1 of next year.

Charlevoix County Planner Bill Mercer points out that after that date, to build a house in a high risk erosion or environmental area on Lake Michigan (as defined by the Shorelands Protection Act of 1972) the builder will have to have:

(1) A Shoreline Use permit

(2) A Grading permit (under the Soil Erosion and Sedimentation Act)

(3) A Health Department permit

(4) A Zoning permit

(5) A Building permit

And after the house is built it is subject to inspection to determine if all rules and regulations have been complied with.

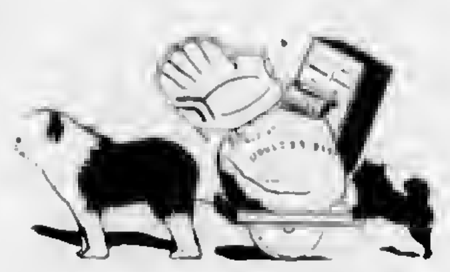
An Invitation To All Our Charlevoix Friends

August 4, 1974 was the beginning of the 75th year of our office, and we had planned some kind of Open House (in fact, we had purchased and paid for a half-page space in the Courier.)

At the same time, we had thought to celebrate the 20th year of our moving from 224 Bridge Street to the Weathervane Inn Building and let the Charlevoix Agency, Inc. have our old office.



We wanted to be near the riverbank where we could see the bridge and the boats; where we could have a stonewall and our attractive entrance covered with roses and have a Copenhagen light on the lower level of beautiful Weathervane Inn.

Due to the extensive building operations of the Weathervane Inn management, our celebration plans were temporarily set aside.

We now want all of our friends to come on the afternoon of December 14th for our delayed plans of August, making a CHRISTMAS GREETING and BIRTHDAY CELEBRATION (which is actually December 14th.)

The Party will be served by the popular cateress, Mrs. Francis Dillon

Brown Opens Business

DON BROWN

The opening of the Don Brown House of Furniture later this month has been announced by the owner whose name the business bears.

The business which will feature furniture as well as carpeting and drapery is located at 936 Petoskey ave. a half mile outside the city limits.

Brown said the chalet-type building, formerly the site of Impac Tool, has a floor space of 6,000 square feet on three level all of which will be utilized for display purposes with the exception of 1000 feet to be used for storage.

Brown, in making the announcement, said that at the present time he is not prepared to name the lines of furniture, carpeting and draperies that he plans to stock. He added, however, that they would be name brands in the moderate as well as the upper price brackets.

The interior of the building that will house the business has been completely redecorated and carpeted throughout in a neutral shade.

Brown is no newcomer to the area or this type of business.

He is a native of Charlevoix and, for the past 15 years, has been associated with Hess Furniture of Charlevoix. He is married to the former LoAnne Anderson.

They have three daughters, Marcia and Terri, students at Grand Valley State College, and Andrea, at home.

CHARLEVOIX'S NEWEST furniture business, owned and operated by Don Brown of Charlevoix, will be located just north of town on U.S.-31.

Sally Ann Paterka Marries Victor T. Malkowitz

St. Mary's church was the scene recently of the wedding of Sally Ann Paterka of Charlevoix and Victor T. Malkowicz of Boyne Falls.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Steve J. Paterka of Charlevoix and Mr. and Mrs. Stanley S. Malkowicz of Boyne Falls.

The Rev. R. Dale Magoon officiated at the double ring service in the presence of more than 200 guests. Mrs. Homer Brady, at the organ, played a program of traditional music and the wedding marches.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, chose a gown of white crepe and lace for her wedding. Fashioned with a bodice of embroidered crepe which featured a V-neckline and long full sleeves, the gown had a full skirt of tiered lace with a full lace flounce at the hemline. A lace headpiece secured her cathedral length veil that was edged with the same lace. She carried a bridal bouquet of yellow and white daisies, white mums and baby's breath.

Ms. Susan Million of Battle Creek was her cousin's maid of honor and Sue Boyd and Lorraine Roberts of East Jordan, niece of the bride, were bridesmaids. They wore identical gowns styled with light blue skirts and darker blue bodice and worn with navy blue velvet jackets. Each carried a single red rose.

Janice Malkowicz of Petoskey, niece of the bridegroom as flower girl, wore a gown of two shades of blue similar to the attendants and carried a basket of yellow and white flowers.

Steve Paterka of Charlevoix and Charles Paterka of Ypsilanti, twin brothers of the bride, were groomsmen. Harold Svododa and Ray Lake, both of Hastings, seated the guests.

Mrs. Paterka chose a long crepe gown fashioned with a leaf green skirt and green and white printed bodice for her daughter's wedding. Mrs. Malkowicz, mother of the bridegroom, wore a floor length gown of multi-colored print jersey with a red jacket. Their corsages were of yellow and white mums.

An evening reception hosted by the bride's parents followed at the American Legion Post home. Assisting were Mrs. Melvin Plum who made and cut the wedding cake, Mrs. Dorothy Kasek and Mrs. Clarence Rabach.

After a wedding trip to southern Michigan, the couple is living in Boyne Falls where the bridegroom is employed.

Girls Prepare for New Season

By FRAN MARTIN

More than 50 prospective players have signed up for the Charlevoix high school girls volleyball team as the Rayderettes prepare to defend their title according to Coach Marie Osterberg.

With the closing of the girls basketball season, practice sessions will get into full swing in preparation for the first meet of the season on Jan. 15.

On that date Charlevoix will host Grayling, Boyne City and Gaylord and the four other teams of the Michigan-Huron Shores league will play elsewhere in the first of seven Wednesday meets. The season will end Feb. 26.

In announcing the opening of practice sessions, Mrs. Osterberg said that at this time league rules do not permit a junior varsity squad so after tryouts during the next few weeks, the number of candidates must be cut to 15, the number allowed to suit up for each game.

Until then, however, all those who have signed up will be considered candidates for the squad she added.

Returning veterans must practice and try out just like the candidates who has signed up for the first time. The fact that they played before does not give them a position on the team.

Charlevoix is the defending title holder, having completed the season with a 14-0 record in league play.

Mrs. Osterberg went on to say that she lost only three players from her championship team.

The returnees, including those who have been involved in basketball until this week, who have indicated they will be candidates for the 1975 team are Cheryl Pence, Lee Steelman, Heidi Dove, Carol Streeter, Glenda Reedy, Judy Elzinga, Lori Kaeslin, Beth Egler, Sandra Hodge and Kay Currey.

CHARLEVOIX BASKETBALL COACH Toni Felter presents her team with medals for being both Michigan Huron Shores and District Champions. The presentation was made in special school assembly held last week.

Chamber Elects 4 Directors

Four new Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce directors have been elected to three-year terms on the 12-member board.

Elected were Elbert Kaiser, Don Voisin, Glenn Harris and Andy Carey.

Flood Insurance Program Planned at Traverse City

The Northwest Michigan Regional Planning and Development Commission and the Michigan Department of Natural Resources will co-sponsor an informational meeting for area officials on the National Flood Insurance Program to be held Wednesday, Dec. 11 at 1:30 p.m. in Room 118 of the Science Building at Northwestern Michigan College.

Speakers will include Sandra Schroeder from the Department of Housing and Urban Development and Richard Watt from the Water Resources Commission's Hydrological Survey Division. A short presentation will be followed by a question and answer session.

The federal government extends flood insurance protection to compensate those who suffer financial losses due to floods, mudslides or erosion.

The program is aimed at those communities adjacent to rivers, streams or lakes, such as those along Lake Michigan.

As a result of the program, it is hoped these communities will adopt adequate land-use and control measures to utlimately reduce the amount of flood and erosion damage that occurs annually.

While the flood insurance meeting is designed to provide information to public officials from throughout the Northwest Region, all interested persons are invited to attend.

Deadline for communities to enroll in the National Flood Insurance Program is July 1, 1975.

You could be paying twice for the same farm protection

Would you build two silos or buy two tractors, if you needed only one? Of course not. Yet, you may be paying twice for the same insurance protection without even realizing it! Coverages on several of your farm policies could overlap. It may not happen often, but even once is often enough to make it worth checking into. Compare all your policies now to make sure you're not paying for anything twice. Then ask us about Farm-Pak. It's altogether better and usually more economical.

Girls Lose Regionals in Overtime

By CHUCK WRIGHT

The girls state championship dreams have come to a heartbreaking end.

With three starters watching helplessly from the bench, the Charlevoix girls varsity basketball team lost a dramatic 62-58 overtime contest in the regional class C finals to the Flying G's of Gladwin.

With 2:19 left in the game and the Rayders holding a commanding 54-49 lead, Charlevoix seemed on their way to the quarterfinals in Gaylord this week. But it was just not to be. Within a minute and ten seconds, Lee Steelman, Von Priest, and Denise Boss, all valuable performers, were charged with their fifth and final foul.

Charlevoix was called for 30 fouls in the game while Gladwin was charged with 17.

Gladwin made four of their seven foul shots in that span while all Charlevoix could muster was a single foul shot. With forty-seven seconds left and Charlevoix holding a 55-53 lead, Tammy Penney fouled Gladwin's sharpshooter, Lisa Woods.

Woods missed her one-and-one opportunity but Gladwin's Becky Kern got the rebound and put it in to tie the game at 55 apiece. Charlevoix called a time-out and decided to play for the last shot.

After working the clock down to ten seconds, Charlevoix's year-long leader, Cheryl Pence drove into the middle and passed off. Incredibly, she was called for the quickest three second violation in basketball history, and Gladwin got the ball. The Flying G's missed a desperation shot at the buzzer.

The overtime was almost anti-climatic. With Gladwin at full strength and Charlevoix missing three of their key players, it was almost no contest. But the Rayders hung in there admirably. Gladwin scored the first two overtime buckets to lead 59-55. After a Dona Bellows foul shot, Gladwin countered with a foul shot of its own.

Pence gave Charlevoix its final glimmer of hope as she sent a ten footer to close the gap to 60-58. But Deena Benkert of Gladwin drove underneath her basket and made a beautiful hook shot to seal Charlevoix's defeat.

Toni Felter who has coached the Rayders to 19 straight wins going into the game was stoic about the loss.

"It was a real good game. Naturally, we are extremely disappointed, but Gladwin is a good team."

In the first quarter, it looked as though Gladwin was an unbeatable team. Employing fine ball handling and superior rebounding, the Flying G's scored almost at will. Building up a 19-14 first quarter lead, they seemed capable of being able to blow the game wide open at any time. Only Lee Steelman's aggressiveness kept Charlevoix close.

The Rayders were no strangers to early deficits, however. As they have done so often in close games this year, Charlevoix scrapped their way back into contention. Steelman, Priest, and Bellows led the comeback. Curiously, Pence was ineffective primarily because she was in foul trouble.

Charlevoix managed to cut the ten point Gladwin lead to six by halftime, 34-28.

Penney led the third quarter surge. After Pence made a beautiful pass to Steelman for two, Penney stole the ball twice and scored. Six straight points and all of a sudden Charlevoix had tied the game at 36 all. But Pence picked up her fourth foul and was forced to go to the bench.

Gladwin then scored a couple of easy buckets and Charlevoix had to start the uphill struggle again.

Behind 44-41 going into the fourth quarter, Pence came off the bench and briefly got herself untracked. Driving to the basket with authority, she scored two quick baskets. Key rebounds by Heidi Dove led to two more Charlevoix scores. After trading baskets, Priest picked off an errant Gladwin pass and drove the length of the floor to score. Charlevoix had outscored Gladwin 13-5 and led 54-49 with 2:19 to go. For Charlevoix, the rest of the game was a nightmare.

Steelman led all scorers with 19. Pence had 12, Dove and Priest 7, Bellows 8, Boss 3, and Penney 2. Woods and Kern led the Gladwin attack with 15 apiece.

Charlevoix's opening game victory over Alcona followed the typical Rayder pattern. Falling behind in the early going, Charlevoix blitzed Alcona in the second half to win going away, 73-46.

Coach Felter explained the slow start. "Alcona was much faster than most teams we've played." "We had to make some adjustments to get going."

Charlevoix who also uses an aggressive man-to-man defense, was flustered by Alcona's man-to-man and had trouble getting organized. Alcona took advantage to lead 14-8.

Pence led a second quarter surge scoring 11 of her game high 27 points. Dove had six points during the surge. At one point Charlevoix led 24-23 but was forced to settle for a 29-29 score at halftime.

The second half was all Charlevoix. Alcona could only muster four points during the third quarter while Steelman led Charlevoix to a 19 point quarter. She had eight points and the Rayders had the game won by the end of the quarter. Charlevoix led 48-33.

Dove added 16 points to Pence's 27. Steelman had 14, Penney and Priest 6, Boss and Bellows 2.

The Rayders finished the 1974 campaign with a terrific 19-1 record, a district championship, a conference win streak of 30 games, and their second straight Michigan-Huron Shores championship. They fell short on just one goal – a state championship.

Little Rayders Beat Rogers City 61 to 45

Charlevoix's Little Rayders racked up a 61-45 win over Rogers City on the Hurons' floor Friday night.

In a game marked by 43 personal fouls, Charlevoix scored 15 out of 26 attempts from the free throw line and 23 from the floor while collecting 20 personal fouls.

The Hurons had 23 personal fouls while scoring 18 field goals and 9 of 19 charity shots.

Bud Klooster led the scoring with eight field goals and six of 11 free throws including seven points in each of the last two periods. Dave Tollas contributed 14 points to the winning cause.

Gorlewski had 20 for Rogers City.

The young Rayders forged to a 14-8 first period lead which they increased to 32-19 at intermission.

As the second half got underway, they poured in another 14 points to 10 for the Hurons for a 46-29 margin going into the final period.

As 14 players saw action, the Hurons outscored the Rayders 16-15 but by then the Rayders were well on their way to a victory.

School Approves Tax Collection

By FRAN MARTIN

The Charlevoix board of education, at its regular meeting Monday night, requested the approval of summer tax collections of 50 percent of the operating revenues in each of the townships and the city within the school district.

The school district has been exploring this possibility for some time. Supt. James A. McKimmy has attended meetings of township boards and the city council, outlining to them the advantages of the proposed program.

It would, among other things, benefit the school district from $40,000 to $44,000 by eliminating the need to borrow monies to operate the schools on until taxes come in after December and to realize some revenue by investing it until it has to be used. The units within the district will now be asked to make a decision on the proposal following Monday's action.

The board also voted to consider a Policy on Records proposed by the Professional Study Committee composed of board members and teachers.

The policy relates to the collection of student records and the distribution of materials contained in student records.

Because of the urgency of the issue, the board voted to give temporary status to the policy on records to govern transactions of student records until formal consideration of the policy is taken at a future meeting.

It is the policy of the board to take under study a proposed policy at a meeting and take formal action on it at a later meeting.

A second policy discussed was one relating to Challenges of Curriculum Materials. This would govern the administration and review of expressed concerns over text and supplementary materials used in the Charlevoix schools. Henceforth, persons challenging curriculum materials will be given a form to complete and express their sentiments of how the issue should be handled.

In order that the school may more adequately service the students in the high school, the board voted to re-instate a Type A hot lunch program in the school.

The ala carte program that has been in affect for the past four years will be continued. It was explained that there was no way that the cost of a la carte lunch could be held down while with the Type A lunch there are students who could qualify for free or reduced price lunches which can be served at a cost of 60 cents per meal on a weekly basis and 65 cents per daily meal. With the growing unemployment in the district, the board and administration felt that this program should be made available to the students. It was pointed out that controlled portions would be served.

In other action, the board approved the transfer of $12,527.50 from the Old Debt Retirement fund (the high school) to the City National Bank of Detroit to pay principal, interest and fees due Jan. 1, 1975, and the transfer of $32,764 from the New Debt Retirement fund (the Elementary School) to the National Bank of Detroit for the same purpose. This is also due Jan. 1, 1975.

Approved the adoption of the textbook Inquiring into Technology and accompanying databank including audio-visual and other materials for use in seventh grade social studies.

Voted to table fall sports coaching assignments until a later meeting.

Heard reports on assessment scores that have been received and will be turned over to building principals and teachers this week. A full report on the scores will be made at the January meeting: on priorities relating to maintenance services and on a transportation problem on the Pincherry road which is being studied in an attempt to resolve it.

Voted to employ Mervin Van Green, who is on leave from the Twin Valley school system, as a seventh grade social studies teacher and James Wyns as a probationary teacher for social studies and math in the Middle School.

Approved the adoption of the secretarial and the bookkeeping handbooks, compilations of job requirements for both positions.

Max Novak, president of the board, named what he termed an Athletic Committee to take care of any problems that might arise in this department and named Claire C. Martin, Kenneth Boss and himself the the committee.

Novak also spoke briefly on the 45-15 or year-around school program and offered for study information relating the program as it is operated in Monterey, Calif.

The next meeting is scheduled for Jan. 13.

Town House Nips Freedman

By CHUCK WRIGHT

In their first showdown of the year, Town House nipped Freedman's 63-60 to take over sole possession of first place in the A league of men's independent basketball.

Both teams were undefeated entering the contest.

Tenacious defense by both clubs kept it a low scoring affair, but the hot hands of Dave Strawbridge and Spook Coleman carried the Town House to victory. Strawbridge had 11 of his 13 points in the first half, while Coleman had 16 of his 18 points in the second half.

Roger Crain led all scorers with 19, 10 of those coming in a frantic fourth quarter. Denny Crain chipped in 17 while Bernie Ward and Terry Blissett each had 11.

Danny McKenzie added 10 to the Town House offense.

Haggard's won its first game of the year by clubbing winless Coast Guard 60-39. Frank Hacket led Haggards with 17 points while Mike Hamilton had 10. Bob Gustafson and Marty Richardson each had 14 for the Coastics.

Medusa won its battle over Bob's Sunoco 60-56. Medusa's balance overcame the two man efforts of Hud Drenth and Ike Boss who had 22 and 20 points. Bruce Meggison had 19 for Medusa followed by Doug Winnell with 13, Randy DeYoung with 11, and Dave Swanson with 10.

Andy's scored 41 points in the second half to down Jim's Clark 67-60. Stu Cunningham regained his scoring touch to lead the way with 21. Kevin Jonnecheck had 19, Steve Jounachek 13, and Dick Metzger 10. For Andy's, Brian VanLoo had 18 and Steve McClenon contributed 13.

Medusa B upset Russell's Shell 47-44. The loss knocked Russell's out of a first place tie with Charlevoix County State Bank. Charley Borths led the upset with 14 while brother John had 13. Mike Crain had 17 for the losers and Jim Potter had 14.

Charlevoix County State Bank took advantage of Russell's loss by clipping Alray Cottages 39-33. The bankers now have undisputed possession of first place in the Lake Michigan Division of the B league. Ron Senorga led the winners with 12. Carl Swanson and Mike Pearsall each had 12 for the losers.

Kenney's Excavating remained undefeated in the Lake Charlevoix division whipping First State Bank 59-40. Kenney's jumped off to a 16-6 first quarter lead and was never threatened. Jack Danbert led the way with 16. Rick Vanstebum had 13, Terry Devries 12, and Max Baiser 10.

Village Milkhouse scored a last second basket to defeat Wojan's Aluminum 53-51. Wojan's led 39-36 going into the fourth quarter but could not hold on. Dale Boss caught fire for the Milkhouse and rammed home 10 fourth quarter points to lead the dramatic comeback. He had 12 for the night.

Denny Wey led the Milkhouse scoring, however, with 14. Gary Novotny contributed 13. Dean Mikulski led all scorers with 20 while Don Ward had 14 for Wojan's.

John Deere remained a game behind Kenney's with a 40-36 win over Muma's. Dave Meyer dominated the game by scoring 20, exactly half of John Deere's offensive production. Dick Putmen had 14 for Muma's.

them, for which it demands damages of $3,200,000.

Up to the point of writing, Reibel has been acting as his own attorney in this case.

It was learned that on November 27 Federal District Court Judge Noel Fox in Grand Rapids had denied a request by Reibel to enjoin the sheriff's foreclosure sale.

Castle Farms

Reibel had hoped to operate a tavern in conjunction with Castle Farms' activities, last summer, until he ran into difficulties with the State Liquor Control Commission which denied an application for a liquor license on the premises and with the health regulations strictly upheld by the District Three Health Department here.

His "ownership and active operation" of Castle Farm are the basis of two of 14 charges of misconduct in office levelled against him in a formal complaint signed November 21st by John H. Gillis, Chairman and Dennis La Belle, Acting Examiner of the Judicial Tenure Commission of the State of Michigan, headquartered in Detroit.

Trial Master

LaBelle said Monday that Reibels written answer to the charges, which are required by law, had arrived the previous Tuesday, and the State Supreme Court was petitioned to assign a master to preside over a hearing on the complaints the date for which is yet to be set.

The SBA, Edmondson, Charlevoix County State Bank and Wellman have been served with copies of the suit.

But attorneys, both here and in Detroit, are curious about two aspects of the Reibels' suit: 1) that it has been filed in a state court when it should have been filed in a federal court since a federal agency is named as a defendant; and 2) that only Wellman was served with a copy of a temporary restraining order with Circuit Court Judge Martin B. Breighner's name typed at the finish.

An examination of Circuit Court Records Monday showed that Judge Breighner had signed no order in connection with Reibel's suit. Attorneys point out that the restraining order served on Wellman is invalid without Judge Breighner's signature.

Mrs. Reibel was a quiet observer at the Sheriff's foreclosure sale. Her only remark was "I've come to watch the puppets move."

Reibel was seen Wednesday heading out into Lake Michigan at 7 a.m. aboard the tug boat North Shore towing the barge Tanker II.

Reached by telephone on Beaver Island, Reibel told this reporter Wednesday, "You've never been fair to me. I will say what I have to say in court. Thanks for calling," he concluded, hanging up with a bang.

Planners Recommend

The Charlevoix Regional Planning Commission last week recommended to the City Zoning Board that they change the zoning classification of a parcel of land on May Street from C-2 to R-4 to permit the building of some Senior Citizens housing on the property.

They also recommended that the Zoning Board of Appeals be given permission to grant needed variances for the housing.

Glenn Harris and Joe Arvilla appeared before the Planning Commission to submit their plans and request the recommendation.

The housing project, to start with an initial 40 units, would be built near the May and Carpenter Streets intersection.

Frank W. Vaydik, partner in the Economic Development Group of Saginaw which specializes in Senior Citizens housing, also appeared to explain the method of financing, type of construction and probable rentals.

The estimated $500,000 cost would come from a low interest Farmers' Home Administration grant. The facility would be designed especially for older persons, with lower sinks, cabinents and bathroom fixtures for easier access. Rentals would be expected to run about $70 a month for one-bedroom accomodations and $90 for two-bedroom accomodations.

The re-zoning and variances are necessary to permit building 40 units on 1.89 acres of land and to allow for less floor space in each unit.

Harris, Arvilla and Vaydik say they would be able to start building immediately after re-zoning and variances are granted by the City. They also say they would be adding a $200,000 payroll to the area during the slow winter months.

various communities that would be affected.

COURIER: Penn Central apparently has abandoned its stretch of track from Petoskey to Mackinaw City. Are you going to directly intervene in the situation?

RUPPE: I'm not certain what m. action will be. I read that particular story in the Petoskey News-Review last night. I'm certainly going to bring this case to the ICC and find out what alternatives are available to both the community and to my own office.

The Bible is filled with examples of guidance, protection and healing that come through understanding God. It also offers encouragement in words like these: "God is our refuge and strength, a very present help in trouble."

Attend Your Choice This Week

ASSEMBLY OF GOD CHURCH
203 E. Upright Street, Charlevoix
Don Shorsch, Pastor Jim Sorum, Minister of Youth

Activities begin at 10:00 A.M. every Sunday morning with Sunday School classes for all ages. Adults have a choice of two classes. An attended nursery is provided for those too small to attend class.

Worship Service is at 11:00 a.m. The Sunday evening service is at 7:00 and is an informal time of singing and worship followed by a message from the pastor. The first Sunday of each month, communion is a part of this service.

Midweek activities include a youth oriented service under the direction of the minister of youth. Designed to develop Christian character and commitment, it is conducted in a variety of locations including the church fellowship hall, private homes and parks. Prayer and praise services are held Wadnesday evenings. Following a message by the pastor, attention is given to prayer requests.

Once each month the church meets for a time of fellowship. This is to help meet the social needs of the church. Done on an alternating basis, one month is designated for the entire family and the following month as "couples club" night.

WE BELIEVE that the Bible is the inspired Word of God...in the deity of our Lord Jesus Christ...in His virgin birth, in His vicarious and atoneing death, in His bodily resurrection and in His personal future return to the earth in power and glory to rule and reign a thousand years...in regeneration by the Holy Spirit and this being absolutely essential for personal salvation...in the redemptive work of Christ on the cross to provide healing of the human body in answer to believing prayer...the baptism of the Holy Spirit according to Acts 2:4 is given to believers who ask for it...in the sanctifying power of the Holy Spirit by whose indwelling the Christian is enabled to live a holy life.

Guests are always welcome at the Charlevoix Assembly of God and are encouraged to participate in the worship and fellowship of the church.

Do We Need a Counseling Service?

Seventy-Three Divorces Were Granted Last Year

By PEG OHLE

There were 198 marriages performed in Charlevoix County last year and 73 divorces granted. This means that approximately 37 marriages out of every 100 in the county end in divorce.

What is done to save these marriages, and what counseling help is available in the area for those persons who might be reconciled?

Unlike the larger cities, Charlevoix County does not have a marriage counseling service in the Circuit Court and there are not a number of social agencies and organizations to help save a breaking marriage.

Howard Otis, Friend of the Court in Charlevoix County, has the job of interviewing candidates for divorce, doing the paper work, securing a financial report and arranging for child custody. He also tries to determine if a reconciliation is possible.

If he thinks there is a chance, Otis suggests that those seeking a divorce talk with their pastor or priest, and in some cases he refers them to the Mental Health Clinic in Petoskey or the psychology department of the University of Michigan.

Otis says, however, that when the mates are of different faiths counseling by a pastor or priest seldom brings about reconciliation.

No figures are available on how many marriages in the county have been saved by counseling, but there are undoubtedly several.

Wayne County reports that annually approximately 13,000 couples start legal action to terminate their marriages. Of these, approximately 8,300 receive divorce judgments. Simple figuring shows that over 36 percent of those couples filing for divorce change their minds, either through counseling or "second thoughts."

This would seem to indicate that taking advantage of all the marriage counseling services available is a "must" for any couple wanting to save a marriage.

Marriage counselors recognize that filing for divorce is a desperate "cry for help", help with removing the unbearable pain caused by marital problems for which the couples have not found solutions.

In divorces where children are involved it is the children who suffer the most. A two-parent family is preferable when it is emotionally satisfying. Yet there are situations which require disruption of such a family.

Some suggestions made to parents by marriage counselors following a separation or divorce include:

Both mother and father must remember that they are still parents, that they still have responsibilities. These responsibilities include supporting their children, advising and guiding them as they grow up, showing them that they love them even though they are not able to live with them, and demonstrating that parents can have respect and friendship as human beings even though they are unable to live as man and wife.

Divorced parents should allow their children time for readjustment. A convalescence from an emotional operation such as divorce is essential. They should also remember the best parts of their marriage but without living in the past.

They should share some of their feelings with their children and let them share theirs. Attitudes toward one parent and the missing partner make the difference between childrens' good or poor adjustment to the new one-parent situation.

A divorced parent should reassure their children that they are not being rejected, that the other parent still loves them. He or she should also avoid the temptation to turn children against the other parent.

ONE OF Charlevoix's most distinguished citizens, E.D. "Pat" Hawley, will be honored on December 27. The Charlevoix County State Bank President will be retiring after 46 years of banking.

Pat Hawley Retires After 46 Years

Charlevoix Honors Banker

Charlevoix will be rolling out its red carpet next week to honor one of the city's most distinguished citizens–E.D. "Pat" Hawley.

They've even set aside Friday, December 27, to pay tribute to the Charlevoix County State Bank president, who will be retiring after 46 years in banking.

Hawley is known to Charlevoixans not only for his position at the bank, but for the years of public service he has given to the community.

Elected Mayor

He has served in virtually every public service position possible in Charlevoix including even five years as mayor.

Hawley came to Charlevoix in 1937, after being born and raised in Alden, Michigan.

He graduated from Alden High School and later attended Ferris Institute after eventually earning a degree from the University of Wisconsin School of Banking in 1949.

He was associated with the Alden Bank in 1929, when he went to Central Lake to manage the bank for the receiver when it was closed during the "so-called" bank holiday during the depression.

When he moved to Charlevoix in 1936, he served as teller at Charlevoix County State Bank.

Promoted

He was promoted to assistant casher in January, 1937, cashier in January, 1938 and was elected a director in January 1939.

He became president of the bank in September, 1965.

Hawley's contributions to Charlevoix in community service is endless, as well as the hours he has devoted towards better government.

He served as First Ward Alderman, a post he held until he ran for Mayor and held for five terms.

In addition to serving on the city council, he was on the Charlevoix Board of Education for 15 years.

His public service to Charlevoix also included serving on the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce, Charlevoix Department Corporation, as well as still serving on the Charlevoix Jail Building Authority, Group II–Michigan Bankers Group and Michigan Bankers Association Insurance Committee.

Serves Hospital

He is also presently a member of the Charlevoix Hospital Board of Directors and worked actively to raise funds for the present hospital.

With the Charlevoix Kiwanis Club, Hawley has served as both a director and president, in addition to being on the Charlevoix Community Chest.

He has been active with the First Congregational Church, where he was a trustee and treasurer for 35 years before retiring from the position in January, 1973. He is now the church moderator.

Hawley married the former Esther Skagen in 1938 and has two children, Ann (Mrs. Anthony L. Genia) of St. Paul, Minnesota and Thomas Hawley of Imlay City, Michigan.

Dr. Saltoustall

That's just about the time his long-time friend, Dr. G.B. Saltonstall of Charlevoix first met the Charlevoix banker.

"One thing is his kindness to everyone," Dr. Saltonstall said recently about his best friend.

"Everyone has his likes and dislikes, but Pat has always treated everyone fairly."

Dr. Saltonstall said he met Hawley in 1936, when he had come to his office and has maintained a friendship since that time.

Sportsman

"Pat has been a pillar of the First Congregational Church since his arrival," the Charlevoix physician said.

The physician said Hawley is a well coordinated sportsman who likes to sail, golf, and fish.

The Hawleys and Saltonstalls jointly own a sailboat that they have used together for many summers.

"I don't know an enemy in the city or area.

"He's just a wonderful guy."

Three More Dairymen Hit by PBB Poisoning

By PEG OHLE

Three more dairy farmers in the area are facing possible loss of their cattle because of P.B.B. contamination, the Courier learned last week.

The Paul Burks of South Arm Township, the Louis Vannimans of Ellsworth and the Carl Conants of Central Lake have all had their animals quarenteed because of the problem

P.B.B. is poly-brominated bi-phenyl, a poisonous substance used in making fire retardants which was mistaken for a food supplement and mixed with an animal feed distributed to Michigan farmers by Michigan Farm Bureau Services, Inc.

Paul Burks told the Courier that he has 120 dairy cattle and calves. Two biopsies showed a contamination rate of 1.2 parts per million, considerably above the three-tenths part in a million set as a safe level by the Michigan Department of Agriculture.

However, Burks' milk tested only .23 parts per million. Burks said he is not drinking the milk himself although he is permitted to sell it. Before knowing whether or not his herd must be destroyed, five more biopsies will be made on the Burks cattle.

"It's been an expensive proposition," Burks said, "we have lost all our calves since October first."

The 33 cattle herd of the Vannimans tested out at .297 in the meat and .44 in the milk in the first biopsiea taken in October. They, also, will have to have further tests.

"It's such a slow process," Mrs. Vanniman said. "The East Jordan Co-op (where they bought the contaminated feed) has been helpful. They even sent a man to Lansing for us to get forms to fill out."

Mrs. Vanniman is concerned because her family drank the milk for seven or eight months before they knew it was contaminated.

Mr. and Mrs. Conant operate their dairy farm with son Michael and his wife. Their herd consists of 114 cows, calves, bred heifers and yearlings. They have spent 39 years in dairy farming and have long been active in Farm Bureau activities.

The Conant herd was quarantineed November 8,

He said he was not sure what he will do if all of his 120 cattle have to be killed.

Courier Designated 'Blue Ribbon' Paper

WASHINGTON, D.C.–The Charlevoix Courier has been designated a "National Blue Ribbon Newspaper" for 1975 by the National Editorial Foundation, Washington, D.C.

In announcing the designation, Foundation President Paul D. Coffman, newspaper publisher from Melrose Park, Illinois noted that the Courier was one of 306 newspapers to achieve this designation in a nationwide program out of 400 newspapers submitted for evaluation.

The Courier scored 251 out of 260 possible points.

Twenty-five criteria, measuring the newspaper's service to its community against a national standard, were employed in the evaluation.

Publishers whose newspapers are recognized for their over-all excellence, or who had previously been accorded the Foundation's Blue Ribbon designation, participated in the judging.

Overall, larger circulation newspapers fared better than smaller ones, and dailies were more successful than weeklies percentage-wise, although many more weeklies participated.

While only 63.8 percent of weeklies of up to 2,500 circulation received Blue Ribbons, 99 percent of those with circulation in excess of 20,000 received the coveted designation. Of weeklies with 2,501-5,000 circulation, 71.3 percent received the Blue Ribbon and 93.3 percent of those between 5,000 and 7,500 were awarded the designation.

In the daily field, 60 percent of those with circulation between 2,500 and 5,000 were successful as were 75 percent of those between 5,000 and 7,500. The percentages dropped, however, for dailies between 7,500 and 10,000 to 57.9 percent, zoomed to 100 percent for dailies between 10,000 and 20,000 and dropped again to 69.3 percent for dailies over 20,000 circulation.

Although many former Blue Ribbon newspapers achieved the designation again, some former standard bearers did not measure up this year. Coffman, NEF president, attributed this to the overall improved quality of participating newspapers, and said the judges may be getting more critical.

Coffman said that "the advent of offset, the use of illustrative material and the opening up of the news columns make newspapers more attractive to the reader and more appealing to the eye. The reproduction of half-tones and the quality of make-up and presswork is vastly improved and continues to show improvement each year."

He added, "the one outstanding feature of most of the Blue Ribbon newspapers is the development of the editorial page. Many newspapers not only feature an attractive editorial page offering good comment on local issues, but often offer editorial cartoons to highlight the page.

The public opinion forum offered through the 'Letters to the Editor' also shows that many newspapers are getting input from their readers which demonstrates their concern for the local communities they serve."

The National Editorial Foundation, established in 1957, is dedicated to the improvement of Journalism and Journalism Education. It has conducted the annual Blue Ribbon Newspaper Evaluation program since 1969.

Senior Housing Nears Approval

Housing for senior citizens came closer to reality Monday night after Charlevoix City Council partially cleared the way for a proposed low-cost housing project.

However, the 40-unit project did draw some criticism from City Councilman Ralph McRae.

During a public hearing, council agreed to rezone the housing project property, located on May Street behind the Holiday Service Station, from Commercial-2 to Residential-4.

In addition, the city council amended the present R-4 zoning classification to allow for federally subsidized senior citizen housing in that zoned district.

But, before going any further with considering variances for reducing parking areas, housing density and side and front-yard variances, the council sent the project back to the Charlevoix Regional Planning Commission for further study.

Councilman McRae questioned whether or not Developers Joe Arvilla and Glen Harris, both of Charlevoix, would be able to get a loan from the Farmers Home Administration.

A committee consisting of Mrs. Robert Timms, Mrs. Ray Wood and Mrs. Robert Wexstaff will judge the decorations Saturday.

The mitten tree in the lobby of the First State Bank is decorated with mittens donated by local persons, but it could use some more. The tree was set up by the Woman's Club of Charlevoix and the mittens collected will be given to children in the Charlevoix Elementary and St. Mary's schools.

This Friday there will be a Christmas party at the First State Bank, complete with candy, apples and Santa Claus. There will also be a drawing for a 10-speed bicycle. All persons joining the Christmas Club at the bank are eligible for the bicycle drawing.

The Charlevoix Courier and radio station WVOY will sponsor a Carol-In next Monday evening at 7 o'clock in East Park. Loud speakers will be installed to carry the music throughout the business district.

Tim Moore of the radio station will act as master of ceremonies and Marina LaBlance, Charlevoix Elementary music teacher, will lead the caroling.

The Courier and WVOY will also sponsor a Christmas card drawing that evening. The prize will be cross country skis

Army Engineers Hold Hearing

Residents Consider Deepening Pine Channel

By SARA GAY DAMMAN

The City of Charlevoix and the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers are looking for volunteers to help in a study, preparatory to the deepening of the Pine River Channel, it was revealed at a "workshop" last Tuesday night.

The question of deepening the channel was the focus of the workshop, called by the Corps of Engineers and attended by about 35 Charlevoixans.

The need for someone to study the wave and current action in the channel was raised in connection with problems caused by the new steel revetments along the channel. Ross Kittleman, Chief of the Corps, Grand Haven Office, and City Administrator, Robert Wexstaff, stated they are searching for either a concerned individual or group, such as a high school class, who would work with the City and Corps in detailing such data as wave heights, storm actions and current strengths.

The Army Corps of Engineers called the workshop in the Community Room of the City Hall, to present their recommendations and listen to questions and opinions on their proposal to increase the Pine River Channel's depths to a consistant 23 feet, from the present depth of 18 feet in shallow areas.

The rationale for the deepening of the channel, as presented by the Corps and supported by Hodgkiss and Douma, Inc., Northern Michigan Electric Cooperative and the Charlevoix County Road Commission representatives, is that benefits of the deepening will outweigh the costs by a 1.7 to 1 ratio. In other words, the local industries would save approximately $1.70 in freight costs for every tax dollar spent on the project.

On an annual basis the project will cost $44,900 dollars," according to George Platz, Project Manager for the Corps, major spokesman at the workshop.

"We expect a $76,600 annual benefit to local industry, which we assume would be passed on to the people," he said.

These figures, Platz explained are based on freight rates. At the present time, freighters of more than 550 feet length cannot carry full loads of coal through the channel, for instance, to Northern Michigan Electric Coop's power plant in Advance, because the channel is too shallow.

A spokesman for the elctric coop stated, "That means $125,000 difference to us, yearly."

Proponents of the deepening said, that the freight charges for a freighter fully loaded, "or carrying one tea cup, are the same."

Spokesmen for the County Road Commission and Hodgkiss and Douma made similar points.

The Corps proposal is to dredge the channel to the uniform depth of 23 feet and to replace the stone riprap bank, in front of Charlevoix Lumber Co., with a gabion bank. (A gabion bank or revetment is stone filled wire baskets.).

Several letters raising questions about the proposal were read into the Corps' record. The Belvedere Club and Chicago Club brought up the potential erosion on Park Island from more dredging. Charlevoix County Road Commission submitted a supporting letter for the project.

Other questions raised, included concern for the bank in front of the Charlevoix Lumber Co., by E. James Hiller, President of the company. Hiller's concerns are that gabions are not suitable revetment material for a steep bank and therefore the Corps would be requesting more property from the

County Employees Get 7% Pay Hike

A 1975 salary schedule for elected and appointed officials, department heads and other employees was adopted by the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners at its regular meeting last week.

Most employees were granted wage increases amounting to approximately seven percent over last year. However, the Commissioners did not increase their own salaries or the supplements given to the Circuit, District and Probate judges.

The number of legal holidays observed by county employees was increased from seven to ten with the addition of Lincoln's birthday, Washington's birthday and Columbus day. They also will have all national and state general election days off.

County employees receive fully paid Blue Cross and Blue Shield benefits for themselves and families, one day per month sick leave and paid vacations ranging from five working days after one year's employment to a maximum of 30 working days after 30 or more years' employment.

Township People Ask About Merger

Upset with Charlevoix Township's no merger position with Charlevoix Township, several township residents are circulating petitions asking the township board to reconsider its position.

Last week, township residents unanimously adopted a resolution stating that they did not want to merge with the City of Charlevoix.

However, John Haggard along with several others say the township board give not residents enough opportunity to examine the advantages and disadvantages of the two units joining together.

The petition states that the townships residents want the board to hold a special meeting to reconsider its decision.

"No one wants to commit themselves," Haggard said. "Even the people who signed the petition are not for the merger, but they are willing to sit down and see what the facts are."

Haggard said those who have petitions include himself, Dick Martin, Bill Supernaw, Tom LaBlance, and Jim Withers.

Northern Michigan Businessmen Form Group To Prevent Possible Federal Rail Abandonment

KALKASKA—A last ditch effort to save Northern Michigan's railroads from the clutches of proposed federal abandonment started last week in Kalkaska.

Some 35 Northern Michigan businessmen formed the Northern Michigan Railroad Users Association and vowed to promote progressive passenger and freight service to the north.

Its chief target now is to save some 25 miles trackage between Petoskey and Mackinaw City that was mysteriously abandoned by Penn Central Railroad several weeks ago.

Railroad traffic now is being rerouted hundreds of miles from Petoskey by way of Bay City to go to Mackinaw City with some loads taking several weeks to make its destination.

BILL BAILEY discussed Michigan's Rail Use Study Plans.

Bill Bailey, manager of the rail planning section of the Michigan Department of Highways and Transportation, told the organization they could expect to see the state rail use study before Christmas.

He said the report could be used to help the state in establishing a policy for rails, but would not designate specific tracks.

"We are going to make funding recommendations," he said.

"But, unfortunately the report is not going to answer all the questions."

He said as far as he knew it was the first attempt by a state in this nation to look at its rail service.

Bailey said hearings on the report would be held in five locations a month after it is released.

Bailey's announced intentions to release the study to the United States Railroad Association before the public hearings in Michigan drew sharp criticism from Mike Davidson, public counsel from the Rail Service Planning Office.

Davidson said the state should give a chance for its residents to comment on the plan before the federal agency sees it and then designate routes from Michigan from the report.

Bailey contended that the state would still have another opportunity to influence final designation of railroad routes in the state.

Davidson briefly explained the Rail Reorganization Act of 1973 that includes provisions that would virtually eliminate 51 percent of Michigan's rail service.

New Law Hampers Probate Courts

A new state law is making it difficult for courts to commit mentally ill patients to institutions.

Reporting to the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners last week, Probate Judge John Murphy said that before such commitments can now be made it must be proven that a person will put himself or others in danger.

The new law became effective last August following a decision finding an earlier law unconstitutional.

The problem now facing the county, according to Murphy, is what to do with persons who are obviously mentally ill and need treatment but who cannot be found "dangerous."

"Somebody must look into the availability of rooms in Grandvue Medical Care Facility or local hospitals for such persons," he said.

Murphy also commented that Circuit Court will have to think twice about rendering "not guilty by reason of insanity" verdicts.

The earlier law was found unconstitutional in suits brought by Mental Health groups and the Civil Liberties Union, contending that mentally ill persons are better off if taken care of in their own communities.

The county's bill for patient care in mental institutions will now be less. Heretofore, the county paid for the first 365 days of care, with the state taking over payments after that.

Now, the county will pay only 10 percent of the cost for as long as a person is hospitalized. It costs approximately $44 dollars a day to keep a person in a state mental hospital and the average stay is less than nine months.

Local Senior Citizens Served 400 Meals

Senior Citizens in Charlevoix County were served 392 meals during November through the nutrition program of the Commission on Aging.

Meals are served two days a week in Charlevoix, two days a week in Boyne City and one day a week in East Jordan.

In Charlevoix, the meals are served Mondays and Thursdays at 1:30 in the high school cafeteria.

Anyone 60 years of age or older, or whose spouse is in that age bracket, is eligible to participate in the program. There is no other requisite.

Cost of the meals is subsidized under the Older Americans Act. There is no set price but a free will offering is asked if the diner wishes to give one. Last month voluntary offerings averaged approximately 47 cents per person per meal served.

E.D. 'Pat' Hawley-- A Special Citizen

E.D. 'Pat' Hawley, one of Charlevoix's most distinguished citizens, will be honored next week with a special day of recognition.

The tribute hardly seems enough to thank a Charlevoix resident who has so unselfishly served his community in every possible way a citizen can.

Mr. Hawley will be stepping down from his position as President of the Charlevoix County State Bank and retiring after more than 46 years in banking.

However, his contributions to banking will not go unnoticed for many years to come.

His nearly 10-years tenure as bank president has brought more towards creating a warm and friendly bank image than perhaps anything else that has been done.

He has unselfishly contributed many hours to making Charlevoix a community that everyone would like to live in.

Mr. Hawley has served virtually every public position possible including five years as Mayor.

But more than any contribution he has made, we feel his most important asset has been the living demonstration of what it means to be a good citizen.

A close friend says it has been his kindness to everyone.

We agree and wish him the best retirement possible.

And while we could never repay him for all the work he has done for us, we want to express our gratitude for his contributions.

The Oleson Food Ad: Bright Holiday News

Some of the best financial news we have heard in weeks comes not from the pages of the Wall Street Journal or from the slick hand-outs of government propagandists.

Instead it appeared in the Oleson Food Store advertisement in the Charlevoix Courier last week.

In addition to listing current sale prices, the ad pointed out what the same items would have cost last year, or as recently as last April in some cases.

Hamburger, for example, sold for 69 cents a pound in three pound packages -- 50 cents a pound cheaper than last April.

The lowly navy bean--the mainstay of many a diet in lean times -- had dropped from $2.89 to 89 cents for a four-pound bag in only eight months.

Macaroni -- another budget stretcher -- was selling for 57 cents for a two-pound bag, down 30 cents from last April.

And you could buy three pounds of coffee for $2.59 -- a savings of 80 cents compared to last year.

The Oleson ad is a good indication that the cancerous inflation that has decimated spendable income the country over for more than a year may be drawing to a close.

We want to thank our local grocers for letting their customers share in the price reductions.

We are particularly grateful that Oleson's Food Store took the trouble to run the comparative prices in last week's ad. The news provided a bright spot in an otherwise somber holiday season. (B.C.)

Travelers Miss Out On Charlevoix's Christmas

There is always a note of sadness at Christmas knowing that so many of our "summer people" and part time residents won't have a chance to see Charlevoix dressed up in her holiday finery.

This year the street decoration are particularly attractive because the city fathers have turned off the big mercury vapor lights on downtown Bridge-st. as an energy conservation measure.

Little colored Christmas lights draped from every lamp pole shine all the brighter in the comparative darkness.

Coupled with a blanket of snow in East Park and illumination from the many downtown shops which are staying open late before Christmas, Bridge-st. has assumed a bright, holiday atmosphere---something that was sorely missed during the worst of the energy crisis last year.

We are only sorry so many of our wandering townspeople won't be home to enjoy Christmas in Charlevoix with with us. (B.C.)

Clockwise

By BOB CLOCK

As the year winds down into short days and long nights, I suffer an irresistable temptation to look ahead to the New Year and ponder how it will stack up in comparison with the 12 months just ending.

Certainly the year 1974 will loom large in all of the history books for centuries to come.

What other year has seen such skulduggery in high office come to full blossom as it did in 1974? Will any other year see the President of the United States fall from the pinnacle because of his misdeeds?

The year 1974 also will go on record as the time when the American economy—already shaken by political scandal—went wild. We can't blame all of our economic problems on Mr. Nixon, since the entire world is suffering from the same malaise, but we might have been better able to withstand inflationary and recessionary pressures if we had strong moral leadership in Washington.

But we didn't, and for many months now dog-eat-dog economics has replaced supply and demand as the underlying principle of economic domestic policy.

Although there are signs that inflation is beginning to ease in some areas–particularly food–the spectre of another round of price increases haunts us night and day.

But 1974 has not been without its blessings.

It was the first full year in more than a decade that the United States wasn't squandering the lives of its young men in foreign wars.

Although the Arabs and the Jews have been at swords' points all year, their skirmishes in 1974 have fallen short of all-out warfare.

As much as we can hope it never happens again, we can be grateful that the American system has been strong enough to sustain the shock we suffered at the hands of Richard Nixon. It makes you feel good to know we live in a land governed by laws, not men. The agonies that accompanied Nixon's fall could well have toppled a less stable government.

What can we look forward to in 1975? Most of the experts agree that the current recession should "Bottom out" by next summer and start moving slowly upward. No one pretends to know when we will reach a state of full recovery—but the promise is ever before us, like a rabbit at a dog race.

Unfortunately, I am less optimistic than the experts. For years there has been a growing imbalance between the salaries of unionized and the non-unionized workers in our society. Today the imbalance has reached a point where, barring massive technological advances to reduce production costs, non-union workers cannot afford union-made products. And unhappily, America's unionized workers depend mightily on non-unionized customers to keep their jobs. I see no hope for economic improvement until the wage gap between the two groups is narrowed.

If you work in a non-unionized industry in Charlevoix and are able to buy a new car this year, please raise your hand.

The experts also are predicting war in the Middle East by spring, cutting off our supply of Arabian oil and necessitating stringent fuel rationing and high taxes on petroleum products.

Although I see no hope of resolving the impasse between the Arabs and Jews in my lifetime, I do not think the Arabs are about to endanger their petrodollar bonanza by engaging in fisticuffs with their neighbors. They are doing too well to rock the boat.

Certainly Israel would be ill-advised to start another war, knowing full-well that the United States is too busy keeping body and soul together at home to help her clobber the Arabs. The United States would do well to avoid altercations of any kind with other nations until we can fill our domestic and military fuel needs without imports.

In general, I see 1975 as another fireside year for most Americans. We'll stay closer to home because of high fuel costs. We'll probably eat better because the wrong food cost too much. Our vacations will be simpler and less arduous. We'll read more, look for satisfaction in less sophisticated amusements–and probably have one heckuva fine year.

Local Citizen Commends Clock

December 13, 1974

Dear Sir:

I would like to publicly commend Bob Clock for his column of December 10. One would expect ministers to say those things, but coming from a layman, they have a greater impact. Thank you, Bob.

Fun With Percentages

By George Hagedorn
NAM Vice President
And Chief Economist

TREASURY Secretary Simon, in a speech on Oct. 31, called attention to the discrepancy between the fall in farm prices during the past year and the rise in retail prices of food during the same period. He seemed to feel that this was at least prima facie evidence of economic misbehavior on the part of the "middleman" the processor, wholesaler, retailer, trucker, etc. who stand between the farmer and the consumer.

Secretary Simon's evidence was mainly in the form of two simple percentages. He reports that he is greatly concerned that: "farm prices have declined 9 per cent, while consumer prices for food have gone up 6 per cent."

The secretary clearly believes that the contrast between these two percentages is highly significant. He comments that the increase in food prices is "totally inconsistent with the direction of farm prices." He doesn't hesitate to suggest that there must be a villain in the piece, adding—"with times as difficult as they are, we cannot permit one segment of the economy to reap unjust enrichment at the expense of everyone else"

We wouldn't have been so much concerned with the secretary's comments on this score, based so largely on the contrast between two percentages, except that this is the sort of thing that is bound to attract wide attention. In fact it did so quite promptly. Although this was only one small part of a speech dealing with economic policy generally, the next day it absorbed most of the attention in the newspaper reports on the secretary's remarks.

We expect to see Secretary Simon's two contrasting percentages widely quoted in political speeches. They have the advantage of simplicity, a beguiling appearance of factual solidity and the convenient implication of casting the blame for high food prices on that all-purpose whipping-boy, the middleman. Farmers and consumers are, by political definition, good people but the processors, wholesalers and retailers can be blamed for anything without fear of losing any substantial bloc of votes.

We also expect to hear Secretary Simon's two percentages the 9 per cent fall in farm prices and the 6 per cept rise in consumer prices widely quoted by the type of eager-beaver crusader who buttonholes you on social occasions to deliver a lecture on the evils of our business oriented society. This breed has two identifying characteristics in their style of argument: their favorite word is "rip-off", and they have a remarkable taste for, and memory for, percentages.

This time we decided to look a little more closely at the two percentages in the Simon speech 9 per cent drop in farm prices, 6 per cent rise in consumer food prices. Although we can't make these figures jibe precisely with those we have been watching, they come close enough so that we have no serious quarrel with their arithmetical accuracy. But when you look at the economic background, any implication that the figures demonstrate, or even suggest, misbehavior by the middleman disappears.

The latest official price figures available at the time of the secretary's speech were for September 1974. Sure enough, the price of farm products fell by 9 per cent between September 1973 and September 1974. The price of food for home consumption, by the official figures, rose by 11 per cent over the same period. Although this isn't quite the same as the figure quoted by the secretary, the discrepancy could arise for legitimate reasons, and is not large enough to bother us.

But anyone who has thoughtfully observed the recent great inflation of food prices knows that the period September 1973 to September 1974 is not the critical period to look at. The explosive rise in farm prices began in the second half of 1972, and had spent its force a year later. This suggests that, in a statistical study of developments in that area, we should look at the last two years. The following table summarizes the results:

Percent Changes	Wholesale Price Farm Products	Consumer Price Food at Home
Sept. 1972-Sept. 1973	+56%	+22%
Sept. 1973-Sept. 1974	−9%	+11%
Sept. 1972-Sept. 1974	+42%	+35%

What happened was that, in the first year of the food inflation, farm prices rose so steeply that retail food prices fell far behind. (We don't remember anyone quoting those figures last year in a plea for sympathy for the squeezed middleman.) The following year, some of the discrepancy was eliminated as retail prices continued to rise while farm prices fell somewhat from their peaks. For the two years taken together, the increase in farm prices is still well ahead of the increase in consumer food prices.

The table we have given is not in itself a profound piece of economic analysis. We wouldn't argue, on this basis, that there has been a "rip-off" in the reverse direction from that suggested by Secretary Simon. But the two-year comparison does help to clear away the sinister implications that might seem, on hasty inspection, to lie in the two percentages quoted in the secretary's speech.

If it Fitz — President Ford Calling

By JIM FITZGERALD

It has been revealed that President Ford reads from a ghost-written script when he phones congratulatory messages to quarterbacks and our national monuments.

However, it has been denied that he speaks while sitting upon the knee of presidential aid Warren Rustand. And those are not puppet strings attached to Ford's sleeves. Those are the strings to which his wife attaches his mittens at the first sign of snow.

There is something called the "Presidential Telephone Call Recommendation Program." Cabinet members are urged to suggest who the President might call and what he might say after "hello."

Rustand relays the recommendations to the President, along with a memo telling him when to call and what to say. The actual dialing is done by the Secretary of Commerce, pending congressional approval of Nelson Rockefeller's nomination.

Recent Ford calls went to Al Kaline for getting his 3,000th basehit, to Frank Robinson for becoming major league baseball's first black manager, and to Simon Gourdine for being named deputy commissioner of the National Basketball Association.

The call to Gourdine indicates a grassroots trend. You probably never heard of him. Why would the deputy commissioner of anything rate a phone call from the world's most important man? The answer is that President Ford is liable to phone anyone.

According to Rustand, the purpose of the phone calls is "to identify the president with different and worthy programs and events." Translated, this means Ford wants to keep his job and he wants your vote.

If you are an Al Kaline fan, you might vote for Ford because he phoned Al in the lockerroom and said sweaty words. That's a valid idea. But why not eliminate the middleman? Why not phone the fan's home direct and congratulate whoever answers?

Naturally, there has been a reason for the call. But that's easy. Every person everyday achieves something for which he deserves being congratulated.

For instance, I wouldn't mind hearing from Ford about that snowbank in my driveway that I rammed my car through yesterday. A lesser man would have shoveled it but I haven't held a shovel in 20 years. And I don't even have snowtires - only steely determination. There is a champion in every home and a vote in every champion.

President Ford is realizing this. It remains now only for Rustand to expand his Presidential Telephone Call Recommendation Program to cover the entire nation.

You suggest me and I'll suggest you.

I just hope Ford doesn't phone before I have my answer scripted. After he congratulates me, I think I'll read something like:

"Thank-you-Jerry. And-I-would-like-to-congratulate-you-for-always-keeping-your-football-helmet-on."

And he might depart from his script to say: "What? I can't hear you with this football helmet on."

Meet Charlevoix

Coach Toni Felter

Toni Felter was coach of the Charlevoix High School girls' basketball team which this year had a 19 to 1 record. Besides coaching basketball, Toni teaches in the Middle School and is assistant athletic director there.

Toni is a graduate of Central Michigan University with a major in physical education. This is her fifth year in Charlevoix.

COURIER: How many games did you win this year before losing to Gladwin in the finals of the Regional Tournament?

FELTER: We won 19 games in a row.

COURIER: How did it feel to lose that game?

FELTER: It was disappointing, but not as disappointing as last year. We lost to a good team.

COURIER: How did the girls take the loss?

FELTER: They handled themselves very well. They knew they had given their all.

COURIER: How many girls participated in the basketball program?

FELTER: I coach both varsity and J.V., so with both teams we had 29 girls playing ball, three managers and a traveling score keeper.

COURIER: Do the girls participate in other athletic events?

FELTER: We have a well rounded sports program at the school. We have two winter sports, volley ball and skiing. Then there is track, in the spring.

COURIER: Do the same girls participate in all sports?

FELTER: There is a large carry-over. It's like men's sports where there are three-letter men.

COURIER: How many girls are in the school sports program?

FELTER: At least 75–that may be a low estimate. A lot of girls are still slow in coming out.

COURIER: Do you think girls' athletics should get as much support as boys' athletics?

FELTER: They should, but in most areas they don't, either momentarily or time wise. It's awfully hard to arrange the time equally but that will come. However, I can't complain because this year I've had the gym an extra two weeks.

COURIER: What advantages do girls who participate in sports receive?

FELTER: I think whether it's girls or guys, one of the main things is being able to work with other people. They learn a great deal of self-control. They also develop a fellowship with other players in the league. It's great to be able to play a team and then be able to sit down and talk with them. Also, the way I try to coach they learn a lot about sportsmanship, that it's the way you play the game that matters, not whether you win or lose.

COURIER: Do you think that participating in sports takes away from a girl's feminity?

FELTER: I don't think it has to. We have had some very feminine girls on our teams–A Venetian queen and members of the court. You are what you are whether you play basketball or not.

COURIER: How did the boys in high school take your winning season?

FELTER: I believe many of them were pleased we could go so far. For a while some of them seemed to think we were trying to show them up. My answer to them was that we play for the same reason they do, because we like the sport.

COURIER: How does the girls' game differ from the boys' game?

FELTER: Rulewise, it doesn't. I would say that most teams employ the same philosophies, although we may not be as accurate and fast as the boys. In fact, most of the clinics I've gone to have been sponsored for boys' basketball teams. What's good for one is good for the other.

COURIER: Do girls who participate in sports in high school usually carry on in college?

FELTER: I have two hopefuls in college this year. But until the colleges catch up with us and have more girls' teams there isn't much opportunity.

COURIER: Who referees the girls' basketball games?

FELTER: We have had all men officials, those who referee the boys' games. However, there are a couple of women referees in the area and I hope we can get more.

COURIER: How many girls on this year's team will be back next year and what do you think your chances for a top team will be?

FELTER: We will have six returning from the varsity team and as many as ten moving up from the J.V. With losing experienced players, it's going to take some hard practice to bring us back to the level where we are now. But it can be done.

DR. DAVID ROEBUCK shows the X-Ray equipment used at the Charlevoix Area Hospital to detect breast cancer.

Charlevoix Area Hospital Offers Mammography

Charlevoix residents nervous over possibly having breast cancer after recent wide-spread attention have a new detection method available to them.

The Charlevoix Area Hospital's Department of Radiology under the direction of Dr. David M. Roebuck, has made modifications to its present radiology equipment so they can provide better service to local residents.

National figures indicate that breast cancer claims at least one or two out of every 100 adult females.

It is estimated that four to five women, over the age of 45 years, out of every 1000 women which now have no signs of breast disease already has cancer of the breast.

Although annual physical examination and self-examination of the breast are recommended, over 50 per cent of the women found to have breast cancer by physical examination or feeling have already have the cancer spread to the lymph glands under the arms.

Dr. David M. Roebuck of Charlevoix said mammography seeks to see what the doctor feels or seeks to see what the doctor's hand misses or even misinterprets.

"While the two examinations do complement one another, the properly interpreted mammogram is the more accurate of the two examinations, " he said.

He said the chief aim is to discover cancer in its earliest stage.

Confirming a lesion or lump on that physical examination is an obvious surgical disease, is not the primary role of mammography.

"Mammography provides a permanent record of breast disease which is useful for future comparison studies," he said.

Dr. Roebuck said he feels that the only patient who would not benefit from or need mammography is the patient with an inoperable, incurable cancer.

He said mammography'a chief reward lies in the search for the 8.0 to 12.0 mm(1/3 to 1/2 inch) breast cancer hidden, not suspected, and not feelable, that is still intact without spread and probably curable.

Fisherman's Island Park

DNR Holds Second Hearing

By FRAN MARTIN

A second hearing relating to the development of the proposed Fisherman's Island State Park was held Tuesday by the Department of Natural Resources and drew little opposition

The State Legislature has made funds available to purchase the Fisherman's Island tract which includes the four-acre island a short distance off-shore just south of Charlevoix.

The state presently owns 1,814 acres including the Bell's Bay area and the acreage at Norwood and proposed to acquire the Fisherman's Island tract plus other acreage as it becomes available on the eastern edge of the Clipperview subdivision and the areas north and south of Clipperview to give access to the two areas without crossing Clipperview property.

This would bring the total acreage to 3,434 acres for use as a low density park.

Access would be via roads to the north and south branching off the present access road from US 31 to Clipperview.

This road would allow visitors to travel approximately 2½ miles to the park center on the eastern edge of the Fisherman's Island tract where there would be a visitors' center, major day-use picnic areas, - park headquarters and service area. Parking for 75 cars will be provided at this point. All trails also will originate here.

Three types of camping would be provided; rustic environment with 100 sites on the north or Bell's Bay area; primitive walk-in, 30 sites, and one four-unit organizational campground for large groups.

There would be a day-use beach and unstructured swimming and beach combing would be encouraged in this area where a 100-car parking lot with change court and picnic areas would be located well away from the fine sand beach.

The servce area would include the maintenance office, shop, garage and park manager's residence.

The land to the south will be recommended as a "wild area" and proposed for dedication under the Wilderness and Natural Areas Act of 1972.

The proposed capacity would be 1,100 at capacity limit but most of the year it would be considerable less.

Hunting will continue to be allowed on an annual basis depending on trends and park needs.

The estimated cost and implementation is $3.0 to $5.0 million over a 10 year period.

"With the economy the way it is, it may be longer than that before the plans can be implemented," a DNR official said.

The meeting was then thrown open to questions. Rod Richardson wanted to know about snowmobiles and was advised that would be assessed on an annual basis; that chances are there will have to be some compromises made.

Roger Sheppard asked what protection Clipperview residents would have. He was told that this would be done by boundaries marked by signs and, if need be, some fences though the DNR does not like to resort to this. Orderly development and ample parking should take care of this, he was advised.

Bruce Bergmann wanted to know about horses and was told that bridal paths could be planned for the southern area but back from the beaches.

Herbert Lietz who lives in the area said he didn't think that the expenditures of this amount of money was justified.

Mrs. Thomas Loudenslager said she thought the owners of the Fisherman's Island tract were taking advantage of the DNR...that they are unloading the property on the state because they can't use it.

She also wanted to know if, at some future date, the park would be expanded and was advised that at this time the answer is "no, but if it should be a hearing would be held before it was. She then said that perhaps the state would condemn land in order to acquire it and was advised that the DNR seldom condemns land; that about the only time it does is to clear up a title. She then said "Are we going to be here tomorrow or are we going to be kicked out?" She referred several times to the proposed National park which was abandoned.

She also wanted to know why people weren't made aware that a park was being planned for the area.

She was advised that the park had been in the planning stages for 30 years; that the project had been given publicity through the years in the news media and that area residents had worked for several years with the DNR to get to this point.

James Novotny brought attention to a road that had been through the property years ago and suggested it be developed.

Michigan State Police Provide Local Assistance

MICHIGAN STATE POLICE were organized to give assistance to local police agencies.

By SHERRY MARTIN

MSP is the abbreviation for the Michigan State Police, one of the most modern and efficient law enforcement agencies going.

This agency was created during World War I when the National Guard was called up for foreign service and left the state without any reserve force to protect internal security.

At first, it was simply State Troops for home defense. But in 1919 the legislature reorganized the troops as the Michigan State Police, in response to popular demand.

The Michigan State Police are empowered with general police authority.

This provides a wider range of services available to the public from the organization.

State Troopers are not merely present to patrol the highways, says Lt. David Leik at the Petoskey State Police Post.

They are equipped to handle anything from family disturbances to major crimes such as bank robberies or murder cases.

The department is broken down into divisions of manpower, each with it's own basic responsibilities.

A general breakdown starting with Colonel George Halverson in Lansing would be: 3 Lieutenant Colonels and 2 Majors, each of whom heads up various related departments.

There are also Captains, one supervising each of the 8 districts and other programs. Each post has a post commander, or Lieutenant.

Petoskey Post No. 78 employs a total of 18 men: 12 troopers, one detective Sgt and four sergeants.

The troopers man the patrol cars and handle highway patrol and criminal complaints. When there is a particularly serious criminal complaint, the detective Sergeant assists in handling the case.

The Sergeants, who Lt. Leik described as being the clearinghouse for all Post activity, because they answer the phones handle walk-in complaints. (Lt. Leik mentioned that the Petoskey Post has a large amount of walk-in complaints) and operate the Lein instrument.

This impressive machine is the Law Enforcement Information Network and retains all information from any police dept. in the State and is also connected to the National Crime Information Center (N.C.I.C.) operated by the F.B.I. in Washington, D.C., the Michigan Dept. of State, and the Ohio State Highway Patrol Center.

This system offers information retrieval within 30 seconds for almost anything necessary to know about anyone, regarding vehicle registrations, drivers license, etc.

As of December 29th, State Trooper starting pay will be $10,753.20. The State Police is a selective organization and one can enter only after 1. Passing age, height, and weight requirements. 2. Demonstrating physical ability (a) 6 chin ups (b) 12 push-ups (c) 6 foot broad jump from a standing still position. and 3. Passing a Civil Service Exam.

Then a rigid background history of the applicant is taken.

Once this information is compiled and the background history satisfactory, a difficult part is yet to come - Recruit School.

This involves an intensive course of instruction and demanding physical training.

After Recruit School a trooper is given a probationary appointment for 12 months and is assigned to a senior officer to receive training in the field.

When this period is completed, and his record for the first year is satisfactory, the trooper is then confirmed in his appointment. Michigan residents can indeed be proud, and feel secure in the State Police.

Any organization with such high expectations of it's men, and with a record of expansive public service, can only be one of the best in the nation.

You Can Help Give Students A Lift

Need a Lift?

The Leslie T. Shapton Post No. 226, American Legion, believes students seeking financial assistance to attend college need just that, a lift, so have purchased copies of a paperback book entitled "Need a Lift?".

The book, which offers information regarding scholarships, grants and loans, will be given to the Charlevoix high school for use in the library and by counselors and to the Charlevoix public library according to Max Novak, chairman of the education committee of the American Legion.

Believing that an investment in education pays good dividends, information regarding the many educational opportunities available through many industries have been compiled in this book.

The scholarships, grants and loans listed are available to sons and daughters of both veterans and non-veterans.

"Countless sources of assistance are available that most people have never heard about," he said.

The use of this book offers this information.

If one student can be helped, the investment in the books will be worthwhile."

Novak said the books are for reference material for not only college-hound but vocationally-minded students.

Also at the meeting the Committee is to discuss lowering the Chamber of Commerce rent as requested by them and to name members to the Housing Commission.

Alderman Plumm requested that flowers be sent to the Lawrence Skippergosh funeral.

Alderman Timms discussed winter dockage rates, no action was taken.

Alderman Wood told of complaints to him of snow machines on the airport and emphasized the danger that they present. He also asked the Acting Administrator to have flags or light markers put on the light poles where there is danger of the lights being knocked out by the snow plows.

Alderwoman Wallace was assured by Mr. Wexstaff that the Christmas Decorations are being put up and that the schools have been notified that decorations being made by children will be used to decorate the living tree in East Park. He also advised that a letter had been received from the Federal Energy Office that Christmas Lighting is to be allowed this year. Mrs. Wallace asked that a time be designated for decorating the tree together with a community carol sing preferably in the early evening. It is her hope that weather permitting the skating rink will be ready for skating during the holidays, and asked that the Recreation Budget be amended so that money is available to do the necessary work at the Skating Rink.

The Finance Committee having examined bills totaling $45,230.50 find them correct and recommend the bills be allowed. Moved by Alderman Plumm and supported by Alderman McRae that the bills be allowed and orders drawn for their amounts. The motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Wood, McRae, Plumm, Selph, Timms and Alderwoman Wallace. Nays: None. Absent: None.

Library notes

Good books seem to run in streaks. In the past recent months, we have had some books which were not first-rate, even though they were written by first rate authors.

There are, fortunately, some old reliables who never disappoint us, and we have a list of new titles which will mean good news for everyone.

We hope this streak of good books lasts for quite awhile, but in any case, we have enough highly entertaining novels and non-fiction to keep everyone happy, no matter how deep the snow drifts get to be.

Catherine Cookson, surely one of our most popular and loveable authors, has just given us Our John Willie, the story of the unselfish love between two brothers, and their terror of an eccentric old woman, Miss Peamarsh. The two boys were left orphaned and penniless when their families was killed in a flooded mine shaft accident.

Davy had managed to save his young brother, deaf and dumb from birth. Work in the coal mines was hard to find in 1852, and John Willie was too frail to work anyway.

Oavy has to rely on his wits and resourcefulness simply to keep the two of them alive, and Miss Peamarsh doesn't make it any easier for him.

The story has a beautidul ending. It is as tender and sensitive a book that has come along for a long time, and it will certainly take its place among the author's previously renowned books.

Art Buchwald is funny in his newspaper columns, funny on TV, funny in person. In short, he is a very funny man.

His new book, I Am Not A Crook is a chuckle from one page to the next. An interview with Spiro Agnew is downright hilarious. The Los Angeles Times says: "We need to add another member to the President's cabinet--a secretary of humor. And Art Buchwald is our choice to fill the post."

Thomas Tryon has given us another heart-thumper. This attractive young author had a notable career as an actor in film, on stage and in TV, but received a smashing, extraordinary success when he became a writer.

His first book The Other was not only a shiverying thriller, but it was evidence that a major novelist had been discovered. Some people think his second book Harvest Home was even better than the first. Now we have a third novel, Lady, which proves again that we have a major storytelling among us.

Lady lives in a beautiful home. She is fair and kind and everyone loves her.

And yet Lady lives in agony with a terrible secret until she can no longer bear it. This is a chiller and you'd better leave the lights on when you read it.

The final book to be recommended this week is The Frontiersmen by the distinguished author Allan W. Eckert.

This is not a book to be breezed through over the weekend. Researched for seven years, it is the first in a series Mr. Eckert is writing entitled "The Winning of America."

It is the story of wilderness America itself, its penetration and settlement. In The Frontiersmen not only do we care about our long-forgotten fathers, we live again with them. It is a rich, powerful, absorbing narrative. One to keep in mind for the long nights when the north wind blows.

SEE HESS ... BUY FOR LESS!

Charlevoix Students Asked

Christmas Means...

What really is the meaning of Christmas?

Is it buying what you think is a small spruce tree and finding out that it's large for the living room?

Or is it going to the store only to discover that your checkbook is out of checks?

For Charlevoix Elementary students, Christmas has a completely different meaning.

Six-year-old Sandra Wanek thinks of Santa when she's asked about Christmas.

"You get a lot of toys from Santa," she says.

SANDRA WANEK says you get a lot of toys from Santa.

While Sandra says she likes getting Christmas cards from other people, her favorite Christmas pasttime is visiting good old Santa.

"I've seen him twice," she said.

Brad Louiselle, a classmate of Sandra, thinks Christmas is just plain fun.

You get a lot of toys," he said.

"And you put up Christmas trees."

He said Christmas comes only once a year and likes to get presents the most.

Brad said he wants a toy motorcycle.

"Christmas means to be good," shouted six-year-old Sean Ferguson proudly.

He said his teacher had told him all about Christmas.

BRAD LOUISELLE thinks Christmas is just plain fun.

"Just know lots about it," he said.

"Santa Claus is the man who brings all the toys."

Brad added that Christmas is a good time of the year because he gets to sing songs and make snowmen, as well as slide down the hill.

"You also go shopping for toys and people give you toys," he said.

Debbie Towsley says Christmas is the time when you go downtown and get candy from Sanda.

"You go to Petoskey and do it," she said.

"Santa gives you lots of toys you want."

SEAN FERGUSON says Christmas means to be good.

Sometimes he can come to school and see what you want for Christmas."

Debbie said she liked to be able to tell him what she wants for Christmas.

"Christmas is like fun," added eight-year-old Kelley Bales.

"I believe in Santa Claus and you can talk to him.

Debbie especially likes to go out and get a Christmas tree so her family can go out and decorate it.

Nine-year-old Wayne Sharrow says Christmas means going to Grandma's house and getting more presents.

"And when I wake up Christmas morning, I play with my presents," he said.

"I just like the presents I get."

KELLY BALES likes Christmas for the things you get.

He said he especially likes to go out and get his dog and let him jump on his parent's bed.

"I just like Christmas."

Boyne Ramblers Down Charlevoix

By FRAN MARTIN

A determined Charlevoix Rayder cage team Friday night gave the Boyne City Ramblers their closest game of the current season before dropping the game by two points, 60-58.

The Ramblers, who have won all Michigan-Huron Shores games by wide margins, jumped off to a 20-14 first period lead and were well on their way to another lopsided win when the Rayders dug in and outscored the Ramblers in the last three periods.

The Rayders scored seven field goals in the first period to 20 points for their hosts. Mike Strecter, who had 20 points for the game, all on field goals, poured in seven of them in the second quarter with Dave Martinchek adding two from the free throw line to trim the Boyne lead to 35-30.

As the third period came to a close, the Rayders had whittled the Rambler lead to three points, 49-46, as they headed their hosts 16-14 in the period.

In the final period, Bob Alger scored six points, two from the charity line and Streeter added two field goals and Dan Greene one from the floor but the Ramblers were able to dump in 11 points for a two-point victory.

The Ramblers went to the free throw line to defeat the Rayders, scoring 11 of 12 for the game in the first half.

Charlevoix led the scoring from the floor with 26 field goals and connected on six of nine free throw attempts. In battling for possession of the ball they picked up 20 personal fouls.

Boyne City had 24 field goals but made up the difference from the free throw line, scoring on 12 of 21 attempts and collecting only 12 personal fouls.

Streeter paced the scoring for the game with 30 points. Alger scored 11; Greene, eight; Kevin Stokes and Chuck Faust, four each and Martinchek, two. Kevin Martin and Mark Hosmer also played briefly.

Scott Upton had 22, Dave Peck 15 and Dennis Jones, 12 points for the Ramblers.

Some Say Not

Is High School Football Dangerous?

Football enthusiasts nearly had coronaries last fall when they saw a nationally broadcasted television show that revealed the perils of high school football.

The broadcast rocked the entire nation of Friday night football fans and caused a stir among high school athletic associations.

In fact, the National Federation of State High School Associations has jumped to the rescue of high school boosters with its own version of the values and dangers of high school football.

Is football physically dangerous?

The national association says the anxiety about the dangers is understandable, but not well-founded.

From the standpoint of fatalities, there are nine times fewer deaths of high school boys per hour of exposure on the football field than in automobiles.

Moreover they say there is nearly a one to one ratio between the fatality rate of high school boys per hour of exposure in daily living and in interscholastic football.

The national federation also discounted claims by the television documentary that there are 40,000 knee operations performed on high school football players each year.

"That's ridiculous," says the national federation

The fact is, they say, that there are only .25 knee injuries -- which includes sprains and negative x-rays, not just operations--for 100 participants in interscholastic football in Wisconsin.

"That would make a national yearly total of 2,500 knee injuries, so it is impossible to believe there are 40,000 knee operations," they said.

According to the Consumer Project Safety Commission, which might use slightly different criteria for defining injuries, the national rate is only 12 injuries for every 100 participants.

The national federation says that this record of safety is the result of many factors including rule changes, improved medical screening and care, and better coaching.

In addition to requiring helmets, face guards and mouth protectors, the federation said many have pushed for shorter shoe cleats to protect the knees.

They also say that has not been an increase in the number of high school football injuries in recent years.

Of the injuries that do occur, the federation said 30 percent are either sprains or strains or severe bruises and scrapes, but there are only 3.6 injuries in each classification for each classification for every 100 participants per year.

They added that football is not a chief cause of spinal cord and head injuries.

To reduce head and neck injuries, the federation said use of the head for spearing is prohibited, as well as requiring head equipment meet a minimum standard of performance to be considered safe.

County State Bank Remains in First Place

By CHUCK WRIGHT

Charlevoix County State Bank remained in sole possession of first place in the Lake Michigan division of the B league with a convincing 51-40 win over Russell's Shell.

Their 5-1 record is a game better than Andy's Tire World's 4-2 mark and two games better than Russell's 3-3. A Banker loss to Russell's would have resulted in a chaotic three-way tie for first.

Neither team could get much going in the first half as County Bank struggled to a 23-22 halftime lead. It was a different story in the third quarter, however. Led by Larry (Chubby) Skippergosh and Steve Martinis, County Bank exploded for 18 third quarter points while Russell's could only muster six. That gave the Bankers a 41-28 lead and wrapped up the ballgame.

Basically, the contest was a two-on-two affair; Skippergosh and Martinis against Mike Crain and Jim Potter of Russell's. Martinis scored 27 and Skippergosh 20 for a combined total of 47 points-only four points shy of the team's total. Potter and Crain combined for 34 of their team's 40 points. Potter collected 18 while Crain had 16.

Andy's remained hot on County Bank's trail with an easy 59-36 victory over Medusa. Jumping off to a 20-8 first quarter lead, Andy's coasted the rest of the game. Medusa did manage to get within six, but Andy's applied a little pressure and regained their comfortable lead.

Kevin Jonnechek paced the winners as usual with 21 points. Steve Jonnechek added 17 and Dick Metzger 11.

Jim's Clark won its second game of the year, defeating Alray Cottages 38-34. Steve McClellan and Vince Left each scored 10 for Jim's. For Alray Cottages, Carl Swanson and Stan Towsley also scored 10 points.

In the B League's Lake Charlevoix division, Kenney's Excavating remained undefeated by nipping Muma's 48-44. The winless Muma squad barely missed on their strong upset bid. Leading 18-17 at the end of the first quarter, Muma's never trailed by more than a few points.

Kenney's survived the scare thanks to the efforts of Rick Van Stedum who collected 15 and Terry DeVries who scored 13. Bill Gengle and Dick Putman led Muma's with 14.

Village Milkhouse is coming on strong. Winning their second straight game, the Milkhouse is beginning to play like pre-season favorites are supposed to. Defeating John Deere 71-55, the Milkhouse is now tied for second with John Deere two games behind Kenney's.

Denny Way led the path to victory with 22 points. Dale Boss added 16, Jerry Sandahl 12, and Rob Castleline 10. For John Deere, the aggressive Gary Stutzman led all scorers with 25. Dave Moyer had 12 and Barry Pierce 10.

Wojan Aluminum is also beginning to make noises as it whipped First State Bank 67-35. Husky Don Ward dominated the boards and paced the Wojan attack with 22 points. Former independent referee Don Smith chipped in 14. Plas Presnell had 10 for First State Bank.

The Town House stayed on top in the A league with an 83-29 romp over he Coast Guard. Joe Beaudoin led the attack with 15 while Stan Martin had 14. Spook Coleman, Dany McKenzie and player-coach Leroy Buchanon all added 10.

Bob's Sunoco had a rough time defeating the rapidly improving Haggard's team 79-63. Haggard's actually led for the first three quarters, but Bob's overall depth destroyed the upset dreams. In the fourth quarter, Bob's outscored Haggard'a 27-9.

J.V. Defeated by Boyne City

The Charlevoix Junior Varsity five came from behind in its game with Boyne City to tie the score 36-36 at the three quarter mark but failed in their efforts for a victory, dropping the game to the young Ramblers by a score of 46-44.

It was an uphill battle all the way for the young Rayders as Boyne City jumped to a 17-8 first period lead.

All five players got into the scoring column in the second period as the Rayders scored 14 points to 11 for the Ramblers to trim the margin to 28-22 at halftime.

As the second half got underway, the Rayders poured in another 14 points to knot the score 36-36 at the three-quarter mark.

The Rayders, at this point, were unable to continue their scoring spree as the Ramblers threw up a tight defense to hold in a two-point victory.

The Rayders came through with 19 field goals, and six of 14 free throw attempts while collecting 12 personal fouls.

Boyne City scored one more from the floor or 20 field goals and six of 11 free throws. Boyne City had 16 personal fouls.

Bud Klooster led the Rayders with 21 points. Dave Tollas, Matt Doan and Scott Boss scored six points apiece and Mike Way added one.

Ted Beyer had 16 for Boyne City.

33 Fouls

Charlevoix Defeats St. Ignace

In a Michigan-Huron Shores league game marked by 33 personal fouls which sent three players to the bench, Charlevoix defeated St. Ignace here Tuesday by a 50-46 margin.

Mike Streeter, with 21 points for the game, collected his fifth foul midway in the final period. He was followed later in the period by Ben Brown and Brian Winston of St. Ignace.

Charlevoix got off to a slow start in its meeting with St. Ignace to trail 14-4 at the end of the first eight minutes.

The Rayders, however, found their stride as the second period got underway to outscore the Saints 14-8 and knot the score 22-22 at half-time.

When the Rayders returned to the floor to begin the second half, they continued to play a wide open game to outscore the visitors and pick up a 36-32 lead. Both teams scored 14 points in the last quarter of a defensive game to give the Rayders a four-point victory.

The box shows the victors with 21 field goals, eight of 19 freethrow attempts and 15 personal fouls. St. Ignace had 20 field goals, six of 10 freethrows and 18 personal fouls.

Streeter with 21 points was followed by Bob Alger with 14; Dan Greene and Dave Martinchek, four each and Kevin Stokes, the fifth starter, one. Chuck Faust had six points for the game.

Jim Bishop had 12 points to pace the Saints.

Little Rayders Down St. Ignace

Charlevoix's Little Rayders added another victory to its growing string last week when they downed St. Ignace J-V's 62-50.

In the meeting with the Little Saints, the young Rayders jumped to a 14-12 first period lead before they were outscored 15-8 to trail 27-22 at halftime. However, as the second half got underway, Bud Klooster poured in four quick field goals, Matt Doan added six points, Scott Boss five and Mike Way one for 20 points and a 42-40 advantage going into the final period. With Boss leading the way with four field goals, the young Rayders came through with another 20 points to 10 for the visitors for the victory margin.

Klooster had 20 points for the game; Boss, 17; Doan, nine; Dave Tollas, six; Brian Williams three and Way, who did not start, seven.

Litzner had 16 and Cronan 13 for the young Saints.

The major difference in the game came on the free throw line where Charlevoix hit on 12 of 27 free throws while picking up 21 personal fouls. The visitors had only six of 22 attempts and 24 personal fouls.

In the field goal department Charlevoix had 25 to 22 for St. Ignace.

Residents Place in Tourney

Sharing top honors in the women's division were Charlevoix's Edith Gilbert and Nancy Breighner of Petoskey.

Charlevoix's Sherry Sheldon took the Scrooge Invitational Division with Fomos Ekstrom of Boyne City.

The Little Traverse Racquet Club will hold a children's tournament for members on December 29 and 30.

Duncan McMillan was one of an estimated 2,200 students graduated in University of Michigan commencement ceremonies held December 15 in Ann Arbor.

He received a bachlor of arts degree from the College of Literature, Science and the Arts.

He resides at 104 Hampton.

An Early Christmas

Grandvue Party Held

The presents arrived in the form of music from Charlevoix High School music students who gave brief Christmas concerts.

Sponsored by the Grandvue Auxiliary, the Christmas party also included refreshments for the patients.

Mary M. Geiken, Auxiliary president, says there are a variety of things that can be done for those in nursing homes.

Things as simple as a brief visit and smile give patients a lot of pleasure.

Nothing means more to them than to be taken for a walk, or, if in a wheelchair as many are, to be taken for a ride around the home.

And just "mental stimulation" is so rewarding to them.

Patients love to be remembered by name, a smile, a pat on the shoulder or a shake of the hand.

It's important to remember that having no visitors can be a lonely life for them. They get confused, feel left out and lonesome and abandoned by friends and family.

Just to have someone to talk to, someone who cares, means so much.

CHARLEVOIX HIGH School youngsters helped make Christmas a little brighter for patients at Grandvue Medical Care Facility in East Jordan.

GINGERBREAD BOYS

Sift:

2¾ cup flour, 1 tsp. ginger, ½ tsp. salt, 3 tsp. baking powder.

Beat:

½ cup soft oleo with 1/3 cup brown sugar.

Add:

1 egg and 2/3 cup molasses

Chill dough until firm. Grease cookie sheets. To form cookies, roll in hands a piece of dough the size of a quarter. Put on cookie sheet. Roll a larger piece for body and press onto head. Roll small pieces of dough the thickness of a pencil and break off pieces for arms and legs. Attach to body. Use currants or bits of raisins for eyes and nose. A piece of candied cherry or cinnamon drop makes the mouth. Bake about 15 minutes at 325 degrees or until firm to touch. Remove very carefully to a tray. Frosting may be added for decoration such as a snowy white cap or buttons. If you want to hang them on a Christmas tree, punch a small hole in the head with a toothpick before baking. Makes 18 boys if small.

lumber company, which Hiller emphatically states, "Is not for sale."

Hiller also said that city utilities in the same. area would have to be moved and he couldn't give up more of his parking area. Further, Hiller said he didn't feel the city should have to underwrite the costs of moving those utilities.

Hiller urged the Corps to continue steel revetments throughout the channel.

He said, in a later interview, if his questions were satisfactorily answered he had no other objections to the project.

Where dredged material would be dumped was questionned.

The engineers responded that as it was now considered non-polluted material it would be dumped out in Lake Michigan.

Wexstaff suggested the Corps consider dumping the dredged material in Round Lake's deep holes.

Wexstaff also proposed the Corps extend the pier on the south side of the channel, opposite the Charlevoix Lumber Co., so the Coast Guard Cutter SUNDEW could dock parallel with the channel. This Wexstaff said would allow for more yatch docks, therefore more tourist dollars for Charlevoix.

Corps spokesman Platz responded that such a suggestion be presented formally to the Corps along with specific data on monetary benefits.

Members of the community questioned the Corps closely about vessel sizes and future channel projects. Many were worried lest one project lead to another, as demands for larger freighters escalated.

The present shape of the channel, with its dog-leg near Lake Michigan, the railroad bridge at the entrance to Lake Charlevoix and the highway bridge are obstacles to any of the larger lake freighters using the channel, Sarunas Lisauska, Civil Engineer for the Corps, said.

At present depths, freighters no larger than 550 feet and not fully loaded can use the channel. The deepening of the channel would permit freighters in the next class–550-600 feet, to pass through.

However, Corps Engineers, stated that the demand for still larger boats isn't a major threat. Small boats which now use the channel are becoming extinct on the Great Lakes, but the next large size (550-600) are still in great demand as there are several Great Lakes' ports which are limited to that maximum size.

Don Berlage, speaking as a private citizen, observed that "They've been working on the channel for four years now. You wonder if it is every going to end."

"But many of my fears have been dispelled by the workshop, assuming the statements were factual, such as REA would receive $125,000 annual savings."

Rod Stebbins expressed the same worry, that "Corps projects seem to be self-perpetuationg," citing Mississippi River examples.

"I am ambivalent," Stebbins said. "Water borne freight is unquestionably the most efficient use of fuel. I have seen figures that show 1 gallen of fuel can move 27 tons of freight by water and only 1/10th the amount the same distance by truck and 1/100th that by air. Maybe I just have a hang-up about government spending."

The workshop was one of many steps in the long process of studies, hearings, reports, reviews, more hearings, Congressional approval and Congressional appropriations before construction can begin.

"The earliest possible construction date would be 1978-79, if no major hang ups develop along the way," Platz said.

Meanwhile, Kittleman, who is in-charge of current revetment projects, is amazed by and concerned about the problems steel has created with the waves and turbulence rushing into Round Lake.

Boat owners, for instance, report that, already this year, the constant wave action, which was previously dissipated by the natural banks, has caused boats to chafe through their mooring lines.

Council

But, City Attorney Don Berlage said the council's consideration should solely be whether or not this is a legitimate and best use of the land.

Adjacent property owner, Jack Stevens, who owns the Texaco Oil Station said he had no objection to the project.

In other business, council:

–Granted a variance on the Theodore McCutcheon property on Belvedere Avenue to allow rebuilding of the existing boat house as proposed by Bruce Glupker and William Dykstra.

--Announced the annual judging of the unlighted Christmas displays will be Dec. 21 at 1 p.m. by Mrs. Robert Wexstaff, Mrs. Ray Wood and Mrs. Robert Timms. Prizes will be $50 for first place; $25 for second place and $15 for third.

–Authorized the Charlevoix Public School District to certify or collect 50 per cent of the school taxes at the same time of the city taxes.

–Transferred $8,000 to the Recreation Department budget. This action returns funds to the department that had been borrowed for other uses earlier this year.

–Set commercial loading and unloading rates at the city docks at $25 the first hour and $15 for each additional hour. Announced yacht fees would also apply at the commercial docks and those winter rates are $100 for vessels up to 50-feet and $150 for those over 50-feet from November 30 to April 30.

–Referred discussion of a mutual fire aid agreement with the Charlevoix Township Fire Department to committee.

DNR

Mrs. Kenneth Balch voiced objection to a state park in the area stating "They (campers and others) bring their stuff with them and leave their trash".

Oscar Ward said "We have become victims of industrial development."

Mrs. Balch mentioned the proposes swap of land on the north end of the park with Medusa Cement Co. which would give the company access to its property and add a minimum of 20 acres to the Bell's Bay Camp Grounds. She said that if the DNR did swapped the land it would result in a quarry at her door.

Ward advised that the DNR should not go overboard for the tourist.

Ted McCutcheon said he was interested in the DNR acquiring the Fisherman's Island tract, adding that if it remains in private ownership no one can use it.

Mrs. Leo Drewa inquired if the present state land would be developed as a park if the Fisherman's island tract was not acquired and was advised that it would not.

Thomas Wieland commended the DNR for working out what he termed "a real good plan." He was joined by John Michael who added that the plan was outstanding and the park would be an asset to the area.

Alvin Morrow said of the hearing "You're going to do what you want no matter what we say. You have it all sewed up with Medusa."

Grover Geneit, an avid trailerite, made several recommendation regarding use of the land that would be acquired and the existing land, particularly the Bell's Bay campground. Hane snid the suggestions would certainly be incorporated into the DNR's plans for the proposed park.

The rowdyism and trouble that presently exists at Bell's Bay site would be taken care of by the park mannger if and when a state park is developed, Hane said.

Several others spoke on the proposed development, all commending the DNR for its efforts to acquire the land and to eventually develop the property as a state park.

after presence of P.B.B. was discovered. Mrs. Conant told of the family's dilemma, of not being able to sell their livestock or replace the herd until settlement is made by the Michigan Farm Bureau, although she does not blame the Farm Bureau for the contamination.

"The Michigan Chemical Company (which mistakingly sent the P.B.B. to Farm Bureau should be footing the bill," Mrs. Conant said.

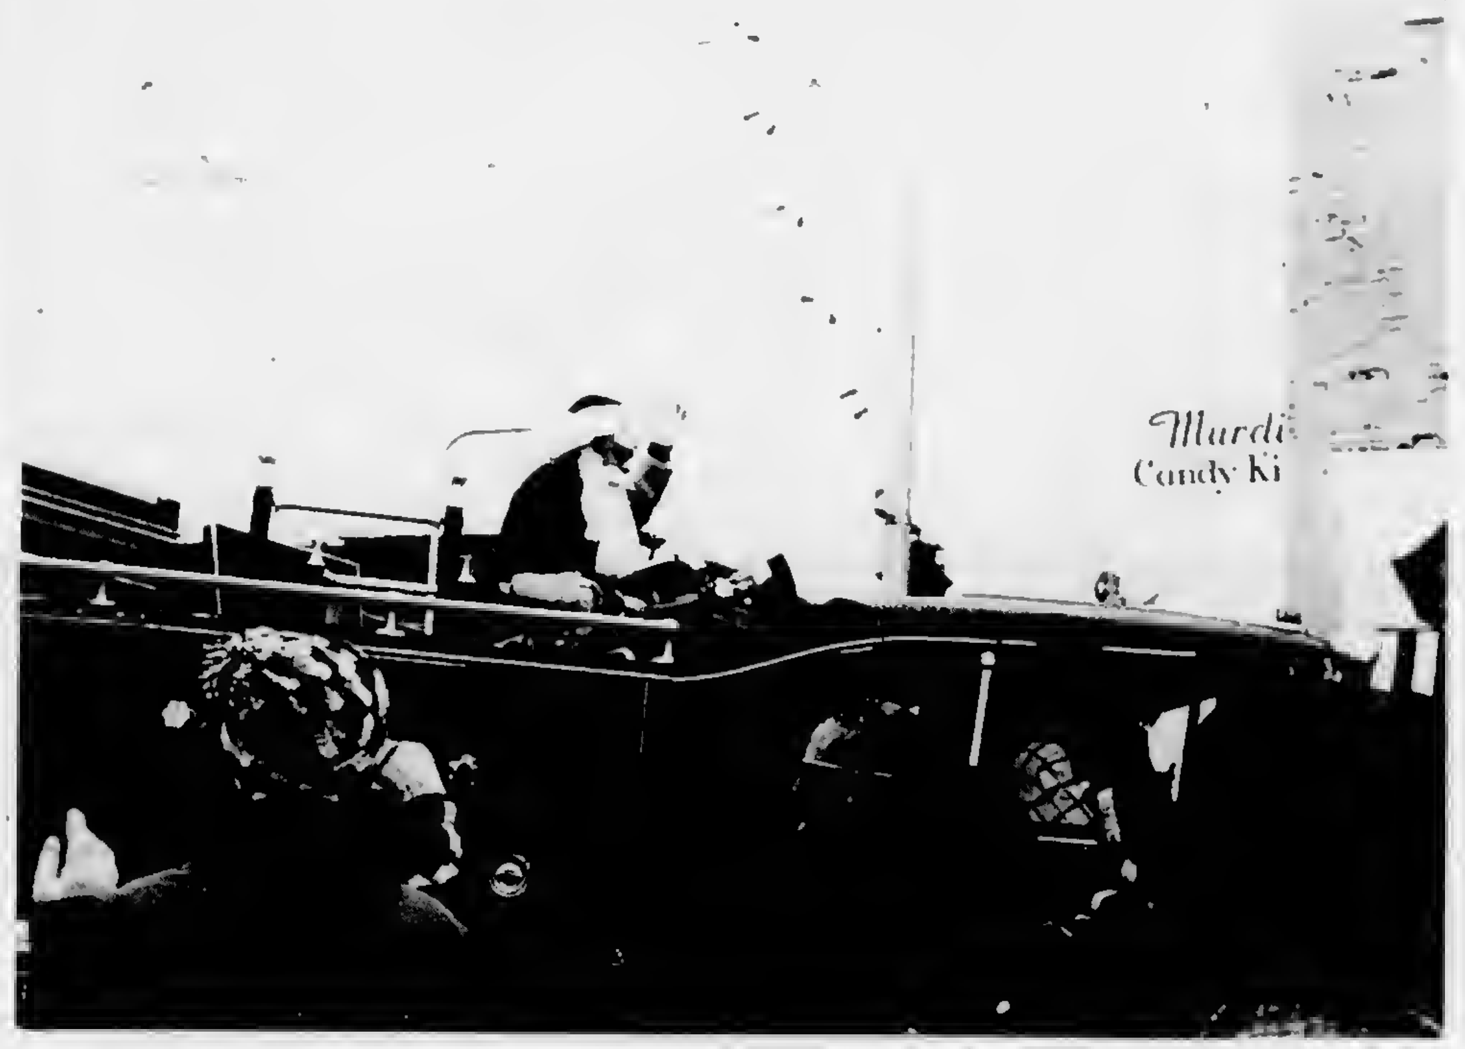
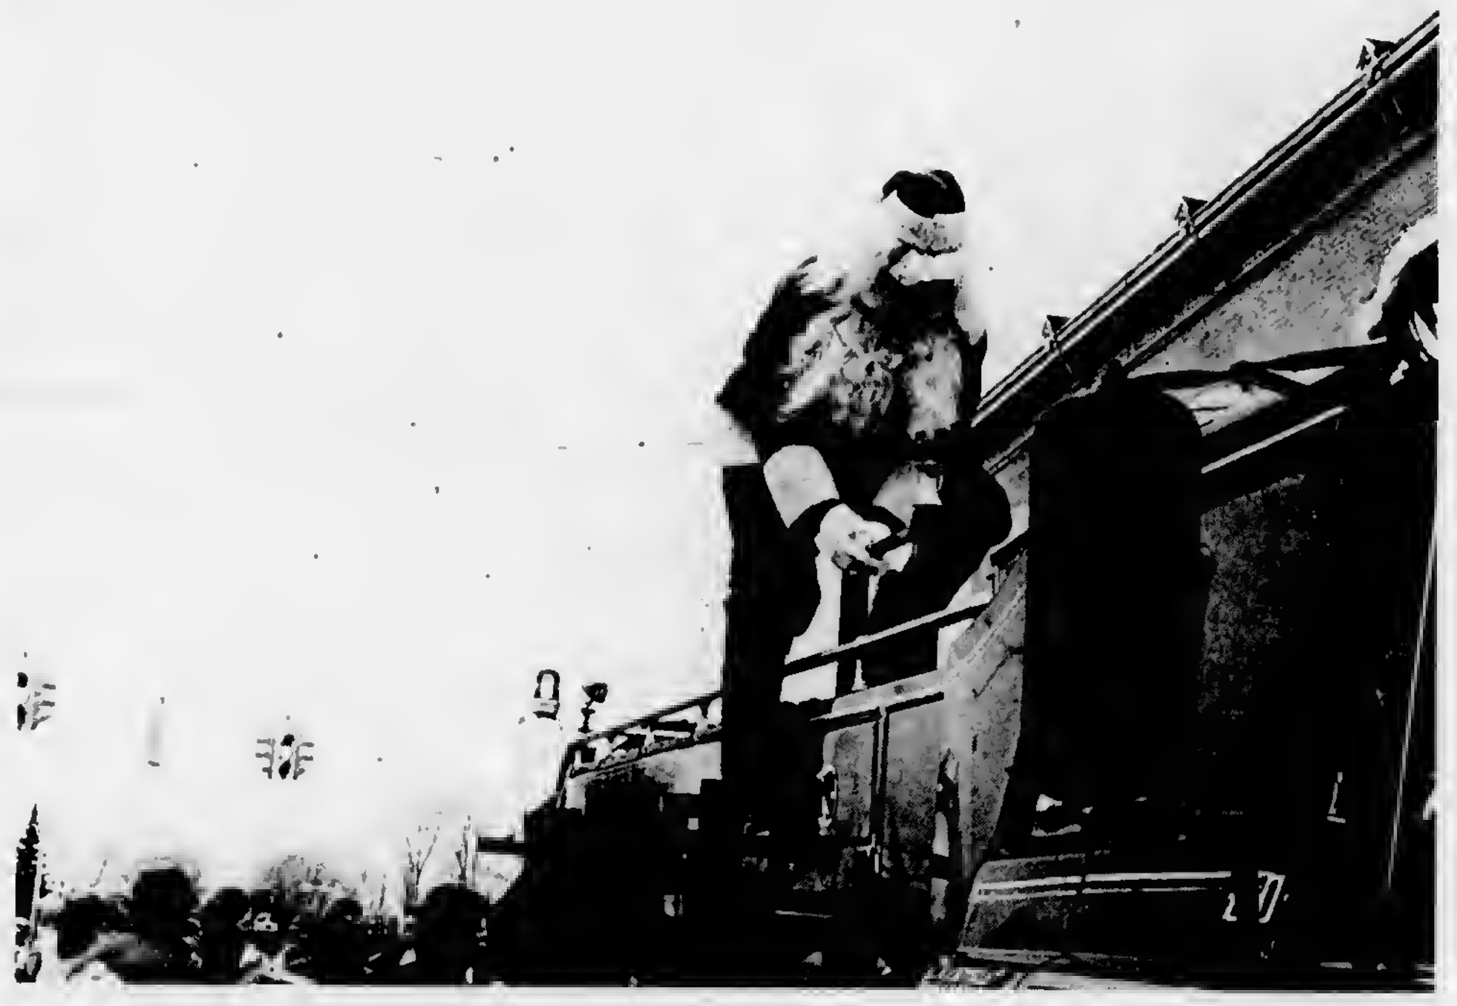
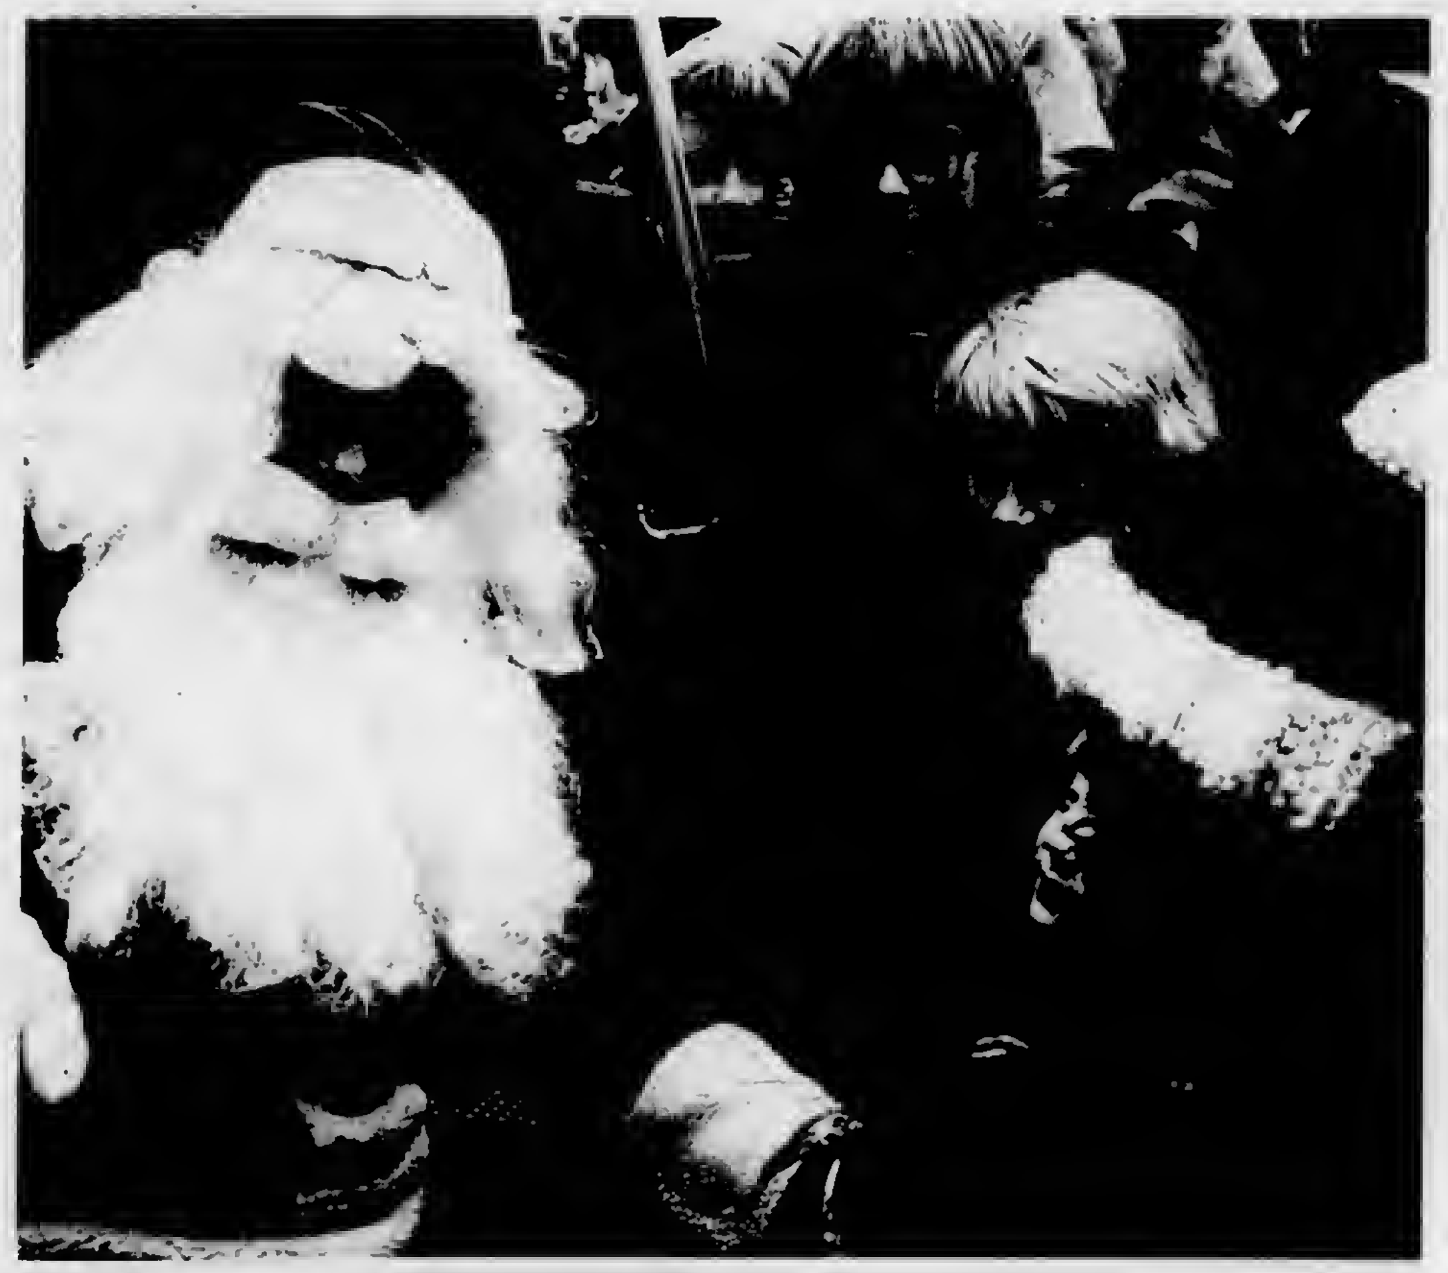
Santa Is Here!



A CHARLEVOIX Fire truck helped bring Santa Claus into town on Saturday afternoon so area youngsters could tell him what they wanted for Christmas.



ALMOST a hundred kids were on hand to greet jolly old Santa in Charlevoix's East Park. He was able to make the special visit thanks to the Charlevoix Volunteer Fire Department.



NOT ONLY did everyone get to see Santa, he also got an early Christmas package for braving the cold temperatures.

Famous People in History

ELI WHITNEY

Eli Whitney was born in Westboro, Massachusetts in 1765. He graduated from Yale in 1792. While visiting a plantation in Georgia, he began experimenting with a machine to clean the seeds from cotton fibers. The result was the invention of the cotton gin. After an unsuccessful business attempt, Whitney turned his attention to manufacturing firearms. He invented a system for manufacturing interchangeable parts and became very successful. His factory was near New Haven, Connecticut. Whitney died in 1825 and was elected to the American Hall of Fame in 1900.

Have A Merry Christmas

"Christians awake, salute the happy morn Whereon the Saviour of the world was born." --from "Hymn for Christmas Day" by John Byrom

The commercialism of Chris mas has been exploited for many weeks past but the true meaning of Christmas, the birth of Jesus Christ, is being emphasized by all Christian churches.

Throughout the area, special programs, sermons and masses are telling about that day long ago when Christ was born in Bethlehem. Some celebrations have already been held, others are coming.

A special cottage-type service will be held Christmas Eve by members of the Church of the Nazarene at the home of Mrs. C. J. Fiedler on North Point. The service will start at 7:30 and will feature devotions and fellowship.

Sunday evening, the annual Christmas program was given by young people of the Community Reformed Church of Charlevoix.

Opposition Continues to Grow Over Railroad Abandonment

By TOM DAMMANN

TRAVERSE CITY – A prestigious voice has been added to the growing opposition to any railroad abandonment now in the northern regions of the Lower Peninsula – that of The Northwest Michigan Regional Planning and Development Commission, in resolutions passed at their meeting, here Friday.

Abandonment of some 2,000 miles of trackage, or 35 percent of rail service, in the Lower Peninsula, has been recommended by the U.S. Department of Transportation (DOT). Commissioners were told by Executive Director Bill Rowden. Of this, about 400 miles are in the 10 northwest counties, he added, pointing out that amounts to 98 percent of the trackage in that area.

The Commission passed a resolution opposing any abandonment of trackage now on the grounds that Federal and State planners are giving insufficent consideration to the impact of the growing energy crisis on various modes of transportation.

New Group

The resolution supports action taken Tuesday in Kalkaska by the Board of Directors of the newly formed Northern Michigan Rail Users Association.

In a resolution declaring No Rail Abandonment Now as its platform and goal, the Rail Users Association directors stated: "We are in a runaway inflation cycle. It costs more to ship by truck than by rail. Thus we can't afford to lose the railroad for economic reasons."

The Resolution stated that the cost of shipping by truck is three to five times higher than shipping by railroad. Therefore, the energy crisis requires that railroads, which are already in existence, must be retained and maintained.

The resolutions were sent to Governor William G. Milliken, the Michigan Congresssional Delegation, members of the State Legislature, Bill Bailey, Manager Railroad Planning Section State Department of Highways and Transportation, and Officials of the U.S. Department of Transportation, (DOT).

Other Action

In other relevent action, the Commission approved protests by its staff to the Interstate Commerce Commission (ICC), DOT and the State Public Service Commission over the termination by Penn Central Railroad of its service between Petoskey and Mackinaw City.

In a move to support similar action Tuesday by the Rail Users Association, the Commission staff had gone on record with those Federal and State agencies charging that Penn Central's termination violates the 1973 Regional Rail Reorganization Act which prohibits a carrier from discontinuing service unless approved by the United States Railway Association (USRA) created by Congress to work out the "final system plan" for northeasts and northern midwest railroads.

That plan must be ready for Congressional study and action early next year.

Yesterday's Thinking

In a letter to George M. Chandler, Director Rail Service Planning Office, ICC, Washington, D.C., William H. Ohle, Horton Bay, wrote that "abandonment of any Michigan trackage must become unthinkable to USRA planners, even though the thought of redoing yesterday's thinking must seem unpalatable."

Ohle, who is a Northwest Michigan Planning and Development Commissioner and a Vice President of the Rail Users Association, wrote "in a normal economy, and in a cheap gasoline situation with plenty of it available, it would be logical and easy to settle for alternate modes of transportation in place of railroads."

Ohle submits that that condition no longer exists due to inflation, fuel shortages and rising costs.

"To be sure, Northern Michigan's trackage is in terrible shape, but it is there, and the fix-up will cost nothing compared with the disaster that abandonment would cause," Ohle concluded.

Restoration Costs

Richard Beagle, of the Regional Commission staff, and member of the Rail Users Association Board of Directors, says that in its application to the ICC, April 4, 1973, seeking permission to abandon rail service from Cedar Springs to Mackinaw City, Penn Central stated it would cost $2,625,000 to restore the trackage more than 200 miles for proper use.

Several City Contests

McRae Opposes Hansen

Charlevoix's two mayoral candidates are already off and campaigning for the city's top political spot even with a week left before nominating petitions have to be filed.

First Ward Alderman Ralph McRae threw his hat into the political ring late last week in attempt to unseat incumbent Mayor Edward P. Hansen, who has announced his intentions to seek a third term.

Mayor Hansen said he wasn't surprised to see McRae run for mayor even though the city alderman has been on council for eight months.

"The situation is almost comical," Hansen said.

"There's nothing he could do to surprise me because he surprises so much I'm numb."

Hansen, who plans to file his petition later this week, said that McRae's announcement to run seemed ironic.

"The only thing that strikes me is that he has been hollering for someone to run the city and has been pushing for a city new administrator, Hansen said.

"And he's been a member of the council for nine months and he wants an experienced administrator."

Hansen said McRae has said he was not unhappy with present administrator appointed by Hansen and doesn't quarrel with his performance.

"He wants an experienced administrator and yet he wants to be a mayor with nine months experience," Hansen continued.

"I wasn't surprised to see someone file."

McRae says he's not about to argue about his apponents experience.

"I'm going to have a platform and if you don't like my platform, you don't have to vote for me," he said.

"I'm not going to deal with personulities."

McRae said he's not interested about what his opponent says about his experience, he didn't get on the council to listen, he got on to do something.

"I can't compete against his experience," McRae said.

"I have no quarrel with him."

"He's been very fair to me."

McRae said that he will be announcing his platform in several weeks. He says his primary interests will be a new city charter, senior citizen housing and a new professional administrator.

"Why should Hansen get mad I'm running?" McRae said.

"I have a legal right to win."

McRae said he is interested in getting more people interested in government.

"The more people we get involved, the better off we are," he said.

"The council is not enough.

What Do We Do?

P.B.B.--Some Frightening Experiences Here

The fear and the danger is still there – the fear and danger, and real possibility, that their livestock have been contaminated with P.B.B. is part of the lives of many area farmers.

Since the Courier first learned three months ago that a large herd of dairy cattle in Norwood township was destined to be destroyed because they had been given a feed supplement containing the poison, the long, complicated story has unfolded slowly.

Other similar cases in the area have been reported as we learned about them, and now, in the past week, three other cases have come to light.

P.B.B. is poly-brominated bi-phenyl. It is a poisonous substance used in making fire retardants which was mistaken for a food supplement and mixed with an animal feed distributed to Michigan farmers by Michigan Farm Bureau Services, Inc.

In retrospect the mistake seems simple. The fire retardant is called Fire Master, the food supplement is called Nutri Master. The products are similar in appearance, as similar as sugar and salt. And because of a bag shortage last year they were packaged in identical brown paper bags.

The Michigan Chemical Company of St. Louis manufactures the two products and shipped the Fire Master instead of Nutri Master to the Farm Bureau, which added it to their animal feed.

Apparently the feed contamination began in the summer of 1973 and continued until last December. Arlo Wasson of the Michigan Farm Bureau Lansing office told the Courier some time ago that it was early last fall when they first began receiving complaints from a few dairy farmers about loss of milk production.

It was first thought that toxic corn was to blame, but after the trouble persisted and following further research, the problem was traced to one line of feed.

Analysis

The Farm Bureau started to recall the feed last January, and between January and April the Farm Bureau's research laboratories and the United States Department of Agriculture did extensive research on the problem. It was through this research that the poly-brominated bi-phenyl was identified in the feed.

P.B.B. adheres to the fat of animals and shows up in milk and eggs. Contaminated animals don't gain weight, have breeding problems, abortion and still births, and many of those born die shortly afterward. Dairy cattle also show a marked decrease in milk production.

The effect of P.B.B. contamination upon persons eating the contaminated meat or eggs or drinking the milk is not known. Last June, when many cases of P.B.B. were discovered in Newago County, the state Department of Health started screening persons who had eaten the meat and drunk the milk of contaminated animals, looking for signs or symptoms of their contamination.

In September, the Health Department set up an extensive research program in Newago County using 20 families not subjected to P.B.B. contamination and 20 families who had been. Approximately 200 persons in all are involved in the testing which includes complete medical histories and thorough clinical examinations. Results of this research showing any difference in medical categories or trends in medical problems and symptoms are expected shortly.

Speaking to the Courier last week, Dr. Harold Humphries, environmental epidemicologist for the Michigan Department of Health, said "There is no informative medical literature pertaining to human exposure to P.B.B., but the effects in animals are frightening." He also said there may be no effects or that it will take some time for them to show up.

"We have an agent and we are now looking for a disease," was his explanation of the cart-before-the-horse problem.

Dr. Humphries also explained that we are living in a technological age where many chemicals are used. "We must face the fact that we will be exposed to unusual things that our forefathers weren't," he added.

Every farm family whose cattle have been contaminated with P.B.B. quiried by the Courier says they are not eating the meat or

Gas Dealers Battle it Out

Is Charlevoix Having A Gas War?

By SARA GAY DAMMANN

Wars—even gasoline wars—have as many explanations as combatants.

Charlevoix's recent gas war involved several stations locked in the actual price battle while the rest argued whether it was "fair" or "cut-throat competition."

One area of agreement, was that the gas war was unique to Northern Michigan. No other community has seen the type of gas price dropping Charlevoix saw in the past few weeks.

Apparently it all began when the Clark station lowered its price of regular gasoline to 51.9 cents per gallon. The old Gulf station (now owned by Wallace Zupin of Elk Rapids) across the street settled on a policy of staying a penny below.

Tim Smith, manager of Zupin's station said, "If Clark cut his price we cut ours a penny under. We don't make anything on gas. We try to make up the difference on our services, tires, windshield wipers."

Zepbyr Station

Meanwhile, across the street the Zephyr station manager Dale Zeitler watched prices drop. "I notified my company, Naph-Sol, which told me to lower my prices. We just watched to see where everybody else was at."

Next Holiday and Texaco dropped their prices below 50 cents a gallon, culminating in the final drop to 47.9 by Zupin and Holiday.

Jim Ketchum from Clark reported, "We stoped at 51.9 and watched people drive by."

In desperation owners of major brand name stations—Mobil, Standard, Total, etc.—ealled their agents or distributors asking for pricing help.

Care Less

Universally, the owners of major brand name stations reported their distributors could have cared less. The majors refused to lower the price of gas they sold the dealers. They told the dealers to lower prices on their own, if they wanted. To take it out of their own pockets. Most decided they couldn't do it.

Therein lies one of the major differences between the actual combatants in the price war and the stations who remained with high priced regular gasoline, watching the cars drive by.

The dealers who were able to cut prices were either owned by their distributor, or got a direct assist in lower prices from the distributor.

As a spokesman for Mobil, who refused to be named said, "Mobil doesn't care about a gas war in Charlevoix, or even one dealer. Mobil looks at the national picture and decides what price we can charge. It doesn't even matter that Mobil is having trouble throughout Michigan, it averages out with other states."

Drop Prices

Peter Gaskin, owner of one of Charlevoix's Mobil stations, said, "Dropping my prices two or three cents a gallon to get customers, wouldn't let me eat any better. I'll be losing money. Perry Oil Company even absorbed the last Mobil price rise for us."

Jim Keller at Standard responded similarly, "There's a point to which we cannot cut our prices and still eat. When Standard passed along its last penny a gallon hike we absorbed it here in Charlevoix. I had to raise the price a penny in my Petoskey station."

The cost of gasoline to the customer is determined by many complex factors, including how many middlemen are between the pipeline terminal and the gas stations.

In the case of the Zupin station, Zupin is both distributor and owner. For some major brand stations there may be two or three additional people, carriers, agents or distributors between the terminal and pumps. Each account for a couple of cents per gallon.

Fair Play

In response to some cries that his price cutting was not fair, Zupin responded, "This is still a free capitalist country, or isn't it?"

He continued, "It happens that I had gas and could sell it."

Some other station owners wondered how the gas war combatants were making any money and speculated, "They will cut prices, dazzle you with service, wash your windows twice, make a friend, then raise the price. It's business building. Meanwhile, they are creating a lot of antagonisms."

A major distributor in the area said that on the average, to be successful, a service station operator must make at least 9 cents a gallon profit and 11 to 12 cents is decent.

An analysis of Charlevoix stations, for available figures, indicates that the major brand stations are in that range of profit making.

The cut rate stations did not wish to discuss the profit question. However, well informed sources reported that the gasoline being sold from the same terminal that sells to Zupin costs the distributor-dealer about 44.8 cents a gallon.

Angry Dealers

Ironically the terminal is owned by Standard Oil of Indiana, which bought it from Gulf when Gulf moved out of the State. Zupin had gasoline allottments due from Gulf which Standard had to meet. Angry Standard station dealers speculate that Zupin may have gotten a better deal than they.

A Mobil spokesman said the price of gas coming from the terminal really depends on the cost and availability of crude oil. Within the domestic crude oil market there are price differences, because of quality and different age wells.

"Mobil imports a lot of crude," he continued, "Particularly from Canada and Venezuela, actually very little from Arabia. Prices of imported crude oil are higher."

He speculated that some smaller companies are buying domestic crude oil at cheaper prices and therefore can sell to their stations more cheaply.

A Standard dealer said the major brand companies expect a price freeze, and therefore were keeping prices high so as not to be stuck with a low price when the freeze is imposed. He cited the problems faced by some service stations during the last freeze, when they became frozen during a gas war. They were frozen out of business.

WHAT IS happening to the price of gasoline in Charlevoix? Local dealers seem to have different stories. Large dealers don't appear to care.

Distributor Thomas Carey said he too expects a price freeze. In order to remain competitive Andy's Tire World, owned by his son Andy Carey is having special price days and trying to make up the differences in their services.

"Being in business is no fun any more," Andy Carey observed.

"Used to be you'd go to work knowing you'd sell some gas, some tires and so on.

"Now it's all a struggle.

"And people aren't paying.

"They are charging, using credit cards, and we have to fight to collect.

"Guess its gotten to be a mean old world. "But you can't blame the customer. Everyone has to shop around these days. My mother buys one item at one grocery and drives down the street to save 15 cents on something else," Carey concluded.

Should gasoline customers in Charlevoix anticipate driving around, shopping for the best gas price from now on? Is the war on or off?

Most of the hot and heavy price warriors of two weeks ago seem to agree things will settle down to about 53.9 cents a gallon for regular gasoline.

Charlevoix Co-op is an exception. In their efforts to "Go competitive" the Co-op finds it may be able to stay lower a short time longer. The Co-op's spokesman declines to describe the situation as "a war" "We just charge what we can, as low as we can."

Zupin said, in a telephone interview, that he had decided to keep prices in such a way as to "make sure everyone stays alive, so everyone can stay in business."

Asked if it meant his raising his price to 53.9 cents a gallon was a beneficent act for the good of all, he responded, "Most assuredly. After all, if everyone goes out of business Charlevoix would lose its tax base."

Charlevoix Shoppers Don't Think This Year is Different

> "I did what I always did,"
> - Mary Herrington

Gloomy economic predictions for the New Year haven't had much affect on Charlevoix shoppers out buying last minute gifts.

Or at least most shoppers say they haven't done much belt-tightening yet.

Most recognize that the area will probably be headed for a major long-term economic down surge, but say they are going to continue business as usual for the time being.

"I'm not buying any more or less than other years," says Bernice May.

And she says she's not worried about the recession.

"He supplies us with all we need."

Mary Hall, who was busy at Olsson Variety Store, said she thought she had probably cut down purchases somewhat, but it wasn't particularly because of the recession.

"For one thing, your light and fuel and all your bills are higher," she said.

She said it wasn't that she didn't want to buy more, it was that she couldn't with all the bills.

Mary Herrington, a store cashier, said she was buying just as much as she had before.

"I did what I always did," she said.

"I think my family and kids are getting as much as they did last year."

"I don't know what it is going to be like next year."

She said the store she works at has been busy with a lot of shoppers buying groceries.

One woman, who was dashing into a local grocery for a couple of last minute items, said she wasn't buying any more or less than in other years.

"I'm really glad everyone put out decorations," she said.

Over at Bogg's Pastry, where many shoppers stop in for a cup of coffee and rest their weary bones, Julie Holtzman said she has probably bought less.

"Partly because of the inflation and everything is so high," she added.

"We did buy less for Christmas for the kids."

The counter waitress said there certainly is a recession.

"I think things will get worse," she said.

"I have a freezer stocked up and garden.

"But I'm not going to lose any sleep over it."

Milton Carter, manager of a local variety store, said people are getting a little more picky.

"I think they're buying a lot of what they have to have."

He said he personally bought as much as he did last year.

"I also sent out my cards," he added.

"I think it's going to be rough from now until spring."

County Road Construction Will be Less

There may be less road building in Charlevoix County after mid-1976.

Unless Congress amends certain language in the Federal Highway Act of 1973, provisions of the act will reduce the federal aid secondary system of the county from 193 miles to 51 miles, or 6.6 percent of the original mileage.

Irvin H. Sturm, engineer-director of the Charlevoix County Road Commission, explained that federal highway money is distributed to the states for further distribution at the local level. The money normally is earmarked for road construction at the rate of 72 percent federal and 28 percent matching local funds.

Roads like the Charlevoix-Boyne City Road were built on this basis. If federal funds are cut as proposed, rebuilding of present gravel and dirt roads would be drastically reduced.

"It will be a real, imminent loss unless the law is changed. We will lose our lower type roads," Sturm commented.

Paul Van Roekel, county highway engineer in Oakland County and a national director of the National Association of Counties, has pointed out it is the rural areas that would be affected by the cut. "We are scarcely affected in Oakland County because the high percentage of our roads are urban," he said, "but I am concerned that rural citizens know what is in store for them."

"Individual citizens can perhaps make a greater impact on Congress than organizations," Van Roekel added, "by convincing their own Congressman that the cutback should be modified.

Van Roekel said he didn't think individual congressmen

Merry Christmas All Year 'Round

In less than 24 hours, all the gifts that were so cleverly wrapped and resting under the Christmas tree will be opened.

The wrappings will be discarded and probably some of the toys will be broken by the end of the day.

The Christmas feast, that took so many hours to prepare, will also disappear in no time.

Then Christmas will be over.

There will be no more hours of running around stores to purchase gifts or carting kids to see Santa or participate in the Christmas programs at school and church.

No longer will the invitations for parties to share in the Christmas spirit be there.

It will all be a part of Christmas past.

But, what about Christmas future?

Will there be any more Christmases to come?

We hear the repetitous phrases of how people should keep the Christmas spirit year round.

But, like the discarded Christmas gifts and empty dinner table, repetitious phrases are usually forgotten as quickly as they are said.

Perhaps it would be better just to think of this as the last Christmas and in doing so, try to make it last as long as possible.

Maybe that spirit would end some of the bitter conflicts we endure throughout our lives.

Just perhaps, with this frame of mind everyone could have a Merry Christmas for many years to come.

Health Department Should Watch P.B.B.

Poly-brominated bi-phenyl (P.B.B) has hit Charlevoix County dairy farmers like a raging fire.

Since the Charlevoix Courier first learned three months ago that a large herd of dairy cattle in Norwood Township was destined to be destroyed, every week a new chapter was unfolded.

P.B.B. is a poisonous substance used in making fire retardents which was mistaken for a food supplement and mixed with an animal feed distributed to Michigan farmers by Michigan Farm Bureau Services, Inc.

The substance is ending the careers of many long-time area farmers.

While they may eventually be partially reimbursed for damages through insurance, it can never replace the years of hard work that has gone into building a profitable herd.

However, more than the financial loss to local farmers, our concern is even more seriously directed toward the by-products from the contaminated animals.

At this point, the effect of P.B.B. contamination upon persons eating the contaminated meat or eggs or drinking the milk is not known.

Dr. Harold Humphries, environmental epidemicologist for the Michigan Department of Health reports to the Courier that there is no informative medical literature pertaining to human exposure to P.B.B.

But, he adds that the effects in animals are frightening.

He also said there may be no effects or that it will take some time for them to show up.

Every area farm family whose cattle has been contaminated with P.B.B. has said they are not eating the meat or drinking the milk from the animals.

The State Department of Agriculture has set up safety standards that allows low level contaminated milk to be sold on the open market.

The Health Department says they are not concerned about farmers selling milk with P.B.B. levels less than the safety standards to the general public because when it is mixed with milk from other sources it is greatly diluted.

However, we are concerned about the potential danger from P.B.B contamination and urge the Michigan Health Department and State Agriculture Department to reconsider their present positions until more is known about P.B.B.

City Gets Insurance

Mr. Robert E. Wexstaff
Acting City Administrator
City of Charlevoix
210 State Street
Charlevoix, Michigan 49720

Dear Mr. Wexstaff:

Pursuant to your application, and in accordance with Section 1336 of the National Flood Insurance Act of 1968 (as amended), I am authorizing the sale of flood insurance in your community under the emergency program, effective December 13, 1974. The flood plan management regulations which the community has adopted have been accepted in accordance with Section 1910.2 of our regulations, pending further review.

Under the emergency program, as amended by the Flood Disaster Protection Act of 1973 (P.L. 93-234, December 31, 1973), flood insurance at subsidized premium rates will be available on structures in amounts up to $35,000 for single-family dwellings and up to $100,000 on multi-family and non-residential properties and up to $10,000 per unit on residential contents and $100,000 on non-residential contents. After a rate study has been completed for your community, coverage up to double and above amounts will be available at actual rates.

A major change in the program made by the 1973 Act is that buildings that are newly constructed or substantially improved after the areas having special flood hazards are identified, may still obtain flood insurance at subsidized rates until the rate study has been completed (or December 31, 1974, whichever is later). Thus, there is no longer an interim period when newly-constructed buildings cannot obtain insurance. Of course, once a building is eligible for subsidized insurance, it continues to be eligible for such insurance for as long as the community continues to participate in the program.

A second major change is that all buildings located within the special flood hazard areas of a community participating in the program must be covered by flood insurance after March 1, 1974, in order to be eligible for any form of mortgage loan from a Federally-insured or supervised bank or savings and loan associations, or from any Federal agency. After June 30, 1975, no such loans may be approved in communities that are not participating in the flood insurance program.

You should also be aware that subsidized flood insurance premium rates have been substantially reduced for most properties as a result of the 1973 Act, effective January 1, 1974. Policies of flood insurance may be obtained from any licensed property insurance agent or broker within your community. If any questions arise or information is needed regarding coverage, or if forms are needed, you should get in touch with the National Flood Insurers Association servicing company for your area, which is: Insurance Company of North America, Room 300 Buhl Building, Griswold & Congress Streets, Detroit, Michigan 48226. During the first 30 days after a community becomes eligible for the sale of flood insurance, coverage can be made available immediately upon application to protect against any loss that is not already in progress. However, after the first 30-day period of eligibility, there is a 15-day waiting period after application before coverage takes effect. Thus, you may want to make a special effort to alert your citizens to the advantages of purchasing floor insurance immediately.

In accordance with the 1973 Act, we will notify you promptly at the time the rate study for your community commences, so that you can provide our contractor with any local data that you believe may be relevant.

We compliment you on your prudence and foresight in making application for this much-needed program. If we can be of further assistance to you at any time, please let us know. The telephone number of the Office of Flood Insurance in the Federal Insurance Administration is (202) 426-0015.

Sincerely,
Richard W. Krimm
Assistant Administrator for Flood Insurance

Clockwise

By Bob Clock

The trouble with Americans in this year of Our Lord 1974 is that they worry about the wrong things.

Take long hair for example.

Last week, the awesome office of the Adjutant General of the United States Army put a handful of young American GI's stationed in Germany through a general courts martial because — of all things — they refused to cut their hair.

It matters little that their hair wasn't all that long. I see longer locks every day on the heads of male employes at the News-Review in Petoskey. The length of their hair is totally unimportant, because it really doesn't make any difference.

What does make a difference is that some stupid officer was dumb enough to make an issue of it. The young men were put on trial and at this writing one of them has been found guilty and sentenced to five months in prison, at hard labor.

Holy Moses!

A few months ago we were confronted with a president who, with the aid of his sleezy subalterns, did more to ruin the fabric of America than the combined military might of Germany and Japan during World War II. He got off Scot free.

Yet the little GI who let his hair grow to a fashionable length not only was publicly humiliated but was clamped behind bars.

This little caper makes the whole country look more pitiful than ridiculous in the eyes of the rest of the world, but stupidity knows no shame.

Now let's take a look at state government.

Last week, with the auto industry gasping for breath, our stalwart governor signed a bill raising the legal interest rate for automobile loans from $6 hundred per year to $7 hundred per year.

At the time he affixed his name to the legislation, Gov. Milliken expressed the opinion that the bill would serve as a shot in the arm to the faltering auto industry by making more money available for auto loans.

Of course, poor Milliken is not alone responsible for this little piece of insanity because both houses of the Legislature passed a bill and they must have been sold the same idiotic bill of goods.

Unless I'm badly mistaken, there has never been a real shortage of money for auto loans. In fact money for all purposes seems to becoming more plentiful and cheaper with every passing day. Some banks even are willing to finance automobiles over four years in order to get in on the action.

Then, why did the state take the trouble to raise the usury rate?

I don't pretend to know, but it's another example of people worrying about the wrong thing. Our lawmakers would have better occupied their time dreaming up ways to cut auto costs, not raise them.

Now let's turn to President Ford. Where was he when he should have been at home talking turkey to the coal miners?

He was in Japan drinking sake with the Emperor Hirohito and in Vladivostok toasting Chairman Brezhnev with vodka.

As a result, miners and mine owners now have ratified a contract so inflationary that it alone will cause another devastating round of general price increases in an economy that is near the breaking point.

If Ford really wanted to do something about inflation, he should have started with the basic industries, such as coal. But his priorities weren't in the right place. Neither was he.

Now, U.S. Steel has announced an eight percent increase in the price of steel and President Ford, somewhat belatedly, is asking why?

I can tell him why, and I haven't even been to Vladivostok. Coal costs too much, that's why.

Will Americans ever get their heads on straight?

I doubt it. But you won't be able to tell with all that long hair.

Are You For Ecology?

By Sherry Martin

Ecology. That one word says a mouthful. It is a great concern that only recently has begun to receive the attention it so badly needs.

But, as humans are so often apt to do, we have jumped on the bandwagon a little too late in the game and have literally gone all out.

Perhaps we could pause, breathlessly, and take a good long look at what we've done and what should be done in the future.

In our community, the local (and not so local) push is to "preserve" a large portion of land, much of including Lake Michigan frontage.

This is a fine and rewarding cause...to preserve beautiful forest lands and lake frontage for generations yet to come.

But for the sake of generations now living, how much land can we afford to "save" for those in the future?

Now this is not to say that ecology is ridiculous, or that all ecologists are raving idiots. Yet there are several organized groups making serious demands that could cause this country to lose valuable real estate needlessly.

It is known fact that the State and Federal governments combined now own 1/3 of all the land in the United States. Property tax, of course is not collected on this land, therefore the revenue has to be picked up elsewhere - simple deduction: the taxpayer's ante is upped.

Now if we continue to set aside each and every scenic piece of property for parks, sanctuaries, whatever, this 1/3 could easily expand to ½ - ⅝ - ¾-?

Imagine the tax burden on the public.

The argument could be made that these resulting parks, etc. become "public" land. Yet the paying public must pay, pay, pay to use these lands and under various and many restrictions. Preserve and persevere.

Maybe we could back off and make an intelligent study of the needs, not just the wants of the people of this country.

Certainly we must take into consideration the effects of our decisions on the wildlife that inhabits our great lands still under private ownership.

The important thing to remember is that the only way to preserve these pieces of acreage for posterity is not necessarily to magically transform them into State and Federal white elephants. There is the possibility that we could develop - carefully and sparingly and still have privately owned, tax paying lands that would benefit the people and wildlife living there.

Christmas Uncancelled

There was a Christmas long ago, when my little boy told me he loved me more than Batman. Ah.

You may remember my brilliant suggestion, made 2 months ago, that President Ford could save the world by cancelling Christmas this year. And you have probably noticed he paid no attention to me. Neither did my family.

Thousands of starving people have been advised by President Ford to clean up their plates. This nation is choking on Arab oil but won't quit gulping it at 70 mph. Statistics prove disaster is as inevitable as overpopulation but world leaders continue to condemn birth control and doctors dispense fertility pills that produce 6 babies at a pop. Hordes of auto workers can convert their lunchbuckets into terrariums but the government keeps building freeways between Holiday Inns.

And so it goes. Everything is a mess.

President Ford said it would help to save energy and eliminate waste. He asked for suggestions on how to do it. I told him to cancel this Christmas. The money saved on unread Hallmark verses, unwanted toilet kits and unfilled wassail bowls would be enough to buy Saudi Arabia and move it to New Jersey in hour glasses.

And I told my family we would observe the holiday by sitting around the stump of last year's Christmas tree, singing "Brother Can You Spare a Dime?" and taking turns biting the same bullet.

I was not surprised that President Ford didn't respond to my brilliant idea. As pointed out last week, he can't hear a thing with that football helmet on. But my family's reaction was something else. As family breadwinner and Lord of All I Survey, I had at least expected a fair hearing. Negative, nix and never. My brilliant idea didn't have a prayer. My wife and kids simply refused to believe I could possibly be serious.

So December at our house this year has been the same as every year. Every time the doorbell rings it's the United Parcel man with more packages ordered by my wife, the catalog queen of the world. I write checks with my head turned for fear I'll see the balance. And my wife cried when the first card arrived. It brought Season's Best Wishes from the Sun Life Assurance Co.

"I love Christmas because I love to give things to people I love," my wife said lovingly, "and you and President Ford are not going to ruin it for me."

"If you don't give me a present I'll take back what I said about you and Batman," said my little boy who is now a 6-footer whose hero is something called Frank Zappa.

So here I am, a Scrooge trapped in a family of elves. I don't want any presents (except maybe that new golf novel by Dan Jenkins). And I wasn't going to give any presents. Except there has already been this holiday moment...

It was early in the morning and I thought I was the only one stirring. But then I heard soft little steps and I remembered the grandchildren were visiting. It was Melissa, the 2-year-old steam shovel. She's had a nightmare and she was scared and she climbed into my lap and wrapped her chubby arms around my neck. Usually she won't stick to one spot for 2 seconds but this time she stayed and stayed.

Melissa let me rub her back and snuggle her neck and whisper foolish things I wouldn't want overheard in the Alibi Bar. She clung warmly and her wispy hair tickled my nose.

And she said yes when I asked her if she loved me more than Batman.

I think I will give her a Christmas present. And I wish I could give all of you the feeling Melissa gave to me.

Have a Safe Holiday

Here are Some Menu Ideas

A taste-tempting array of food and a watchful eye on the bar are safeguards a holiday host can take to insure that party guests arrive home safely, according to Automobile Club of Michigan.

"Since Christmas and New Year's are mid-week holidays this year, and more motorists will be staying near home to enjoy private parties more than usual, our annual advice to be "First A Friend, Then A Host' (FAFTAH) is especially important this year," said James G. Moffat, Auto Club general manager.

Moffat noted that an estimated eight out of every 10 state motorists will drink sometime during the holidays and drive, adding that:

"Every party host should feel a moral obligation to get his guests home safely."

To aid the holiday party-giver, Auto Club is offering to the public a free recipe booklet filled with tips on how to prevent party-goers from drinking to the point of becoming unfit motorists. Titled "Your Party Guide to Good Eating and Safe Drinking," it is available at the 55 Auto Club offices throughout Michigan.

"By offering food at a party, and plenty of it, you can help draw the guests' attention away from the bar," the booklet stresses. A tangy cheese spread, a hearty beef stew and an easy-to-make non-alcoholic punch are among the menu suggestions the recipe booklet features.

Last year, 13 persons died on Michigan highways during the 102-hour Christmas holiday and 24 were killed during a similar period during New Year's. Approximately 50 percent of these deaths involved motorists known or suspected of drinking.

Michigan motorists are expected to travel an estimated 340 million miles on state highways this year during both Christmas and New Year's–much less than usual because the holiday periods will last only 30 hours each.

The Christmas holiday officially begins at 6 p.m. Tuesday (Dec. 24) and ends at midnight Wednesday (Dec. 25). New Year's begins at 6 p.m. Tuesday (Dec. 31) and runs to midnight Wednesday (Jan. 1)..

Auto Club suggests this five-point plan for a safe, successful holiday party:

1. Plan an ample selection of hors d'oeuvres and party "nibblers." Alcohol has a quicker effect when consumed on an empty stomach.
2. Keep your party's liquor supply out of sight and coffee and other non-alcoholic beverages in plain view.
3. Never press a drink on an unwilling guest. Hospitality means respecting his wishes if he says "no thanks" or "make it coffee."
4. An hour before the party ends, stop serving alcoholic beverages and provide your guests with a substantial meal.
5. If you feel a guest has had too much to drink, don't let him drive home. Arrange for someone else to give him a ride or call a taxi.

Moffat said that party guests can help prevent overindulgence in alcohol by using the following advice to "eat 'em mashed and you won't get smashed."

(FIRST OF SERIES)

The long awaited Charlevoix Soil Survey Report is about ready for your use. If you own or operate a farm, home or plan to buy or build a structure of any kind, you need to know about the soil that supports it.

The Charlevoix Soil Survey Report is an acre-by-acre recording of basic soil facts, including a map drawn on an aerial photograph showing the location of every kind of soil in the county. These detailed soil maps are in the back of the report.

Along with this map is a report describing precisely the properties of each soil. This basic detailed "Description of the Soils" is near the front of the book. The remainder of the report is devoted to interpretations of Charlevoix County soils for different uses.

Newcomers in Charlevoix County, planners, businessmen, farmers and others who want a broad view of the county will want to study the "general soil map" where the major county soil areas are described. They might also find the "General Nature of the County" part useful. Here such things as history of the county, its geology climate, farming and other items are discussed.

No two soils are exactly alike. Each has its own management problems, fertilizer needs and yield potential for various crops.

Farmers, farm managers and those who work with farmers will want to locate kinds of soils on their property and then learn about their use and management in the part that discusses "Management of the Soils" for various kinds of crops.

Woodland owners and foresters want to know the yield potential of the soil for specific kinds of trees. They can plan better forest management programs when the timber producing and producting potential is known. The "Use of Soils for Woodland" section can also be helpful in selecting areas for tree planting and in deciding which kind of tree to plant. In this part of the report, all soils of Charlevoix County are grouped according to their suitability for growing trees.

Engineers and builders want soil facts to help locate and design highways and airports radio stations, dam foundations—and to plan for flood control, damage and irrigation. Under "Engineering Uses of Soils", there are tables that give engineering descriptions of the soils and they list soil features affecting engineering practices and structures.

Scientists and others can read about how soils were formed and how they are classified in the section "Formation and Classification of Soils."

Students, teachers, real estate dealers, home builders, investors and many others can find information about Charlevoix County soils and their management in various parts of the report according to their particular interest.

The Charlevoix County Soil Survey was designed and made for your use. We hope that you will find it a useful book in making plans and decisions with your soil.

Copies will be available at the Soil Conservation Service office in Boyne City and the Cooperative Extension Service Office in the Federal Building in Boyne City and also the A.S.C.S. office in Boyne City.

Ask Charlevoix Brownies

Hey Mom! I Have a Man Brownie Leader

Jim and Paula Thomas were busy helping their Brownie Girl Scouts make Christmas tree decorations of felt and sequins last week when the Courier called on them at the Charlevoix library.

It was the second meeting of the year for Troop 313, and Jim Thomas was thoroughly enjoying his job as Brownie leader.

Several weeks ago the Courier ran an interview with Lu Klama, Service Team Chairman of the Charlevoix Girl Scouts, in which she told how many girls in Charlevoix could not become Scouts because there weren't enough leaders.

The question as to whether a father could be a Scout leader was brought up in the interview, with the answer that, although there had never been one in Charlevoix, there was probably no reason he couldn't be.

After reading that story the Thomases, whose daughter Lara is seven, decided to do something about it. Jim volunteered to serve as troop leader and Paula as his assistant.

"We both believe in Scouting and thought we would do something about it some day," Thomas said. "In other parts of the country where we have lived it is not uncommon for fathers to help with Girl Scouts, although it has been different in the Northern Michigan Council."

The Thomases have 14 Brownies in their troop, including Lara. They are first, second third-graders, "an enthusiastic age," Paula pointed out.

Although there are handbooks to guide Brownie leaders, most activities are designed to fit the needs of the particular group. "We want Brownies to feel good about what they do, to achieve, so they will do well later," Thomas said.

Many of the Christmas tree ornaments the girls were making last week bore the Brownie promise:

"I promise to do my best, to love God and my country, to help other people every day, especially those at home."

The Thomases came to Charlevoix from Santa Fe, New Mexico. He is a partner in the real estate firm, Charlevoix Properties, Inc. Besides Lara, they have a daughter Elka, three years old.

There is more good news about Girl Scouting in Charlevoix. Mrs. Klama reports that all troops now have leaders and nearly 170 girls are involved in Girl Scout activities as compared to 114 last year.

CHARLEVOIX Brownies are finding out that the image of Brownies has changed from female to male in Charlevoix.

Charlevoix Area Hospital Plans Holding Christmas

Christmas Day for patients in the Charlevoix Area Hospital will not be as dreary as it could be.

The hospital is inviting two family members or friends of each patient in the hospital that day to have a complimentary dinner with the patient. They may partake of either the noon or evening meal, but the noon meal will be the more elaborate one.

"We realize that Christmas is not a pleasant time to be in the hospital but we are trying to make it as festive as possible," Mrs. Nancy Porter of the hospital board of directors told the Courier.

The hospital has been decorated by members of the Women's Guild and on Christmas Day the food trays will hold colorful favors.

The noon menu, from which selections may be made by guests, is traditionally Christmas. It will include:

Spiced cranberry punch; baked turkey with gravy and cranberry sauce and celery stuffing; roast pork loin with gravy; mashed potatoes with gravy and whipped sweet potatoes with marshmallow topping; asparagus spears with hollandaise sauce and corn pudding; tossed salad with Russian dressing and sour cream fruit salad; hot rolls; pumpkin pie with whipped cream, sliced fruit cake and creme dementhe sundae.

The hospital would like to know by today (Tuesday how many guests they will have. Reservations may be made in person or by telephone.

The address of Johanna Kuiper is Room 207 c/o Little Traverse Hospital, Petoskey, MI., 49770. Johanna fell a couple weeks ago and fractured the bone above her knee. Friends are urged to visit and write as 6-8 weeks in traction will be a tedious time to recuperate.

The village is aglow with decorations of candles and Christmas trees against a V-shaped ornament. These were put up along Main Street last week.

Northmen Dump Cagers

In a continuation of an old rivalry, the Petoskey Northmen dumped the Charlevoix Rayders 78-57 in a game Friday that closed out cage activities for the holidays.

The visitors jumped to a 22-10 first period lead before the Rayders found their stride and managed to stay with them, scoring-wise, but were unable to knot the score as the Northmen edged ahead to a 21-point win.

Bruce Hilton got the Northmen off to a fast start as he scored 14 of his team's 22 points to give Petoskey a 22-10 first period advantage.

Mike Streeter put the Rayders in the running as he contributed 12 of the Rayders' 18 points in the second half, however, still led 42-28.

The third period passed without a personal foul as Charlevoix scored five and the Northmen seven field goals.

As the game went into the final period, Petoskey, with its depth, matched its first period scoring with 22 points to 19 for the Rayders for the lopsided win.

Hilton had 29 points for the game followed by Chris Weston with 16; Jerry Cosens with 12 and Kim Thomson with 10.

Streeter continued to lead the Rayders with 25 points. Bob Alger had eight; Dan Greene, seven; Chuck Faust, six; Kevin Stokes, five; Dave Martinchek, four and Mark Hosmer, two.

Little Rayders Win

Charlevoix's little Rayders continued their winning streak Friday by tripping the young Petoskey Northmen 70-63.

However, it took a come-from-behind effort on the part of the team to post its victory over the visiting Northmen.

The teams played to an 11-11 first period tie before Petoskey poured in a torrid 26 points to put them ahead 37-31 at halftime after the young Rayders had scored only 20 points.

As the second half got underway, the Rayders paced by Scott Boss who had seven points for the period, came through with an important 18 points to eight for the Northmen, to go ahead 49-45.

In a game in which Gregg Olney of Benzie Central scored a total of 47 points, the Charlevoix Rayders dropped the game to the visitors by a score of 87-63.

In the meeting, the Rayders scored only four points in the first period and spent the remainder of the game trying to even the score. The visitors, however, were not to be denied as they continued to pour in the field goals for a total of 40 for the game.

10th Moose Jaw Safari

The 10th Annual Moose Jaw Snowmobile SAFARI will be held Saturday January 11, 1975.

The Moose Jaw Safari is recognized as the first sponsored safari in the state, perhaps the nation. It started in 1965 with only 16 snowmobiles and it has grown to where 300 machines follow the trailmaster.

Harold Marshall, general chairman of the event, announced today that Rick Ward will be trailmaster of the 10th annual running. It is expected that over 350 snowmobilers will participate this year, making it the biggest entry of the 10 year span.

Registration and parking will be in the City Warming House at the ice rink off Hoyt Street starting at 8:30 a.m., and free coffee and rolls will be served.

The Safari will start at 9:30 a.m. SHARP, and a coffee break at Larks Lake Bar at 11:00 will provide a "warm-up" prior to heading for the famous Moose Jaw Bean Pot at Johnston's Park. For the 10th year, the Safari will follow the same basic pattern.

Joe Parrow and his crew will start preparing the famous "Moose Jaw Bean Soup" three days prior to serving, and this, along with 1,680 hot dogs, pop, coffee, and rolls will be served free to all snowmobilers at the noon stop at Johnston's Park.

The 40-mile jaunt will have four rest stops staged during the trip and four bonfires at Johnston's Park for the benefit of those attending.

The Moose Jaw Safari committee will have a free shoulder patch for every driver. This event is sponsored by the Harbor Springs Chamber of Commerce.

Freedman Lays Off 97

Charlevoix suffered its first shock of unemployment last week when the Freedman Artcraft Engineering Corporation announced that it was laying off 97 employees until at least the middle of January.

Freedman Artcraft has been Charlevoix's largest employer and is one of its oldest. They came to Charlevoix in 1946 from Cincinnati and employed 11 people. Before last week's lay-off their staff numbered 150 and has been as high as 200. This is only the second significant lay-off since the company started.

Freedman manufactures free-standing display cases for such items as greeting cards and records. Gordon Freedman said that although this is always the slow time of year for business they thought they could get by. Also, according to Freedman, this type of business is usually not affected by a recession.

Recalling the expansion of the company since their beginning, Freedman said that after the slow period of 1960, with the help of a Small Business Association loan they were able to keep their heads above water and began growing rapidly.

Gordon Freedman is projecting more business in the months to come but said he can't really foresee what the future holds. "I was disturbed by the short notice we had to give our employees," he said. "But we did think we could get by."

You "auto" know by now that we are hoping your holidays are truly joyous. Hearty greetings from all the guys at Anita is a graduate of Charlevoix High School, where she was active in debate, forensics and drama, and was a member of the Latin Club. She also took part in the Campus Life Club and the Campus Life Communiques, a singing group.

But Don't Eat Them Anyways

Poinsettias' Lethal Qualities Are Exaggerated

PETOSKEY—The Rumors about Poinsettias' lethal qualities are exaggerated. That's the good Christmas news from Little Traverse Hospital's Poison Control Center.

Definitely not recommended eating, a bite of the lovely Christmas plant will bring on vomiting and diarrhea. However, the stories that Poinsettias will cause death are based on one unsubstantiated report from Hawaii in 1919, according to resource material in the Poison Control Center.

In the event a child does take a taste of a Poinsettia, the Center advises to wash any sap off with soap and water, and watch the child. If there's a reaction, call the Poison Center, through Little Traverse Hospital's switchboard. There is no recommended antidote for Poinsettia.

Little Traverse Hospital's Poison Control Center is a regional center, covering the northern part of the Lower Peninsula. The Hospital's Emergency Room nurses and physicians are on duty round the clock, seven days a week.

The Center contains a constantly updated card file on all known poisonous materials, as well as antidotes. The poison information is supplemented weekly by the National Clearinghouse for Poison Control, and the Hospital's pharmacy. In addition, the Center has several references on poisons, including books supplied by the major drug companies.

When a poison case is called in, a staff nurse takes the necessary information from the caller, turns the call over to a doctor and locates all facts on the poisonous substance in the center's files.

The physician will advise the caller on the seriousness of the problem, antidotes and emergency procedures, and, in serious cases, have the patient brought to the Emergency Room, where more antidotes wait.

The majority of cases handled by the Poison Control Center involve children and parents' drugs, according to R.N. Carol Smith, Emergency Room Supervisor. Next in frequency are children who have tried a commercial product.

For successful treatment of poisoning, the Poison Control Center staff emphasizes that the container of the poison be properly identified and brought to the Emergency Room with the patient.

Ma Bell Says Phones Will be in Heavy Use

Michigan Bell is predicting a record number of long distance calls on Christmas Day.

Christmas is the busiest holiday of the year for the telephone company and this year calling volumes will be greater than ever, the company said today.

"Last year, when a great many Michigan residents stayed home over the holiday because of the energy crunch, long distance calling increased more than 13 percent," said Lei G. Johnson, Bell's local manager. "The company expects holiday calling will increase about ten and one-half percent this year.

"If people don't travel as much over the holiday, they are still going to want to talk to their families," Miss Johnson said, "and that means long distance calls will increase again this year."

She predicted that Michigan residents will make about 1,120,000 long distance calls this Christmas compared to slightly more than one million calls last year.

The majority of long distance holiday calls originating in Michigan last year were made to other points within the state, Miss Johnson said. The same pattern is expected this year with about 670,000 long distance calls within the state and another 450,000 calls to other states.

About 100,000 long-distance calls are expected to be handled by operators, with the remainder dialed directly by customers, she said. Statewide, some 2,600 Michigan Bell operator service employees will work on Christmas Day helping customers with their calls, Miss Johnson added.

Nationwide, the Bell System anticipates about 13.5 million interstate long distance calls (calls between states) will be made.

Across the country, the telephone industry opens up normally unused circuits and rearranges circuits usually used for heavy business day calling to make available the maximum number of transmission paths for Christmas calls. Despite this, customers likely may encounter busy circuits during the heaviest calling periods, Miss Johnson said.

She has a few tips on how telephone customers can save money and help speed their calls.

First, for the lowest possible rates, dial your own calls. Next, the telephone network will be very busy on Christmas Eve and Christmas Day until very late each night. You can avoid the Christmas calling rush by phoning earlier in the week. And, if you don't have a telephone number that you need in the distant city, then call Directory Assistance in the distant city before the holiday rush so you will have the number when you are ready to place the call.

On Christmas Day, itself, early morning calls or afternoon calls have a better chance of going right through. This means mostly calls made before 8 a.m. and calls made between 1 and 5 p.m. in the time zone of the family or friends you are calling.

JEFF RUSSELL of the Charlevoix Elementary School is making a candle holder for his parents for this Christmas.

Another Problem

Farmers Find New Disease

Farmers in Northwestern Michigan are being plagued with an endemic disease affecting their livestock.

A local veterinarian reports that lepto spirosis, an infectious disease causing breeding problems, has been found in Charlevoix, Antrim and Emmet Counties.

Lepto spirosis causes abortion, retained placenta, mastitis and weak calves. However, the mortality rate in adult animals is only about two per cent.

Among the symptoms are bloody urine and yellow jaundice, and in dairy cattle the milk is thick and yellow. The organism is passed by urine of infected animals, even deer, dogs and cats.

The disease can also be passed to humans by drinking raw milk from infected cows.

One dairy farmer who found the disease in two of cows had his whole herd vaccinated to control the disease.

Rec. Department Offers Dog Class

The Charlevoix Recreation Department in cooperation with the Charlevoix Humane Society will offer a Dog Obedience School at the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department garage on Grant St. in Charlevoix.

The School will begin on Tuesday January 14, 1975 and will continue for 10 weeks from 7:00 p.m. to 8:00 p.m.

Dogs must be 6 months old or older and have their rabies and distemper shots.

Owners must furnish a chain collar and a 6 foot leather lead. (The leather lead may be purchased at class.)

Registration for the class will be $20.00 and must be paid no later than January 10, 1975. Interested persons may register by sending a check or money order to the Charlevoix Recreation Department 210 State St. Charlevoix Michigan. Make checks payable to the City of Charlevoix.

A minimum of 10 students will be required to hold the class. Do not bring your dog to the first class.

More information may be obtained by contacting the Charlevoix Recreation Department at 547-4272 or Dona Wojan at 547-6866.

Charlevoix Gives Many Gifts to Area Shoppers

THE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE trophy for the best business decoration went to the Grey Gables for the third year in a row. Presenting the trophy are Mr. and Mrs. Claus to Dave Phillips of the Grey Gables.

Shopping in Charlevoix really paid off for many local residents who participated in the many drawings held by local merchants this year.

No less than a dozen prizes were given over the weekend to those who signed their names last week while visiting local stores.

The Chamber of Commerce awarded its annual decoration trophy to The Grey Gables with Boggs Pastry named as runner up. Receiving honorable mention was Charlevoix County State Bank, M-66 branch.

Ronald Milts of Central Lake won the First State Bank bike, while Teresa Noiset received a $25 gift certificate at Portside Sports for the Kids Day drawing.

Other winners were Darcy Dutcher, a clock radio from the Park Place; Mike Brady, a $25 certificate from Muma's; and Pat Strangis, passes for two for 1975 at the Cinema III.

Women's Night winners were Edith Chamberlain of Charlevoix, a $25 gift certificate from Reusch Jewelry; Karen Schnell of Charlevoix, a $25 gift certificate from Haggards; Sue Gengle of Charlevoix, a $25 certificate from Lieberman's; and Mrs. Harry Custer, a $25 certificate from Lieberman's.

drinking the milk from the animals. The State Department of Agriculture has set up a safety standard of three-tenths parts of P.B.B. in a million.

Dr. Humphries said that the Health Department is not concerned about farmers selling milk with P.B.B. levels less than the safety standard to the general public because when it is mixed with milk from other sources it is greatly diluted, and therefore thought not to be harmful.

To date some 10,000 cattle have been slaughtered in Michigan because of P.B.B. poisoning and another 5,000 are under quarantine and face probable destruction.

Insurance claims totaling about $10 million have been paid out to owners of the cattle and there are still between $5 million and $10 million in claims outstanding, according to State Insurance Director Daniel J. Demlow. He also said, "I think it may very well be that there's a rather large number of small claims still to be resolved."

Michigan Farm Bureau has sued its 1974 Insurance carrier, the New Hampshire Insurance Company, to force the insurance company to pay for several claims. New Hampshire Insurance has said it is withholding its payments because its investigation indicated the Farm Bureau received all of the P.B.B. in 1973, and that the occurrence took place before it's 1974 coverage took effect.

Michigan Farm Bureau has also sued the Michigan Chemical Company, stating that they never ordered any poly-brominated bi-phenyl.

In the meantime, affected Michigan farmers who have not been paid wonder how long it will be before they are compensated for their losses of cattle, production and the expensive "cleaning up" which P.B.B. contamination necessitates. Several state legislators, including 103rd district Representative Ralph Ostling, are holding a public hearing in Lansing this Thursday to discuss the problem.

Railroad

"That's roughly what it costs to build two miles of rural expressway," Beagle commented.

Bill Bailey, of the State Department of Highway Transportation, agrees that while the figures Beagle refers to have risen considerably since 1973, his comparison is valid.

Supporters of retaining rail trackage recognizes that to do so will require Government subsidy but not to do so would be disastrous for Northern Michigan agriculture and industry.

The oil shortage and consequent change in fuel, back to coal probably means that rail use has suddenly become impertive for survival, they argue.

$360 Billion Spent

They assert that $360 billion has been spent by Federal, State and local governments since 1947 to provide and maintain facilities for highway, air and water transportation.

Very little has been spent to assist railroads, many of which are now bankrupt.

They use the current abandonment of Penn Central's Petoskey-Mackinaw City Service to dramatize the impact on local economy and social conditions.

"If we lose rail service my company will have to leave Petoskey and locate somewhere that provides the rail service that permits us to compete in the market," explains Gerald Smith, General Manager of Michigan Maple Block Company.

The Company makes butcher blocks which are sold all over the U.S. and exported to Europe, the Orient and South America. It employs 60 people with a payroll of about $7500 weekly.

On Dec. 5, it loaded a Penn Central freight car with $100,000 worth of butcher blocks destined for Los Angeles, California, via Mackinaw City, across the Straits of Mackinac by Ferry and thence by transcontinental rail.

No Notice

But without notice the service to Mackinaw City had been discontinued. The car had to be rerouted through Grand Rapids, Kalamazoo, Jackson and Bay City before it would get to Mackinaw City, a distance of more than 550 miles compared to the direct 40 miles route.

Smith, a vice president of the Rail Users Association, said Friday, that the car was ferried across the Straits and received by the Soo Line Railroad at 2:45 p.m. Thursday and that it would reach Los Angeles the day after Christmas.

"We not only missed the Christmas trade, we will now have to pay warehouse taxes in addition to the additional shipping costs," Smith said, adding shipping by truck is prohibitive because of higher costs.

City

Mayor Hansen said he ran for election three years ago because he had been adverse to favoritism or rip-offs.

"When the city underspends its budget $50,000, someone has to be short $50,000," he said.

"As far as the city is considered, I'm not austere."

He cited improvements such as putting in a seawall between Clinton and the Sundew Docks, paving and the May Street sewer.

"I do believe in keeping the city up," he said.

"I don't believe wasting money."

"When you waste taxpayers money, you are not doing to the best of your ability."

He said the city saved $38,000 in its budget by not wasting money in 1973.

The mayor said the city has been trying to improve the city and catch-up for what hasn't been done in the last 10 years and the operating millage has still been kept down to nine mills.

Thus far, Annabelle Cunningham, incumbent treasurer, and Ida A. Heise, incumbent clerk, who filed their petitions earlier, have no competition for their respective offices.

In the first ward, Raymond V. Wood has filed for the office to which he was appointed earlier following the resignation of Richard A. Fochtman. At this point, he has no opposition.

Mrs. Jeanine Wallace, incumbent councilwoman in the second ward, said Sunday that she plans to be a candidate though she has not filed a petition at this time. Ivan Whiteley, who has been very interested in the city government, is toying with the idea of opposing Mrs. Wallace but said Sunday he "has considered the idea but has not made up his mind at this time."

George Plumm, incumbent third ward alderman, said Sunday he had his petition for re-election signed and planned to file it at the city hall Monday.

The deadline for filing nominating petitions is 4 p.m. Monday, Dec. 30. Nominating petitions may be obtained at the office of the city clerk or the county clerk.

Road

had the slightest intention of crippling the secondary system in rural areas. He theorized that high Federal Highway Administration officials had sold the cutback on the basis of arguments that the system is too large ever to be financed entirely by federal funds and that a few states have disproportionately high secondary mileage.

"Neither argument, of course, requires or justifies penalizing rural residents of the vast majority of states whose secondary systems are reasonable and necessary," Van Roekel said.

He also added that the cutback was not even based on significant savings of government funds. "I think we will see about the same amount of secondary aid money being spent, but concentrated on about one-third of the present mileage, almost all of it in urban areas where more alternatives are available anyway."

In all, the Michigan secondary system would be cut from its present 22,000 to an estimated 8,600 miles, mostly in urban areas, that would still be eligible for federal aid after July 1, 1976.

Ordinance

Ald. Timms offered the following amendment to the Existing Ordinance No. 189 and moved its adoption, supported by Alderman Selph.

To establish Commercial freight loading and unloading rates of $25.00 for the first hour and $15.00 per hour thereafter for loading and unloading at the Commercial Dock. The monitoring of the loading, and unloading to be supervised by the Beaver Island Boat Company attendant.

Yacht rates will apply to Commercial dock, when dock is available. Any damage done to yacht docks by the winter tie-up will be the responsibility of the boat owner.

The Amendment was adopted by the following yea and nay vote.

Yeas: Alderwoman Wallace, Ald. Wood, McRae, Plumm, Selph and Timms
Nays: None.
Absent: None.

Alderwoman Wallace offered the following proposed Amendment No. 349 to the Charlevoix Zoning Ordinance and moved its adoption, supported by Alderman Timms.

CHARLEVOIX ZONING ORDINANCE
PROPOSED AMENDMENT NO. 349

ARTICLE VII-A "R-4" Planned Residential Zone
Section 755 A Zoning Board of Appeals

The Board of Appeals may, after adequate review and analysis of any multiple housing project proposed to receive government subsidy to provide dwelling space for Senior Citizens and/or low income persons or families, authorize specific variances from such dimensional requirements as lot coverage, front yard setback, side and rear yard areas, and floor space restrictions. The Board may also grant variances from the maximum density requirement and from the parking space regulations for such Senior Citizens and/or low income multiple housing projects.

Authorization of a variance shall be based on the following criteria:

a) The variance will not be contrary to the public interest or spirit and intent of zoning.

b) Strict compliance with the Zoning Ordinance would constitute undue hardship or create a practical difficulty in the operation and maintenance of a Senior Citizen's or low income multiple housing project.

Such variance shall lapse or expire by its own terms in the event such project is not approved for subsidy by the government agency.

Yeas: Alderwoman Wallace, Wood, McRae, Plumm, Selph and Timms
Nays: None
Absent: None.

COMMUNITY REFORMED CHURCH OF CHARLEVOIX
A.F. Mansen, Pastor
Corner of U.S. 31 and Meech St., Charlevoix

Twenty-five years after Columbus discovered America Martin Luther nailed his 95 theses on the door of the Wittenburg Chapel. This marked the beginning of that period known in Church History as the Reformation. Other men, including John Calvin, also espoused the cause of the Reformation. He set the intellectual pattern of the Reformed Church. This marks the beginning of the Reformed Church.

In the year 1628 the first Dutch Reformed Church was established in America in New Amsterdam, now New York. This is the oldest Protestant Church in America with an uninterrupted ministry.

After the Revolutionary War people of other ethnic backgrounds began to come into the Church and the use of the Dutch language disappeared.

In 1867 the name was changed from Reformed Dutch Church to the Reformed Church in America. At the present time the Reformed Church has over 900 congregations scattered throughout our nation. While originally ministering largely to people of Dutch extraction now many of the congregations are composed of many other ethnic groups including some of other races.

Our local Community Reformed Church had its beginning in 1904 in South Barnard. In 1940 it erected a new structure on Barnard Road. This building is still in use having been converted into a house. In 1962 our present structure was erected. Beginning in the Fall of 1973 and completed in the Spring of 1974 an educational unit was added.

We currently number about seventy families. We have two worship services every Sunday – three during the summer months – and Sunday School classes for all ages.

We have a Christian Fellowship Club which meets once a month; a woman's Guild which also meets once a month. A W.H.O. (We Help Others) circle and various Prayer Groups which meet in the different homes. We also have various activities for the young people. High School and Post Hi. groups. The government of the local congregation is in the hands of a group known as the Consistory. This group is composed of Elders and Deacons and is elected by the members of the Congregation. Anyone who wishes to serve and worship the Lord is welcome to meet with us.

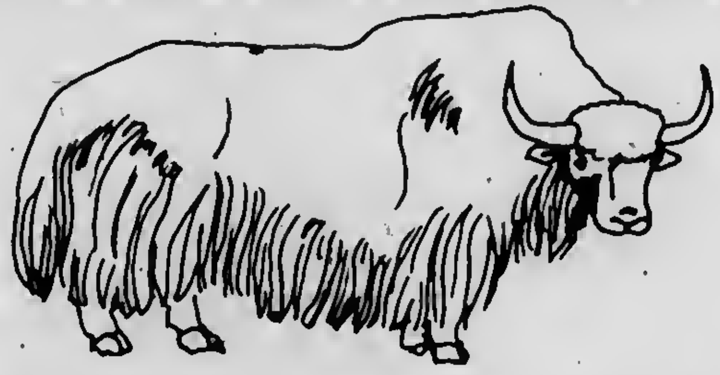
ABOUT ANIMALS



YAK

Yaks are large members of the cattle family, common to the high mountain regions of central Asia. They have long, shaggy fur that covers their eyes and ears and forms a skirt around their legs to protect them from the cold. Natives use Yaks as beasts of burden, as well as for a source of milk, meat and fur to weave into clothes.

Famous People in History

WILBER AND ORVILLE WRIGHT

The Wright brothers were American pioneers in aviation. Wilbur was born in 1867 at Millville, Indiana, and Orville in 1871 at Dayton, Ohio. The brothers formed Wright Cycle Company and made bicycles. They experimented with kites and gliders until they made the first motor-powered airplane flight at Kitty Hawk, North Carolina in 1903. They continued developing their airplane design and in 1909, their machine successfully passed army tests. They then organized the American Wright Company to manufacture airplanes. Wilbur died in 1912 of typhoid fever and Orville lived until 1948. Both Wright brothers were elected to the American Hall of Fame.
